JAPAN'S ULTIMATUM TO GERMANY BRINGS FAR EAST INTO CONFLICT.

Demand for Withdrawal of Kaiser's Fleet From Orient Is Regarded at Washington as Grave Development.

Tokio Expresses Regret at Inability to Maintain Neutrality, but Declares It To Be Its Duty in View of the Alliance with England to Insist on Evacuation of Kiao-Chau with View of Its Restoration to China.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The Japanese Ambassador, Baron Chinda, delivered tonight to Secretary Bryan the written announcement of Japan that an ultimatum had been delivered to Germany requesting Germany's withdrawal from her leased territory in China.

By the same time she communicated the intentions of Japan to the United States the utmost endeavor would be made to safeguard the interests of this country and all others not directly concerned in the present conflict.

The United States, it became known today, Chinda's call on Mr. Bryan did not intend to be drawn into the controversy, regarding it was a matter purely between Germany and Japan. The United States government considers satisfactory the promise of Japan of "ultimate restoration to China" of the territory of Kiao-Chau.

BRYAN REASSURED.

Baron Chinda's conference with the Secretary of State was held at Mr. Bryan's residence. The Japanese Ambassador read a communication from the Foreign Office at Tokio, which embodied the substance of the ultimatum and added a strong statement regarding Japan's purposes of maintaining the territorial integrity of the Chinese republic by restoring to her sovereignty of Kiao-Chau, originally taken from China by Germany as an act of reprisal for the killing of German missionaries.

While the statement made no direct reference to the United States, it gave assurance in general that the interests of all powers interested in maintaining the territorial status quo in the Far East would be protected to the utmost.

It developed as a result of the conference that Japan had no assurance up to the present time that its ultimatum had been delivered to Germany, owing to the cable difficulties with that country. In order to make certain of its delivery, a copy of the ultimatum will be communicated to Berlin through the channels of the American government.

SITUATION IS DELICATE.

The situation in the Far East for several days has been regarded by officials as delicate. Almost simultaneously with the outbreak of hostilities in Europe, China sent an appeal to the American government, expressing the hope that she might be able to rely on the previous policy of the United States as an influence against the violation of her neutrality. The American government did not, it is understood, indicate in the reply what her attitude would be, preferring to outline her position as developments arose. Immediately Germany began to sound the American government as to the possibility of neutralizing the German provinces in China, and the attitude of Germany was conveyed informally through the United States to Japan.

Ambassador Guthrie at Tokio has had many conversations with the Japanese government, in which the intimation was constantly given that whatever steps Japan might feel obliged to take in aid of her ally, Great Britain, the United States could feel assured of her intention to maintain the integrity of China.

It is understood that the recent exchanges between English and Japanese officials has brought out the view of Great Britain that her "special interests" in the Far East, as referred to in the treaty of alliance, were being endangered by the operations of German warships against English warships in eastern waters, and by the general conditions growing out of Germany's strong military position at Kiau-Chau. Japan was quick to accept the view of her ally.

KIAO-CHAU IS STRONG.

The military and naval conditions at Kiao-Chau and the political events leading up to the present crisis, were outlined today by a distinguished diplomat of the Far East. He pointed out that Kiao-Chau is at present the great German stronghold of the Orient. Since it was taken from China elaborate fortifications have been built with bastions and glacis until it is now considered to be as formidable as the great fortress at Port Arthur, in which the Russians withstood the Japanese siege for months. It is now garrisoned by a German force of about 5000 men. The entire establishment, military and naval, is under a German military Governor. Back of the fortress the Germans have improved the hinterland so as to assure a large and constant source of supplies to the fortress. Still further back a network of railways have been developed by concessions until German influence is now practically paramount throughout the whole of the important province of Shantung.

This official pointed out that the naval defenses of Kiao-Chau front on the bay, which is large and deep, and adequate for the maneuvering of a fleet. However, the German naval force there at present consists chiefly of cruisers and gunboats. It is expected, therefore, that any operations against Kiao-Chau would be of a military rather than a naval character. It is the belief of Japanese strategists that Germany would withdraw her ships within the harbor, mine the entrance against approach, and then depend on the military garrison and the strength of the fortress, to protect it against a movement from the land side. The Japanese fleet, it is expected, would station itself at the entrance to the harbor, much as it did at Port Arthur when the Russian fleet was held there, and that military forces would be brought from Japan to lay siege to the fortress from the land side.

MENACE TO JAPAN.

From the Japanese standpoint Kiao-Chau's chief menace to Japan is that it lies directly opposite Korea, the great field of Japan colonial development, and also just across the sea from the southerly Japanese islands.

Explaining the political effect of Germany's occupation of Kiao-Chau, this diplomatic authority on oriental affairs said the issue presented today had its origin in the events of the Japan-China war.

At that time, he said, Japan had succeeded in taking Port Arthur from China after a memorable contest. At this point, however, he said Germany took the lead among a group of European powers in demanding that Japan should not retain the fruits of her victory by holding Port Arthur. Yielding to this pressure Japan relinquished the prize. Shortly after this a German fleet occupied Kiao-Chau, claiming it as an indemnity for alleged attacks on German missionaries. Since then Kiao-Chau has been steadily developed, until now with its fortress, its hinterland, and its outlying sections of Shantung province it represents in the Japanese view, a most AVIATORS HURL BOMBS AT METZ.

DARING FEAT REPORTED BY PARIS WAR OFFICE.

Two French Army Airmen Are Stated to Have Flown Over the German Fortress and Dropped Their Projectiles Despite a Shower of Shots.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Aug. 16.—Details of a daring exploit at Metz carried out by French military aviators were given today in an official communication issued by the War Office, which says:

"At half-past five on Friday evening Lieut. Casaari and Corp. Prudhomme, flying in separate aeroplanes, left the French fortress of Verdun with orders to reconnoiter if possible and destroy the dirigible balloon shed in the German fortress of Metz.

"Lieut. Casaari flew over the fortress at a height of nearly 9000 feet, while Corp. Prudhomme remained at the lower altitude of about 6800 feet.

"A terrific fire was directed on the two aviators from the fortress garrison and during the fusillade the motor of the lieutenant's aeroplane stopped. As he did not wish to fall in his mission he began to volplane and while doing this threw a bomb with marvelous coolness. Shortly afterward he succeeded in getting his motor started again.

"In the meanwhile the corporal had hurled his projectile also.

"The smoke over the city prevented the aviators seeing whether they had been successful, but they believed they had achieved their purpose and flew away amid a rain of shells from quick-firing guns. They returned safely to Verdun."

TITANIC BATTLE NEAR DINANT; INVADERS MEET ALLIED FORCES.

All Along Alsace-Lorraine Frontier Advance Guard of Two Opposing Armies Are in Clash.

Both Sides Are Claiming Victories on the Austro-Servian Border — Siege Proclaimed in Bulgaria Is a Precautionary Measure to Prepare Country for Any Kind of Emergency—Engagements from Aeroplanes Numerous and Deadly.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—A dispatch to Reuter's agency from Nish, Servia, says:

"A naval battle this morning off Budua, Austria, in the Adriatic, at 9 a.m., between a French squadron, coming from the southwest, and the Austrian squadron. Two Austrian ironclads were sunk, one was set on fire and the fourth fled northward. It was last seen off Catarre. The fight lasted about an hour.

PARIS, Aug. 17 (Via London.)—A dispatch received Sunday by the Havas agency from Namur says that a member of the Belgian Civil Guard, arriving in Namur from Dinant, declared that a battle was raging in the environs of Dinant between the French and Germans. He gave no details. Trains from Namur to Dinant are being stopped at Gelinden.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—Telegraphing from Delemont, Switzerland, the Daily Mail's correspondent says:

"Fighting has recommenced in Upper Alsace, between Belfort and Altkirch. The sound of gunfire is still heard at Porentruy, thirty-eight miles northwest of Berne, and near the Alsace frontier.

"I hear that the French force, which retired from Muelhausen, has been reinforced and renewed the attack. French successes are reported on all sides in the Vosges Mountains."

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Despite the repeated repulses which they have suffered, the German battalions continue to move forward for a decisive encounter, which can not be delayed much longer. While there has been a lull in the fighting in Northern Belgium, the invaders are sweeping along the valley of the Meuse, south of Namur, and have reached Dinant, where part of a strong French force, which is established behind that town, took the offensive and defeated them.

The incident shows that the French crossed the Belgian frontier to join hands with their allies not a moment too soon. All along the Alsace-Lorraine frontier the advance guards of the two opposing armies have come into contact, and, according to French official reports, the Germans have been driven back everywhere with loss.

Strong French forces are now in possession of all the passes of the Vosges Mountains, from the west as far as those leading down to Colmar. Further south French forces are ready to proceed over the flat country toward Muelhausen.

The French have taken the offensive along the line from Luneville to Sarrebourg, on the German frontier, but here, as in the other theaters of war, the main armies have not come into contact.

On the Austro-Servian and Austro-Russian frontiers, both sides claim victories in encounters. But these can have little effect on the general result unless the Servians compel the Austrians to send stronger forces in an attempt to subdue them.

Austria is preparing to resist an attack on her shores of the Adriatic, which possibly will be undertaken by the joint Anglo-French fleet.

It is explained that the state of siege which has been proclaimed in Bulgaria is simply a precautionary measure, so that the country will be prepared in case of emergency.

FIERCE FIGHTING ABOUT DINANT.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—The Times correspondent at Namur, Belgium, who witnessed the fighting at Dinant Saturday, says:

"The battle occupied a whole day, but was made up of two actions. The first continued from morning until 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The second occupied the remainder of the afternoon. From early morning, when the Germans took possession of a part of Dinant on the left bank of the Meuse and a regiment of French infantry advanced at the same time from the south to the north and occupied the other side of the town, skirmishes between the two forces proceeded throughout the forenoon.

"In the afternoon the fighting took the form of an artillery engagement. The French infantry withdrew from the town into the woods at the side of the Meuse, four miles from the river.

"The artillery then took charge of the battle at the same moment that a French infantry regiment, advancing along the Meuse on the right bank from Houx, at the south at Namur, flung itself on the Germans in the town and aided by artillery drove them off.

"Then from 3 o'clock until 6 the two armies engaged in an artillery duel across the town. It was always the Germans who were retiring along the hills to the south of town and always the French who moved forward their batteries little by little. Gradually the French drove the Germans southward probably along the road to Han-sur-Lesse, pursuing all the time with infantry and chasseurs.

"To all appearances the French artillery made better practice than the German. The number of killed and wounded must have been heavy."

The correspondent at Paris of the Times in a dispatch published this morning, says:

"The forward movement by the French forces in the Vosges mountains is offering the importance. There has been a general advance all along the line which hitherto has been stubbornly contested and at

GERMAN LOSSES SEVERE, SAYS PARIS OFFICIAL NOTE.

PARIS, Aug. 16 (5:55 p.m.)—An official note issued by the War Office confirms the report of a battle at Dinant, Belgium. It says:

"A division of German cavalry supported by some battalions of infantry attacked Dinant today. The French cavalry repulsed the German troops, who retired in disorder.

"The French troops captured some hundreds of German cavalry horses, which were immediately sent to the rear to serve as remounts for the French cavalry.

"The high spirits of the French troops greatly encouraged the Belgians.

"Further details of the fighting around Blamont and Cirey-sur-Vezouze in the French department of Meurthe-et-Moselle show that the Germans were strongly entrenched behind earthworks near Blamont when on Friday evening the French divisions began their attack. The German outposts repulsed the French, who at daybreak the following day, resumed the offensive supported by artillery and succeeded during the afternoon in taking Blamont and Cirey. The German troops then occupied the heights to the north, from which they were also driven. The German casualties were severe.

"All the German and Austrian subjects resident in Morocco have been expelled by the French authorities.

"The German troops while evacuating a number of villages in Southern Alsace committed many acts of brutality. Our troops found many houses burned and corpses riddled with bullets in the streets, notably at Dannemarie, near Altkirch, in Southern Alsace."

At Belfort, Jean Cruppi, former French Minister of Justice, has gathered together hundreds of children of poor reservists now at the front and will take care of them on his estate while the hostilities last.

General War Situation.

STATE OF SIEGE IN BULGARIA; U. S. CRUISERS REACH ENGLAND.

WHILE the German forces are pushing forward through the valley of the Meuse, and still more extensive operations are in progress along the Alsace-Lorraine frontier, where the French and German armies are in contact, Japan has sent an ultimatum to Germany demanding the withdrawal of the German warships from the Orient and the evacuation of Kiao-Chau, a German protectorate in China.

This territory comprises an area of 200 square miles, with 200 square miles additional in the bay. Tsing-Tau, the seat of the Governor of the territory, is the port where the German warships mobilized at the outbreak of hostilities.

Japan's ultimatum gives Germany until August 23 to comply with the demands. Owing to cable interruptions, however, Japan has not been able to deliver the ultimatum to Germany, and it is announced from Washington that the United States will undertake this task.

Peking reports that three British regiments have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to go aboard transports, and it is presumed that they will co-operate with the Japanese land forces, if force of arms is resorted to.

In Tokio the Japanese ultimatum has created a deep impression and the Japanese Premier and Foreign Minister have counselled the Japanese to maintain a calm attitude.

Late dispatches report an offensive movement by the French from Luneville to Sarrebourg, but this is considered as yet merely an outpost affair.

A state of siege has been proclaimed in Bulgaria.

The United States cruisers Tennessee and North Carolina, bearing gold for the relief of Americans in Europe, have arrived at Falmouth.

A Rome dispatch to the Central News at London, said refugees arriving there from Berlin declared that the socialists are rising in revolt because of the execution of their leader, Dr. Liebknecht.

From St. Petersburg came the information that Austran troops have evacuated the towns of Kielce and Chencin in Russian Poland, after an attack by Russian cavalry.

A Brussels dispatch to London brought word that a general engagement has occurred in the neighborhood of Namur. The French troops, according to the report, assumed the defensive and repulsed the Germans.

RUSSIAN ARMY MOBILIZED; CZAR TAKES OFFENSIVE.

PARIS, Aug. 16.—The following official statement was issued tonight:

"A forward movement developed today all along the front from Rechicourt (Rixingen,) in Lorraine, eleven miles southwest of Sarrebourg, to Sainte Marie-aix-Mines. We carried the latter and advanced into the region of Saint Blaise.

"The French troops, who occupied Donan Saturday, continued to advance, their progress being especially rapid in the Schirmeck Valley. We have taken 1000 prisoners in addition to the 500 on Friday. Large quantities of equipment were abandoned by the Germans; we have also captured this. We pushed as far as Lorquin Height, capturing a convoy belonging to a cavalry division, consisting of nineteen automobiles.

"The Germans attacked Dinant. Their force consisted of a guard division and the first cavalry division supported by several battalions of infantry and machine gun companies.

"When these forces appeared on the left bank, the French attacked with great vigor. The Germans soon gave way and recrossed the Meuse in great disorder. Many who failed to reach the bridge slipped down the steep bank and fell into the river and were drowned.

"Profiting by the disorder, French light cavalry regiment followed over the river and pursued the Germans for many miles. This regiment put to flight and drove before it greatly superior forces of German cavalry.

"The Russian mobilization has been carried out with remarkable rapidity. The army is now ready to assume the offensive, which soon will make itself felt. Already in Galicia Russian cavalry has crossed the frontier, driving back the Austrians. Farther west an Austrian detachment which penetrated south of Tarnopol has been defeated.

"Troops are also moving against Germany. The Germans made superhuman efforts last year to strengthen the fortresses on the Victuala, notably at Gandens and Thorn.

"Nevertheless their situation is insecure. They have been obliged to call up all kinds of reserves to back up the five active army corps and it is doubtful whether their forces will be able to resist the Russian attack as long as the Germans hoped."

Due Notice.

GIVEN A WEEK BY ULTIMATUM.

Germany Must Accept Terms Without Conditions.

Japs Assure Safeguarding of American Interests.

Declare China's Integrity Is to Be Upheld.

[BY PACIFIC CABLE.]

TOKIO, Aug. 16.—Japan sent an ultimatum to Germany Saturday night at 8 o'clock demanding the withdrawal of German warships from the Orient and the evacuation of Kiaou-Chau and giving Germany until Sunday, August 23, to comply with the demand. Otherwise, the ultimatum states, Japan will take action.

The general expectation here is that the ultimatum will be followed by war.

Takaaki Kato, the Japanese Foreign Minister, simultaneously with the dispatch of the ultimatum, conferred with George W. Guthrie, the American Ambassador, and made to him a broad statement calculated to assure the United States that American interests in the Far East would be safeguarded and the integrity of China upheld.

Owing to doubts whether communications with Berlin were assured, Japan in order to insure the arrival of the ultimatum forwarded it to Berlin by six channels, including Washington, London and Stockholm. The government also notified Count Von Rex, German Ambassador to Japan, and likewise retarded the time limit for a reply until August 23.

Count Okuma, the Japanese Premier, today invited the peers, the newspaper men and the leading business men of Tokio to come to his office at noon, at 4 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon, respectively, when he made known to them the terms of the ultimatum and announced that he would give out the negotiations in connection with the alliance.

THE ULTIMATUM.

The ultimatum follows:

"We consider it highly important and necessary in the present situation to take measures to remove the causes of all disturbances of the peace in the Far East and to safeguard the general interests as contemplated by the agreement of alliance between Japan and Great Britain.

"In order to secure a firm and enduring peace in Eastern Asia, the establishment of which is the aim of the said agreement, the Imperial Japanese government sincerely believes it to be its duty to give the advice to the Imperial German government to carry out the following two propositions:

"First—To withdraw immediately from Japanese and Chinese waters German men-of-war and armed vessels of all kinds and to disarm at once those which cannot be so withdrawn.

"Second—To deliver on a date not later than September 15 to the Imperial Japanese authorities without condition of compensation the entire leased territory of Kiaou-Chau with a view to the eventual restoration of the same to China.

"The Imperial Japanese government announces at the same time that in the event of it not receiving by noon on August 23, 1914, an answer from the Imperial German government, signifying its unconditional acceptance of the above advice offered by the Imperial Japanese government, Japan will be compelled to take such action as she may deem necessary to meet the situation."

EXPRESSIONS OF REGRET.

Inspired utterances express regret at the inability to maintain neutrality, but say that Great Britain, the ally of Japan, is compelled to defend herself against the aggressions of Germany. Moreover, it is pointed out that Germany is making preparations day and night at Kiaou-Chau, where it is storing provisions, while its warships are securing the seas of Eastern Asia to the great detriment of commerce, and that its converted cruisers are seizing English merchant vessels. Such actions, it is argued, are directly calculated to disturb the peace of Eastern Asia and accordingly after full and frank communication with Britain, Japan has found herself compelled to send an ultimatum to Germany.

The Japanese War Office summoned all newspapermen at 1 o'clock this afternoon in order that they might receive instructions in regard to the publication of news in the event of a state of war coming into force.

The text of the Japanese ultimatum has created a profound impression, although it had been predicted that Japan was making ready to participate in the war.

COUNSEL CALM ATTITUDE.

Count Okuma, the Premier, and Takaaki Kato, the Foreign Minister, addressed meetings of merchants, members of Parliament and others, and counselled a calm attitude. They declared that Japan had no ambition for territorial aggrandizement.

In reply to a question propounded by a merchant, the Foreign Minister unequivocally denied reports that the United States had interfered in any way in the situation, and he added, the United States was not likely to. Later he said the American government would be fully informed as to the Japanese position. Copies of the Japanese ultimatum to Germany were handed to the Chinese government and the foreign legations today.

As it is not considered likely that Germany will comply with the Japanese demands, preparations are proceeding for a campaign by force of arms. The British regiments in China have received instructions to hold themselves in readiness for transportation.

The statement in the Japanese ultimatum that Japan proposed to return Tsing Tau to China is regarded hopefully by Chinese officials. The Chinese Foreign Board announced tonight that China realizes she cannot forcibly prevent transgression of her territory. She is, however, strengthening her forces at Tsinan with the view only to regulating the Chinese affairs. A protest will be lodged if the allies land troops beyond the fifty-kilometer limit allowed German troops for maneuvers.

According to Japanese figures, the German troops at Tsing-Tau number 3500. There are several hundred reservists at the various treaty ports. It is not known where the German fleet has gone. It left port about ten days ago with colliers.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Owing to cable interruption, Japan has not been able to deliver its ultimatum to Germany and the United States will undertake to communicate it to Berlin.

JAPANESE CRUISER TO FILL BUNKERS.

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 16.—That the Japanese armored cruiser Idzuma will not remain in port here for more than twenty-four hours after tonight was the information given out tonight by Capt. Moriyama, who is in command of the Mikado's warship. The officer declared he had received a telegram from Tokio ordering him to be ready to sail upon thirty minutes' notice.

After first asking permission of the United States government to be allowed to take on 500 tons of coal, the Japanese commander this morning altered his request and sought for permission to fill all bunkers with fuel. The request was granted and Japanese sailors worked steadily today loading coal.

Capt. Moriyama admitted that he did not believe the Idzuma would return to Japan for some time.

"Our mission is not yet completed," declared the Japanese officer, but he refused to state what the mission is.

GERMAN SPIES PAY PENALTY.

SPOKE POORLY IN ENGLISH, SAYS LIEGE JOURNALIST.

Belgian Newspaper Man States Kaiser's Emissaries Tried to Disguise Themselves as British Officers and Also as Women, but Were Soon Discovered and Shot.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 16.—The Daily Telegraph's Rotterdam correspondent says that many German spies were executed in and about Liege before the city fell into the hands of the Germans. He states that the representative of a local newspaper, who has just returned from the scene of the fighting, relates the following:

"The day before the Germans took the city it was reported that a party of English officers was arriving, whereat there was great rejoicing. But soon the cries of joy were turned into execrations, for the nine men who were walking about the city in English uniforms, spoke English with a pronounced German accent. Their identity was proved and all paid the customary penalty of spies.

"That same evening four ladies who were seen walking about excited the suspicion of the police owing to the unusual size of their hands, and the breadth of their shoulders. Investigation showed that they were German spies, whereupon they were shot.

"The next day, after brief negotiations with representatives of the German general, the local authorities agreed to allow the Germans to enter the town upon condition that there be no bombardment or destruction of property. The gasworks and several factories had previously been destroyed.

"The Belgians are using carrier pigeons to inform the forts of the German movements."

Japan's Ultimatum.

formidable foothold of German influence.

Meantime, Russia is no longer at Port Arthur, and England has given up her naval establishments at Wei-Hai-Wei. So, it is pointed out, that Germany remains practically alone among the European powers in North China, with Kiao-Chau in a commanding position at the entrance to the China Sea.

China has long sought to have this territory restored thus re-establishing her territorial integrity in North China.

GRAVE DEVELOPMENT.

Japan's ultimatum to Germany was received by American officials as one of the gravest developments in the war situation, bringing for the first time the great military power of the Far East into a range of conflict heretofore held within Europe.

The announcement of the ultimatum demanding the withdrawal of the German fleet from the Orient and the evacuation of Kiaou-Chau was fully confirmed in official and diplomatic advices received here. The American government has been informed of what has been done and has received assurances from Japan that every American interest will be amply safeguarded. The Japanese Embassy, while reticent, is known to be fully advised as to what has occurred, and to be in constant cable communication with the authorities at Tokio. Ambassador Chinda conferred with Secretary Bryan tonight and made the official announcement.

The salient features in this new and grave issue, as made known through authoritative sources, are as follows:

Japan's action was taken on the proposal of Great Britain and after full conferences which led to the determination that the Anglo-Japanese treaty of alliance applied to the present situation; the two allies, Great Britain and Japan, are therefore cooperating in the action now in progress.

Japan's ultimatum, is, in the first instance, a fulfillment of her part in the Anglo-Japanese alliance, but it is designed also—an issue having arisen—to terminate Germany's control of Kiaou-Chau.

TEXT OF ALLIANCE.

The text of the offensive and defensive alliance between Japan and Great Britain, under which Japan has now issued an ultimatum to Germany, became available here today and is as follows:

"AGREEMENT OF ALLIANCE BETWEEN THE UNITED KINGDOM AND JAPAN.

"Signed at London, July 13, 1911.

"PREAMBLE.

"The government of Great Britain and the government of Japan, having in view the important changes which have taken place in the situation since the conclusion of the Anglo-Japanese agreement of the twelfth of August, 1905, and believing that a revision of that agreement responding to such changes, would contribute to general stability and repose, have agreed upon the following stipulation to replace the agreement above mentioned, such stipulations having the same object as the said agreement, namely:

"(a.) The consolidation and maintenance of the general peace in the regions of Eastern Asia and of India.

"(b.) The preservation of the common interests of all powers in China by insuring the independence and integrity of the Chinese empire and the principle of equal opportunities for the commerce and industry of all nations in China.

"(c.) The maintenance of the territorial rights of the high contracting parties in the regions of Eastern Asia and of India and the defense of their special interests in the said regions.

"Article 1.—It is agreed that whenever, in the opinion of either Great Britain or Japan, any of the rights and interests referred to in the preamble of this agreement are in jeopardy, the two governments will communicate with one another fully and frankly, and will consider in common the measures which should be taken to safeguard those menaced rights or interests.

"Article 2.—If by reason of unprovoked attack or aggressive action, wherever arising, on the part of any power or powers, either high contracting party should be involved in war in defence of its territorial rights or special interests mentioned in the preamble of this agreement, the other high contracting party will at once come to the assistance of its ally, and will conduct the war in common, and make peace in mutual agreement with it.

"Article 3.—The high contracting parties agree that neither of them will, without consulting the other, enter into separate arrangements with another power to the prejudice of the objects described in the preamble of this agreement.

"Article 4.—Should either high contracting party conclude a treaty of general arbitration with a third power, it is agreed that nothing in this agreement shall entail upon such contracting party an obligation to go to war with the power with whom such treaty of arbitration is in force.

"Article 5.—The conditions under which armed assistance shall be afforded by either power to the circumstances mentioned in the present agreement, and the means by which such assistance is to be made available, will be arranged by the naval and military authorities of the high contracting parties, who will from time to time consult one another fully and freely upon all questions of mutual interest.

"Article 6.—The present agreement shall come into effect immediately after the date of its signature, and remain in force for ten years from that date.

"In case neither of the high contracting parties should have notified twelve months before the expiration of the said ten years the intention of terminating it, it shall remain binding until the expiration of one year from the day on which either of the high contracting parties shall have denounced it.

"But if, when the date fixed for its expiration arrives, either ally actually is engaged in war, the alliance shall, ipso facto, continue until peace is concluded.

ITALY TO PROCURE AMERICAN GRAIN.

ROME (via Paris) Aug. 16.—Although Italy has on hand grain sufficient to last several months, the closure of The Dardanelles, through which the bulk of importations come, and the suspension of exportations from Argentina compel the Italian people to turn to the United States for future provisions. The government has already received offers from the American market and the transportation of grain will be facilitated, as Italy will assume the war risks.

San Francisco Woman Tells of Her Experiences.

Says Lack of Gold Distresses Americans Most.

Mrs. Clerfayt States Lack of Food Is Feared.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Aug. 16.—Mrs. Carmenita Clerfayt, wife of Jules Clerfayt of the Southern Pacific, returned today to her home from Mons, Belgium, after a six-months' tour of that country, Switzerland and France. Mrs. Clerfayt is the first San Franciscan to return to this city from war-ridden Europe since the general declaration of hostilities, who witnessed any of the preliminary activities. She left her sisters, Mrs. R. E. Miller, wife of the president of the Owl Drug Company, and Mrs. N. Cowperthwaite, in Paris when she went to Mons to say good-by to her husband's family. While in Mons the war started. Mrs. Clerfayt was unable to return to Paris and since then has been trying to get into communication with her sisters.

Mrs. Clerfayt left Mons July 30 for Antwerp via Brussels, sailing from that country to New York on the Red Star liner Kroonland, August 1, reaching New York August 7.

"The people of Belgium are more afraid of being cut off from food supplies than they are of actual warfare," Mrs. Clerfayt said. "They still live in the horrible recollection of their last war, when thousands actually starved to death. The Belgians did not want war; it was thrust upon them in the maintaining of their neutrality. Every man, woman and child in that country will give up their lives before they will permit an invading army to pass through their land to the French capital.

"I left Mons on a Thursday. War was not declared until the next Saturday. While the Belgians were not expecting war, they were preparing to resist an invasion. All night long you could hear the tread of mobilising troops, the rumble of artillery and the clatter of the hoofs of cavalry horses.

"The country, from a military point of view, is well prepared for war, for the government has vast warehouses stored with guns, shells and cannon. Even though war had not been declared, the government had already begun seizing horses for the cavalry. The soldiers took every head of stock belonging to my husband's family in Mons and the authorities took a new auto belonging to another brother-in-law. The same general conditions prevail throughout Europe.

"Gold is the only medium of exchange in Europe. In Belgium their own silver and paper money virtually is valueless. When you go to a hostelry or a restaurant you must pay for whatever you want in advance and in gold. In that country United States gold pieces are accepted for their face value. Travelers' checks are not worth the paper they are written upon. It is the scarcity of gold among stranded Americans that has put them in their present predicament.

"From Brussels to Antwerp—a short ride—I was forced to change cars four times. The transportation of troops monopolized the railroads. When I left Belgium you could ride free on the trains.

"I was in Paris the night Mrs. Caillaux was freed. The riots were terrible. The woman would have been lynched had the populace been able to get hands upon her. Her acquittal met with general disfavor in France. I saw a Parisian mob overturn a cab in which it was thought the woman was being taken from the courthouse.

"It will be months before people fleeing from Europe will get their luggage. At Antwerp I saw thousands of trunks awaiting shipment. Over there I have one trunk, which I lost between Brussels and Antwerp. The woman who obtained a stateroom next to mine paid $150 above the regular price. Mine cost $100 extra. That shows what prices people are willing to pay to return home."

GERMAN CAMPAIGN FOR POLISH AID.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—A St. Petersburg dispatch to the Lloyd news says a newspaper correspondent who has just arrived from Warsaw reports that city quiet up to the time he left. He says that a lively campaign is being waged by German sympathizers along the border for the support of the Poles.

A Polish newspaper, printed under German supervision at Czestochowa, is publishing accounts of German successes. In its latest issue it reported that Sweden and Japan had declared war on Russia.

A proclamation also has been published, the correspondent adds, urging the Poles to support the Germans, declaring that the Germans would give lavish presents to the Poles if they would refrain from interfering with the German advance.

The Polish leaders in Warsaw, the correspondent asserts, are bitter against the Germans, owing to alleged severe treatment of Poles who fled from Germany when war was declared.

National.

AUTONOMY FOR POLAND PRAISED BY MME. CURIE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Aug. 16.—Madame Pierre Curie, the French scientist, who is a born Pole and whose maiden name was Sklodowska, interviewed by the Temps today in connection with the Russian proclamation promising autonomy to Poland, says:

"This seems to me to be the first important step toward the unity of Poland and reconciliation with Russia. This is necessary for the development of Polish national culture.

"Russia, as the protector of the Slav peoples, is undertaking a war to defend Servia and cannot give less to united Poland than Austrian Poland now receives.

"In our time when national feeling is so intense it is certain that lasting peace between the Polish people numbering 25,000,000 and Russia can only come upon the basis of respect for nationality.

"Germany has done more to destroy Polish national sentiment than she has done in a similar way in Alsace-Lorraine."

Prof. Babinski, a member of the French Academy of Medicine, said the Poles suffered greater oppression in Germany than elsewhere and that the union of the three divisions of that people in Russia, Austria and Germany would prove a veritable resurrection.

Battle Near Dinant.

every point the Germans are retreating.

"The notable success is in the region north of Luneville, which has been the scene of much hard fighting during the past week. It is a difficult piece of country.

"The French advance is traceable along three different lines. The Germans made an attempt to block the first line ten days ago by flooding the valley of Seille River, but failed. On the second line lies Muelhausen. On the third line the French at first were compelled to retire, but have now the upper hand.

"As a result of the fighting Saturday and Sunday the Germans were turned out at Blamont and Cirey with heavy losses, and the heights beyond are now occupied by the French."

OUR FORTS INTACT, BRUSSELS REPORTS.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—A Brussels dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company says:

"No German move is reported toward Brussels, and there does not seem to be further fear of such advance. The German tactics appear to have been badly disorganized by the resistance of the Liege forts, which are still perfectly intact and are resisting courageously.

"Since Friday the advance of the French has been hastened and has become very determined, with the result that the French victory at Dinant will prove important.

"The Belgian army is strongly entrenched to the north, and the German attack on Haelen and Diest has been broken up. It is, therefore, safe to conclude that the position of the allies is excellent. Every day that has passed has strengthened their chance of final victory."

WAR IS CARRIED INTO AFRICA.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—The following dispatch, received by wireless from Berlin, was given to the London newspapers tonight:

"The reports of a big Austro-Servian battle, circulated in Paris and London, are untrue.

"Two Russian cavalry divisions appeared in the east and, having set fire to the small towns of Marggrabowa, east of Prussia, withdrew over the frontier today.

"Unimportant engagements have taken place in Togoland (German West Africa) between patrols and invading French troops. The enemy lost three men killed, but there were no German losses. English troops also have entered Togoland, but have not come in contact with the Germans."

RALEIGH SIGHTS FRENCH CRUISER.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—Officers and men of the cruiser Raleigh, called from Mexican waters to prevent unneutral acts outside the Golden Gate, reported on their arrival early today that they had sighted a foreign warship seventy miles south of San Francisco at 2 a.m. today. This vessel was identified as the French cruiser Montcalm, a four-funneled man-o'-war of a type peculiar on the Pacific Coast as two funnels are placed forward and two aft.

The foreign cruiser was proceeding northward at a slow rate. She signaled with her lights, and the Raleigh answered with her name. Then the other veered slightly to the westward and was soon lost to sight.

BELGIANS REPORT LIEGE IS QUIET.

BRUSSELS (Via Paris) Aug. 16.—An official communication issued at noon today says:

"A German commander who had received a ball in the hip had his wound treated and continued to give orders from a wheeled chair.

"The Minister of War has no knowledge of the death of Gen. von Emmich, commander of the Tenth German Army Corps.

"Prices of provisions have been fixed today by royal decree."

MORGAN BOWS TO GOVERNMENT.

FINANCIER WILL ACCEDE TO WISHES NOT TO MAKE A FRENCH LOAN.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Acquiescence in the decision of the United States government as announced by Secretary of State Bryan yesterday that it would not favor loans to belligerents in the present European situation, was expressed in a wireless dispatch from J. P. Morgan on his yacht, the Corsair, relayed to New York by way of Boston today.

The message read:

"Referring to the subject of a French loan, J. P. Morgan said that the question had been asked of the administration, not because there was any question of the legality of a loan, but in order that any action to be taken might be in harmony with the ideas of the government.

"Of course, the question is disposed of by the opinion as expressed by the Secretary of State. The firm is so advising the French intermediaries who approached them in this matter."

STATE OF SIEGE IN BULGARIA.

AUSTRIANS SAID TO HAVE INVADED SERVIA AT SEVERAL POINTS.

AUSTRIANS FAIL TO PASS RIVER.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—A Reuter dispatch from Nish, under date of Aug. 15, says that at 11 o'clock Thursday night the Austrians tried to pass the Save River under protection of their artillery. The Servian artillery opened a well sustained fire which had a disastrous effect on the Austrians and compelled them to retire in disorder. Many of the Austrians who were unable to cross the river were taken prisoners.

The Servian guns sunk near Belgrade, the dispatch states, two boatloads of Austrian soldiers. All attempts of the Austrians to disembark on the Danube in the direction of Tekia have completely failed. The Austrians continue the bombardment of Belgrade mightily.

REPORT GERMANS CONCENTRATING.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 17 (4:10 a.m.)—Telegraphing from Brussels the Standard's correspondent says:

"As a result of a series of careful aeroplane reconnaisances it is believed by the Belgian leaders that the main part of the German army is now concentrated at Luxemburg.

"The German plan, revealed in the latest troop movement, indicates an approaching attempt to break through the center of the French line and deal a crushing blow at the most vital spot in France."

...MOUTH, (Eng.) Aug. 16.—The United States cruisers Tennessee and North Carolina dropped anchor in this harbor this evening. The Tennessee reached port at 7 o'clock and half an hour before her sister ship. This is accounted for by the fact the Tennessee has been under coal and is a bit foul. Boats quickly swarmed around the cruisers, their occupants waving handkerchiefs. Some of the Americans landed and greeted them warmly and those on board had the notice been given that they would have a formal and most cordial welcome.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 16—A dispatch received here from Vienna says the American Ambassador there has advised the Austrian Foreign Office that the Austrian Vice-Consul in St. Petersburg who was left by the Austrian Ambassador in charge of the archives and for whose safety the Russian Foreign Office accepted all responsibility, had been arrested as a prisoner of war. The protest of the American Ambassador in St. Petersburg having been without avail, it was stated that the Austrian government had been obliged to order the arrest of the Russian in charge of the Russian archives in Vienna and to dispose of the priest attached to the embassy and also the former Russian Consul.

REFUSES COAL TO LEIPZIG.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—Rear-Admiral Charles F. Pond, commandant of the Twelfth United States Naval District, notified today Acting Consul Erhardt von Schack of Germany that the navy department would not deliver to the German cruiser Leipzig, recently reported off this port, the remainder of 3000 tons of naval coal which the department had agreed to furnish while the Leipzig was on Mexican patrol duty. The reason given was that such agreements become void in time of war. Nine hundred tons of coal already had been furnished the Leipzig.

The Leipzig is expected to come into port soon to coal, according to the acting Consul of Germany, who has asked that the warship be permitted to take on such coal and provisions as the neutrality laws permit being bought from private sources.

Rear-Admiral Pond announced today that the Raleigh would lie in the stream and await further orders. The duty of watching for any infraction of the neutrality laws will be in the jurisdiction of the customs officials, said the admiral. The Raleigh will not establish a patrol of the harbor unless infractions become prevalent.

On Friday an aviator dropped three bombs during a flight across the city. One of these fell on the sidewalk of the bridge d'Omalius, injuring five men. The other bombs did no damage.

BRITISH CADETS ARE DISCIPLINED.

BREACHES SO FREQUENT THAT ARMY INSPECTOR HAS TO INTERVENE.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, July 26.—Breaches of discipline at the British military school at Sandhurst, which is the West Point of the British army, have been so numerous lately that Gen. Sir Charles Douglas, chief of the Imperial General Staff, who recently inspected the school, sharply reminded the students that they were not merely public school students but officers of the British army. During the past year there have been two expulsions and a greater number of suspensions than ever before.

In contrast with the strict discipline which is understood here to be enforced at the American military establishment on the Hudson, the student fun and escapades at Sandhurst are as common and as turbulent as at the public schools or average American college.

The local picture palace and a theater were recently put out of bounds at Sandhurst on account of the rough behavior of the students, and the most popular hotel there has suffered the same prohibition. According to the newspapers, hazing has been unusually frequent.

Mock funerals are sometimes awarded the popular men when they are separated from the institution. One cadet was given a funeral with full military honors, the "corpse" driving to the station in a cab with his riding boots hung reserved across the charger in the shafts.

MRS. WILLIAMS FOR FAIR PLAY.

Says Discrimination Against Her Sex Must Stop.

Shows Necessity for Women in Prison Reform Work.

Santa Cruz Audience Asked Pertinent Questions.

SANTA CRUZ, Aug. 16.—Mrs. Helen K. Williams spoke from the bandstand on the beach here today to an enthusiastic audience of about 6000. Her topic was "Prison Reform."

Mrs. Williams urged women to work hard for votes the coming days and said that encouraging reports from all counties were coming in. She said women were most needed in prison reform work. They have been discriminated against as women on the prison board.

She declared nothing was more Republican than standing for the only women candidates on the Republican ticket and nothing more progressive than taking such a stand, that there must be something good in the Republican party or the "Progressives." Lieutenant-Governor would not seek the party nomination, although he called the Republicans rotten.

"Why does Eshleman want to give up a $10,000 job for a salary of $4000 per year?" she asked.

Mrs. Williams attacked her opponents and wanted to know what their political pledges were while they were chasing each other up and down the State asking the citizens to vote for them without telling said citizens what they intended to do if elected.

Mrs. Williams repeated the statement that she intended to advocate and work for bills in the interest of humanity at large, especially would she fight for a pension bill for the aged. She begged women not to be deceived by the note of warning sent out by her opponents that if the Governor should die the State would be ruled over by a governess. Mrs. Williams said that if such should happen she would call to her aid the best-trained minds in the State to advise her, but as the four men running for Governor on the Republican ticket were all strong, husky fellows, there was little danger of it.

Mrs. Williams addressed old soldiers at Yountsville Saturday and 1000 inmates pledged their support. She spoke Saturday night before the Republican Club of Berkeley. After speaking one hour and a quarter she was cheered fifteen minutes by the 400 present. She leaves Santa Cruz Monday morning to speak in Watsonville and Salinas and expects to reach Los Angeles Wednesday morning. Capt. Fredericks and family are also in Santa Cruz at the Casa del Rey Hotel.

BANDITS ARE KILLED.

Robbers Whose Exploits Have Caused Eleven Deaths Finally Slain in West Virginia.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WILLIAMSON (W. Va.) Aug. 16.—The pursuit of the five bandits who last Friday killed Joseph Shaler, paymaster of the Glen Alum Fuel Company and his two companions and stole the company payroll of $8000, ended today when the mountain cave into which the desperadoes had retreated was dynamited and the men killed. The deaths of the bandits brought the fatalities to eleven.

The desperadoes fled to the mountains Friday night. In a battle last night a detective was killed and two deputy Sheriffs were wounded, probably fatally. The bandits then retreated to a cave in the mountains, where two more detectives were killed.

The attacking force today began throwing dynamite bombs against the mountainside and finally a heavily-charged missile was hurled into the cave, where it exploded. The rifle fire of the bandits then ceased. The posse entered the cave and found five mutilated bodies. The valise which had contained the company's payroll, was found in the cave. Five hundred dollars of the $8000 was missing.

The bandits were recognized as Italian miners, who had been discharged from the employ of the Glen Alum Fuel Company. It was impossible tonight to learn their names.

FIGHTS BURGLAR ON ROOF.

Troy Dentist Falls to Ground During Scuffle and Breaks His Back. Robber Seriously Injured.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TROY (N. Y.) Aug. 16.—In a scuffle with a burglar late last night Dr. Charles G. Myers, one of the most prominent dentists in this city, fell from a roof on which his office windows open, breaking his back. He died within two hours. The burglar also fell from the roof and was seriously, if not fatally, injured.

"DRYS" CHOOSE SULZER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SYRACUSE (N. Y.) Aug. 16.—Former Gov. Sulzer was selected as the Prohibition party's candidate for Governor at a meeting of the party's State Committee held here last night. Dr. Charles E. Welsh of Westfield had previously been named as the candidate, but the members of the committee voted to displace him in favor of Mr. Sulzer.

Kaiser to the Front.

LONDON, Aug. 17 (1:55 a.m.)—An Amsterdam dispatch to the Central News says Berlin reports that the German Emperor has left for the front.

A Reuter dispatch from Paris says a message received there from Berlin announces that the German Emperor started this morning for Mainz with the general staff.

LIGHTNING HITS OIL TANK.

TAMPICO, Aug. 15, (Via Laredo, Tex., Aug. 16.)—Lightning today fired stored oil near the Portrero de Llano oil well, owned by the Pearson interests, and tonight the fire threatens the well itself. The Portrero well produces about $10,000,000 worth of oil annually.

SONORA'S NEW REVOLUTION.

Many Mexicans at Nogales Cross the Border Now—Gov. Maytorena and Col. Calles Are Fighting.

NOGLEAS (Sonora, Mex.) Aug. 16.—With the battle at Llano between soldiers of Col. P. Elias Calles and those of Gov. Jose M. Maytorena, of Sonora, the expected counter revolution in Mexico was generally regarded today as having begun. The fight at Llano was hardly more than a skirmish; there were only a few casualties, but the troops of Calles retreated to Cassita, burning all bridges behind them, while the Governor's forces bombarded Santa Anna, where it was reported, several women and children were among the slain.

Maytorena's troops were reported today as making rapid progress toward the border. At the same time Calles rushed more than 1500 men from Agua Prieta to Naco, aboard special trains that came from Cananea during the night. All rolling stock on the Naco-Nogales road was seized by Calles.

Public funds which Maytorena demanded of the Mexican border officials were hurried over to the American side of the international line last night, and large number of Mexicans followed hastily today on receipt of information that a new revolt had begun.

It was rumored here today that American Consul Hostetter had been placed under arrest at Hermosillo, capital of Sonora. There was no confirmation, and the report was not credited.

GERMAN TRADE AT STANDSTILL.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—The correspondent of the Chronicle sends an interview with an unnamed American business man, who just arrived at the French capital from Berlin by the way of Hamburg and Vienna. He says:

"Business of every sort is at a standstill throughout Austria and Germany. Business men frankly recognize that the war whether successful or not has delivered a terrible blow to German trade for generations.

"In Germany's best markets her goods will be tabooed for many years. The state of uneasiness in Berlan is increasing constantly. No news appears except that issued by the official agency and this is meager.

"Both Germany and Austria are husbanding their food resources carefully. A severe pinch in this respect probably will be felt soon.

"In Berlin the most extraordinary rumors are in circulation, such as that a revolution has occurred in Russia and that great fires are burning in Paris.

"The feeling against England is most bitter, but little interest is taken in the campaign against Russia, which most German people seem to regard as unimportant.

"The city is completely isolated from the outside world. No mail has arrived in a fortnight from England, Russia, France or Belgium. Newspapers, mails and telegraphic information from Austria is stopped."

FRENCH EMPLOY CRUSHING FORCE.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—The correspondent of the Times at Namur, describing the plan of battle at Dinant Saturday, when he says the French defeated the Germans and drove them from the place, states:

"The general scheme of the French plan seemed to be to turn the Germans out of Dinant by a crushing force after having first allowed them to enter it, and secondly, to drive them back generally towards Rochefort, a town twenty-six miles south of Huy.

"In both objects I believe they succeeded. It was a magnificent sight to see the French chasseurs advance, looking like a huge flock of crows on a yellow field."

Biggest Railroad Tunnel.

[Philadelphia Ledger:] The Canadian Pacific Railroad announces that by 1916 the double-track tunnel, five and one-half miles long, through the Selkirk Mountains, will be completed. This tunnel will be the longest on the Western hemisphere and is being built at a cost of about $10,000,000. It is to be electrified.

By placing the tunnel in operation the Canadian Pacific will shorten its main line to the Pacific Coast by six miles, will eliminate five and one-half miles of snow sheds, reduce the peak of grade 513 feet and do away with all but six miles of 2.9 grade. On its entire system of more than 12,000 miles in Canada, it will have but a dozen miles of 2.2 gradient. The latest systems of electrification are to be used in operating the trains through this tunnel, of which virtually all is in Mt. Macdonald, in the southern part of the province of British Columbia.

This mountain is one of the giant peaks of the Canadian Rockies, and has for years offered an expensive impediment to the highest efficiency in railway operation through the Canadian Rockies. The present route, however, will be used for the summer tourist travel, as, though presenting difficulties from an operating standpoint, it is very beautiful.

The tunnel will be used in winter by all trains, and in the summer by fast mail, express and freight trains. It is one of the largest pieces of construction work on the continent, and the method of proceedings is attracting engineers' attention throughout the world. It is being built under the direction of George Bury, vice-president, and J. G. Sullivan, oldest engineer of the Canadian Pacific in Winnipeg.

This Man Saved This Man Didn't

It is hard to realize what Macaulay called "the present value of a distant advantage." This is seen in the way so many persons neglect to save money in days of prosperity to make provision for a future day of need.

The only way to have comfort in the future is to capitalize part of your income now by building up a reserve fund to work for you when you can no longer work for yourself.

Start Saving Now—never was a better time

Many people think it hard to start a savings account—something to be done only when a considerable amount of money is available for the purpose. This is a serious mistake and is undoubtedly the reason why so many people never begin saving.

At this bank you may open a Term Deposit Account with as little as $1—and your money will immediately begin earning 4% interest, compounded semi-annually.

CAPITAL READY FOR CARRANZA.

Chief of Constitutionalists Will Enter Tomorrow.

Magnificent Private Train to Be Sent for Him.

Gen. Villa and His Army to Be of Those Present.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 16.—Gen. Venustiano Carranza, chief of the Constitutionalists, will enter Mexico City next Tuesday, it was announced today. By that time it is expected that all the Constitutionalist troops, including Gen. Francisco Villa, with 20,000 men, will have arrived, and that the members of Gen. Carranza's Cabinet also will be here.

Troops continued to pour into this city today to augment the 12,000 Gen. Obregon led in Saturday. There was not a single case of drunkenness or disorder in the capital today. The saloons continued closed by direction of Gen. Cosio Robelio, the new Inspector-General of Police.

A magnificent private train, formerly belonging to President Diaz, was sent yesterday to Tlalnapantla, eight miles from the city, for use by Gen. Carranza, who will wait there until his entry into the capital.

A report has been received here that thirty foreigners, including women and children, are held prisoners by Emilio Zapata's men near Miraflorea. At the request of the diplomatic corps a body of Constitutionalist troops has been sent from Gen. Blanco's brigade to Miraflores to afford protection to the foreigners and to check any outbreak.

It was reported here today that 5000 Federal troops at Guadalupe had issued a manifesto in which they stated that they would not abide by the peace treaty, but would continue fighting. As they are virtually surrounded by Constitutionalists the report was not taken seriously by those in authority.

Three Constitutionalist soldiers were executed at Xochimilico Saturday for disturbing the property of foreigners.

OBREGON MASTER OF MEXICO CITY.

BY GEORGE ADDISON HUGHES.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 16.—Gen. Alvaro Obregon with his field glasses still strapped over his campaign-worn khaki, sat today in the hall of state sipping wine with one hand and eating a cream puff with the other, as sombreroed zealots thundered out admiration in the Zocola below. As they cried for their newest conqueror he five times or more replenished his hand from the nearest cream puff platter.

After attacking the Mexican press as the tools of Huerta, Obregon addressed himself particularly to the poor, saying: "I also worked a plough to earn my daily bread, and as my life was then it shall remain."

Obregon then received in a few words from Gov. Iturbide the last remnant of the Huerta government, made him acknowledgement and reached for a cream puff.

KAISER'S HEIR IS CRITICISED.

Crown Prince Approves the Prediction of Big War.

Also Applauds Attack Upon Government Policies.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BERLIN, July 15.—The recent indiscretions of the Crown Prince, already briefly reported by cable, became the subject of uneasy comment from a great majority of the newspapers of all shades of political opinion. Only certain reactionary and chauvinistic papers have approved mildly or kept silent.

Some of the strictures on the future Emperor were decidedly sharp, the Vorwaerts, for instance, saying: "We are all acquainted with the political tastes of the Crown Prince, and we do not care to waste discussion over them, any more than over his asthetic tastes, which are about on the same level."

Two telegrams sent by the Crown Prince were the foundation for the criticism of him. One, to a retired lieutenant-colonel, Frobenius, read: "I have read your splendid pamphlet, 'The German Empire's Hour of Fate,' with the greatest interest, and wish for it the widest circulation among the German people." To Prof. Gustav Buchholtz he wired: "Have just read your pamphlet, 'Bismarck and Ourselves,' and find it very fine."

"The German Empire's Hour of Fate" is an alarmist publication predicting a great war for 1915. Among other things on which the author bases his prediction is France's recent change from a two to a three-year military service. The land, says Frobenius, cannot stand this sacrifice for any length of time, and it follows that the action can be nothing but a preparation for wreaking the vengeance which France has longed for since the defeat of 1871.

"Bismarck and Ourselves" is, from beginning to end, an attack on the existing government of Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, and on "the other weak governments we have had since Bismarck." It asserts that Germany is unmistakably becoming democratized and that the end of it all will be parliamentary government, which Bismarck so resolutely and successfully opposed.

The Crown Prince's praise of works containing matter of this kind is taken by the press as meaning that he agrees with the authors' statements. The matter has refreshed recollections of the Crown Prince's telegram of protest against the Chancellor in the Brunswick case, of his criticism of former Chancellor von Buelow, whom he is said to have referred to as a "rope dancer," and of his open approval in the Reichstag during the Moroccan crisis of von Heydebrand's stormy attack on Bethmann-Hollweg's policies, as well as of many minor occurrences showing his disapproval of the policies of the government, which are, of course, the policies of the Emperor.

The Times is the only newspaper in Los Angeles that does not make a practice of permitting agents, newsboys and dealers to return unsold copies of its issue. Neither does it misbrand or predate its editions, or inflate its circulation by printing more copies than are actually necessary to supply its patrons.

The Times' entire circulation is practically net, and it is more genuine and superior in every respect to that of any other local newspaper.

Some Six Thousand Are Available and Experiments Have Found Their Services Will Save the Lives of Many Men Who Would Otherwise Die from Exposure or Neglect.

[Pittsburgh Gazette-Times:] Germany has commenced the task of training 2000 "Red Cross" dogs for the army. These dogs are to become a regular part of the organization of field hospital corps. Their duty will be to search the battlefields for wounded. In past wars large numbers of wounded were left lying on the battlefields because they could not be found before night set in and thousands of men died whose lives might have been saved if they had been brought to the field hospitals.

German military authorities have long recognized that in modern battles with the firing line often extending over a front of several miles, the chances of finding the wounded, especially at night, are even less than they were in the battles of the past. The problem of how to save the lives of those who could recover if they could be found has long engaged their attention. All other means failing, the idea was hit upon to try dogs. The experiment was successful from the start. It was found that dogs could be trained for Red Cross and hospital service as readily as for police duties.

Once convinced that dogs could render valuable aid to the field hospital corps on the field of battle the military authorities encouraged the idea. Recently a number of societies were formed to train Red Cross dogs, these societies have now formed an association, which is headed by the Grand Duke of Oldenburg and a breeding and training station established.

It is estimated that the army would need 2000 to 3000 dogs in case of war. It was found impractical to train at one dog farm or station, so large a number of dogs and maintain them in idleness while waiting to be sent out as dogs of mercy when the dogs of war are let loose. How to obtain and train 2000 to 3000 dogs and what to do with them in time of peace was the problem confronting the Red Cross dog societies; someone had the happy idea to utilize the police dogs. That solved the problem. There are about 3000 police dogs in Germany. It was believed that employed in tracking thieves in ordinary times of peace these dogs could be turned into a Red Cross dog corps when war comes.

An appeal was issued by the Association of Red Cross Dog Owners, headed by the Grand Duke of Oldenburg, president of the association. An interesting meet has just been held in the grand ducal park, Rastede, in Oldenburg. Fourteen regular police dogs from Cologne, Hamburg, Frankfort, Berlin and other cities were tried out in Red Cross work, together with a number of real Red Cross dogs.

The government was so interested, that it sent representatives from the ministry of war to report on the experience. The police dogs had been given several weeks training in Red Cross work. Much to the gratification of all present, the police dogs located supposedly wounded persons lying in ditches, bushes and grass, as quickly and readily as did the real Red Cross dog trained for that purpose only. "Dog material," being at hand, training on a large scale of Germany's police dogs has commenced, that they may be ready for their errands of mercy on the battlefield.

Aside from the police dogs, inquiry inaugurated by those behind the Red Cross dog movement, developed that about 5000 dogs in private possession also are available. This would mean that Germany could muster a corps of 8000 Red Cross dogs in war when once trained. Military authorities in England, France and Austria are watching the German experiments with much excitement.

Something Worth Telling.

[Pearson's Weekly:] Snooker (fiercely:) "Your fowls have been over the wall and scratched my garden."

Chanks (coolly:) "Well, there's nothing extraordinary in that. It's their nature to scratch. Now if your garden were to come over the wall and scratch my fowls, it would be extraordinary and something worth communicating."

LAND THEIR MAN IN GRANT'S PASS.

Real Estate Man Located After Long Chase.

Oslin Jackson Accused of Swindling Operations.

Four Suicides Said to Have Followed His Acts.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

GRANT'S PASS (Or.) Aug. 16.—Officers from New York are en route, according to telegrams received today, to take back Oslin M. Jackson, arrested here last Friday after a long pursuit. Jackson is specifically charged with grand larceny in the sum of $85,000, but his operations are said to have defrauded victims in New York of $1,500,000.

C. T. Hass, a detective, made the arrest. It is he who has tracked Jackson since January, 1913, and who finally located him here on a ranch, which Jackson had purchased.

According to Hass, Oslin M. Jackson is the younger brother of Edgar P. Jackson, ex-president of the Jackson Bros. Realty Company of New York, and now serving a five-year term in Sing Sing for swindling in a real estate deal.

The two Jackson brothers in 1911 and 1912 had offices on Fifth avenue and were active in Long Island and Yonkers real estate. In July, 1913, they closed their doors and disappeared. Edgar was shortly afterward indicted on several counts. It was reported at the time that the swindling operations of the brothers and their associates had been as high as $1,500,000, and four persons were said to have committed suicide in despondency over large sums lost through the transactions.

Mrs. E. A. Berry, a widow, who killed herself in her apartment January, 1913, was the fourth. She is said to have lost $42,334, her entire fortune, through the Jackson Bros. Realty Company.

Oslin M. Jackson had not been heard from in New York since July, 1913. Previously he had lived in Brooklyn, and at one time he was a clerk in the War Department in Washington. It is said that he was indicted when his brother was, but as he could not be found the indictment was not made public. Several other men associated with the Jacksons have been indicted and convicted of swindling.

Jackson is alleged to have deserted a wife and family when he fled. A woman accompanied him here and has been living at his ranch.

OAKLAND HARBOR WORK.

Visit of Army Board of Engineers Gives Impetus to Development of East Bay Shore.

OAKLAND, Aug. 16.—"The important harbor development of Oakland and other parts of the east side of the bay is not for the benefit of Oakland only, but for the entire State of California and for the nation."

This was the emphatic declaration of Lieut.-Col. Thomas H. Rees, who expressed the opinion of the members of the United States Army Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors, after a thorough inspection of Oakland's inner and outer harbor and the work done on it by both the government and the city.

While the board did not, of course, express any official opinion on what further appropriations would be made for the harbor, the general opinion was shown by an unofficial statement at a luncheon following the inspection of Col. William M. Black, president of the board, who said:

"What we have seen of Oakland's harbor is a revelation. Fully as we have been informed regarding the work that has been done and going on and is projected here, what we have seen far exceeds anything we had imagined."

The elaborate plans, outlined by Col. Rees, for the ultimate development of a great and comprehensive harbor for the east bay shore, from Ashland to Richmond, have received a big impetus, it is believed, from the visit of the board.

CALIFORNIA SUGAR BEETS.

Crop Expected to Mature in September Will Be Slightly Larger Than Last Year's.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—The sugar beets in California are not yet ready for the refinery season and few will be before September, according to statements of sugar experts here last night. The total crop will be slightly larger than last year, it was said, owing chiefly to the increased production in Southern California.

UNEARTH PLOT OF MEXICANS.

GALLUP (N. M.) Aug. 16.—The discovery of a tunnel 100 feet long, dug from inside the stockade at Ft. Wingate, led today to a doubled guard over the 4000 Mexican refugees interned at the fort.

The refugees had been permitted to build adobe houses for shelter as cooler weather approached. The dirt from the tunnel was used in making adobe bricks.

Concerning Blunders.

[Chicago Journal:] A certain magazine which has criticised President Wilson's Mexican policy very sharply is now compelled to admit that this policy is achieving success. But it quite declines to give the President credit. The best it can say is that he has made a "very fine blunder," which in some occult fashion is turning out to the helping of the cause of permanent peace. If the President has "blundered" in Mexico, it is a pity he cannot teach the secret of blundering to most of the chancelleries of Europe. He has worked his way through a trying situation without war, while highly trained and no doubt extremely "correct" European diplomats have allowed their continent to be brought to the brink of appalling strife without rhyme or reason. A few "blunders" of the Wilson brand, emanating from Berlin and Vienna, might save a million lives.

KEEPING TAB ON TIPPERS.

Labels Put on a Traveler's Baggage Tell the "Fraternity" Whether He Is Liberal or Stingy.

[Providence Journal:] "Did you notice how the porter set that bag down?" asked the man who travels, of a chance acquaintance with whom he was talking in a Providence hotel lobby.

"Can't say that I did," replied the local man, who had just finished reading the morning paper. "I don't suppose he let it down as if it contained a dozen fresh eggs he had just paid cold cash for."

"That isn't what I mean. Take a look at the row of bags and notice the one that was just placed there. It projects about four inches beyond the line of the others. That's significant."

"Are you a detective?" asked the man of the chance acquaintance. He was interested and perhaps just a little suspicious.

"Oh, no," the other laughed. "I was just reminded of a similar incident that was brought to my attention in a New York hotel, and I presume that the same system is used here by the hotel porters."

"System of what, pray tell?"

"System of spotting and indicating to the other porters that the owner of the bag never tips. We'll see what sort of a fellow claims that bag, and then I think it will prove whether I am right or wrong. He should be a miserly person, and this will doubtless show in his face or general appearance. Here he comes now."

Sure enough. A pinched-face individual, who looked as if he would beat the trolley company out of a nickel if the car he was on was marked "heaven," side-swiped up to the row of bags as if trying to avoid attracting attention. He picked up his bag and started for the elevator. A porter interrupted his progress and asked for his check.

"This checking system is a nuisance," he muttered as he pulled out the brass coin along with some change. He picked out the check and thrust the coins into his pocket.

"He's been here before," remarked the stranger as the porter let the anti-tipper carry his own bag into the elevator. "Like the mark on the front gate of the farmhouse that identifies for tramps the farmers who keep dangerous dogs, the marks on the baggage will be interpreted by the employees of the hotels to read 'non-tipper,' 'moderate tipper,' 'uncertain tipper,' 'generous tipper,' etc.

"These marks, in most cases, are determined by the position of the pasters that the porters slap on your baggage to advertise the hotels. For instance, if the paster is put on 'right side up with care' that means that the owner of the baggage is a generous tipper. It takes pains to put the paster on with even keel and indicates that the owner is worth taking pains for.

"Now, if the left-hand corner of the paster is dropped it means the owner is an uncertain quantity in tipping. Sometimes he does and sometimes he doesn't.

"Why, a man who doesn't tip today never gets any service at all. But it is only the tightwad who fails to conform to this modern custom, which, of course, goes to support the hotel employees who would not be able to support themselves, let alone their families, without the additional income that results from the tipping system."

The Rhode Islander was visibly impressed by the information gained from the man who travels. "Let's drop down in the grill and have a little refreshment," he suggested.

"I should be glad to," said the traveler, "but step over here while I get my bag. I have got to take the next train for Boston."

The stranger gave his check to the porter, who went almost to the end of the line of bags and picked up the one that projected about four inches beyond the others. He removed the corresponding check, and, with a flourish, handed the bag to the man who travels, and as he did so exhibited a paster of the Providence hotel that almost covered one side—and it was upside down.

"That's one on me," said the owner of the bag as he slipped the porter a half dollar to cover up. "I guess the drinks are on me, too."

THE GREATER HEROISM.

Medals for the Brave in Emergencies, but Nothing for the Mother Keeping Little Flock Together.

[Indianapolis News:] Volunteers needed for the army for a dangerous service. Instantly there spring forward ten times the number of men required. Those selected become heroes by their choice, on the spur of the moment. The United States needed men to sink the Merrimac in the neck of the channel of Santiago Harbor. Hobson and his brave comrades sank the vessel and bottled up the Spanish fleet. All the world proclaimed them heroes all, which they were.

But the world hears little of the everyday acts of heroism, stretching over years instead of hours. What of the widow left with a family of small children, and no money? There can be no trumpet sounding the "Charge" to lend courage; no knowledge that the eyes of the world are focused on her; she does not march to the battle with banners flying, stirring music urging her on. She is face to face not with an act of bravery that may be consummated in a few minutes or a few hours and that will be blazoned through all the land—she is confronted with a struggle that must go on for years, with nothing to lend strength but her love for those for whom she must labor.

The charge of the light brigade at Balaklava! "Cannon to the right of them, cannon to the left of them, volleyed and thundered." The "noble six hundred" were in the heat of battle. They were filled with the unholy battle fire. Inspiration could point to nothing else than "to do or die." John Paul Jones's "I have not yet begun to fight" deserves no greater place in the annals of heroism than the silent resolve of the widow: "I'll keep them all together, God giving me strength." It is premeditated heroism that enables a mother to say that—premeditation that sees the long, weary struggle, perhaps days over the washtub, back-breaking task; mending the children's clothes long after the wearers have been tucked into bed; twelve and sixteen hours of work a day; scheming and planning, instead of sleeping, in order to keep the little flock together. There can be no thought of self for the mother who elects to keep her children together. She is and must be "thankful to work for all the seven, trusting the rest to One in heaven."

There are dark days in this self-imposed task—days when it seems that life is not worth the struggle, days when it seems that flesh can not stem the tide, days when there is no vista beyond the dull, dreary monotony of doing for a brood that is too young to appreciate the herculean struggle.

There is no grateful nation to present the mother with a medal. Her heroism will go unsung. But somewhere, the One who notes the sparrow's fall has weighed the war-time hero and the little mother, and in writing in the Book of Gold the world may be sure that the little mother's name is not going to be the last on the page. For how could the heroism of battle be possible without the foundation of the heroism of the little mother?

MRS. BORTHWICK LAID TO REST

Man She Eloped With Present at Funeral.

First Husband Again Near Man Who Took Her.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SPRING GREEN (Wis.) Aug. 16.—Edwin H. Cheney and Lloyd Wright, former friends estranged by Wright's elopement with Cheney's wife, came here today to pay last respects to the victims yesterday of a crazed negro, made arrangements for burial in Chicago. Cheney's wife, Mammah Borthwick Cheney, who since Cheney obtained a divorce in 1911, became Mrs. Wright's bespoiler was murdered yesterday, he said simply:

"I have two children who were murdered here," Cheney said.

Mrs. Borthwick was buried without any religious service in a little cemetery near the cottage built for her by Wright. Only a few mourners as the coffin was lowered into the grave just at sunset. Wright, for whose wife Cheney abandoned his children years ago, stayed away. Cheney and his wife, relatives and friends, were present, three of his relatives.

Arrangements for the burial of the four other victims will be completed.

GERMANS ARE GOOD PUPILS.

Four Regular Meals a Day Between Times a Man Is Fed Then Gathered In.

[Irvin S. Cobb in Saturday Evening Post:] The Germans eat a great variety of things to eat and it is always eating time with them. It is not eating then he is thinking of. Yet in these regards the German only apes his betters. The Frenchman will lap at breakfast, but only an hour the German leaves the table lassitudely distanced, far is this due to his talents in the line of that the average German has a double chin running all the way down to his neck, and four rolls of fat on the back of his neck, all closely cropped and shaved, so as to bring out the full beauty and symmetry of the figure that makes him look like an earthquake had struck him and everything on the top floor of him had all fallen through into the dining-room.

Your true Berliner eats four regular daily meals—four hearty meals, all large ones; and in between he now and then makes a meal, for instance, about 10 o'clock in the morning he knocks off for a bite and has a few cups of coffee and some sweet cake with whipped cream on it.

Then about 1 o'clock in the afternoon he browses a bit, just to whet up his appetite for lunch, though, is but a mouthful or two of Bismarck herring and a few some more coffee and more cake, one thing and another preliminary to the real meal that will be coming along a little later on.

Between acts at the theater he excuses himself and goes out to prepare his stomach for supper, which will follow at 11 o'clock. It consists of two or three dishes of cold meat, beer and nibbling at more bits as a few links of cervelat sausage or the upper half of a Westphalia ham.

There are forty-seven different separate varieties of German sausage and three of them are smoked Westphalia ham, is my own favorite, greatly overrated. It is a fraud, a Westfailure, was the last part, where it belongs.

In Germany, however, in the pheasant season, which is the young cabbage, which is in season pleniful. The other dish is that the cuisine of the German restaurant is the confounded nerve it has in our money. It costs as much for pheasant and half a dozen bags—say enough for a good meal for two tolerably hungry and a child.

MIRACLES OF THE STAGE.

The Coming of Spring, the Renewal of Life That Most Profound Seasonal Change.

[Chicago Record-Herald:] It is a matter of fact, plainly enough, that we are influenced by weather more than we thought. The little weather prophet in our gardens forces us to realize that the snow is entire to the yellow blossoms. Even more noticeable is the Chinese tree, which naturally in the latter part of autumn activity when most other trees are a dormant state. Almost overnight its foliage, the pretty wood decks many a wall with a mass of bloom right in the very heart of winter. Quite a number of common trees, such as the maple and the privet, come into bloom through the winter in the south, but they do not show the beauty and gorse keeps on blooming all the time, so that it is not necessary to wait for that plants rise in the spring, but they revive in the spring when the weather will not allow them to do otherwise.

All through the long winter the seeds lie buried in the earth before the weather is mild enough for small stems are thrust up through the ground with the first warm days. Some mysterious force seems to be at work making the seeds grow that the sprouts may be ready for the spring. It is a wonderful thing, this water plants, which must pass the surface of the water before the first cold weather stretches across the lakes. In the autumn the water plants have grown to the depth of the lake, and in the spring, if they are to grow, they must reach the surface before the first cold weather. To this she adds the fact that the seeds have vitality. Miss Slosson has the luck to command. Miss Slosson, as the daughter was consists pleasure every moment she has little to do and nothing to do, yet her attitude is so perplexing that it carries a vast understanding. In the last part of the play she is called upon for a scene that is both vivid and strong. To this she adds depth and power to the point of unmistakable finality. Miss Slosson has a way which should be more among real leading women. She is the faculty of remaining herself instead of actually being the woman she is trying to represent. She is not a player, but the woman who lives in the scenes of the play. She is sufficiently adequate yesterday. She is grateful to "His Son" for having Donald Bowles in a good part, and not one to which he is educated, and for giving us a glimpse of Harry S. Bigelow in a part of dignity and power which he executes with the ease and flavor of a true artist of the school.

THE STORY.

Bagot, the shoe-manufacturer, has a clever young employee who wants to marry his daughter, but the stern old fellow drives the youth away. The first act, after a stormy scene, witnesses his undoing, as the boy invents a magic patent which helps revolutionize the shoe industry and ruins the old man's factory until the boy can buy it out.

The son, of course, goes to smash. It is two years before the stubborn father-in-law can bring the boy home and make his doting family happy.

The play has character and personality and I doubt if any actor in the world could give these a more consistent flavor or greater enthusiasm than Henry Kolker. At first it struck me that possibly he over-emphasized the quality of his affections for his family, but at the outset of the play, but he is taking a big rough part demand absolute abandonment to the feeling. Besides, Kolker is a man of keen energy and is able to carry his audience on a rushing tide of emotion to any point demanded. I think that the people were astounded at the overwhelming vitality. Unless I am much mistaken, from the very outset, his outpour of feeling never once violated the control of art.

FINE SUPPORT.

Better support a leading man selected has the luck to command. Miss Slosson, as the daughter was consists pleasure every moment she has little to do and nothing to do, yet her attitude is so perplexing that it carries a vast understanding. In the last part of the play she is called upon for a scene that is both vivid and strong. To this she adds depth and power to the point of unmistakable finality. GERMANS ARE GOOD EATERS

Four Regular Meals a Day Between Times a Bite Is Not Then Gathered In.

[Irvin S. Cobb in Saturday Evening Post:] The Englishman has a great variety of things to eat when he is always eating them; and so is not eating them he is very sorry. Yet in these regards the German excels him. The Englishman has a cup of tea at breakfast, but after that hour the German leaves him hopelessly distanced, far in the rear. This is due to his talents in this line, that the average Berliner has a noble chin running all the way down and four rolls of fat on the back of his neck, all closely clipped and shaved, so as to bring out their beauty and symmetry; and by the figure that makes him look as though an earthquake had shaken everything on the top floor and had all fallen through into the living-room.

Your true Berliner eats his regular daily meals—four in number, all large ones; and in between he now and then gathers a snack. For instance, about 10 o'clock in the morning he knocks off for a while and has a few cups of hardware coffee and some sweet, sticky cake with whipped cream on it.

Then about 4 o'clock in the afternoon he browses a bit, just to whet up his appetite for dinner. This, though, is but a snack—say, a couple of Bismarck herring and a bottle of some more coffee and more cake, one thing and another—merely preliminary to the real feed that will be coming along a little later on.

Between acts at the theater he excuses himself and goes out and prepares his stomach for supper. This will follow at 11 o'clock, by which time two or three steins of thick, heavy beer and nibbling on such morsels as a few links of German sausage or the upper half of a very large phallia ham.

There are forty-seven distinct and separate varieties of German sausage and three of them are edible. The Westphalia ham, in my judgment, is greatly overrated. It is proper enough, with the sole exception of the last part, where it belongs.

In Germany, however, there is a pheasant agreeably smothered in young cabbage, which is delicious when in season plentiful. The only drawback to completer enjoyment of this dish is that the grasping and unscrupulous German restaurant keeper has the confounded nerve to charge you, in our money, 40 cents for a portion of pheasant and half a peck of cabbage—ay enough to furnish a full meal for two tolerably hungry persons and a child.

MIRACLES OF THE EARTH.

The Coming of Springtime Is the Renewal of Life That Forms the Most Profound Science.

[Chicago Record Herald:] As a matter of fact, plants are not greatly influenced by weather as is generally thought. The little winter storms in our gardens force its way only to the snow in order to display the bright yellow blossoms. Even more remarkable is the Christmas rose, which naturally in the highest state of activity when most other plants are in a dormant state. Although it loses its foliage, the pretty winter rose decks many a wall with pure white right in the very heart of the coldest weather. Quite a number of common trees, such as the holly, the elm and the privet, contrive to keep their leaves through the winter so that they do not shed their foliage. The gorse keeps on blooming at all times, so that it is not possible to say that plants rest in the winter to revive in the spring simply because the weather will not allow them to grow otherwise.

All through the long winter months the seeds lie buried in the earth, and before the weather is really warm the small stems are feeling their way through the brown earth, and through the ground with fresh green leaves. Some mysterious influence seems to be at work telling the plants and trees that the spring has come. Many a perplexing still is the behavior of water plants, whose buds lie hidden in the water all through the winter, and pass the dull days of winter in safety before the first thin sheet of ice stretches across the water in the autumn the water lilies, the leaves and the flags have disappeared, and in the early period, a long while before there is much sign of life in the trees and shrubs, they submerged plants begin to stir, these submerged plants of the spring growth. The roots of the water lilies buried in the mud at the bottom of the lake, feel the genial influence of the warmth in the water, and the stems begin to grow. This comes long before the surface, feel the genial influence of the warmth in the water, and the stems begin to grow. This comes long before the season

EVENTS BRIEFLY TOLD.

Kick Breaks Collarbone.

W. R. Drexel, who lives at the Y.M.C.A., was with friends at Hooper avenue and Pico street yesterday afternoon. They wagered on their respective high-kicking abilities. Mr. Drexel kicked himself off his feet and broke his collarbone. He is in the California Hospital.

Native Sons' Day.

Native Sons' Day will be celebrated by the Los Angeles Aud Club at its meeting tomorrow noon at the Clark Hotel. Among the speakers will be Frank G. Tyrrell, Charles M. Belshaw, James D. Phelan, former Mayor of San Francisco, and Clarence E. Edwards, secretary and manager of the Southern California Grape Growers' Association.

Held on Serious Charge.

Charged with assault to murder, Willie Croom, 16 years old, a negro bootblack, was arrested at Ninth and Figueroa streets yesterday afternoon. Croom is believed to be the man who attacked Earl Hoffel, a tailor, 25 years old, at Second and San Pedro streets shortly after midnight. Hoffel was stabbed several times and is in the County Hospital in a critical condition.

Struck by Automobile.

Clarence Weaver, who resides at No. 145 West Fifteenth street, had his left leg fractured below the knee and his right leg badly cut yesterday afternoon on Pacific avenue, San Pedro. He was riding a motorcycle when struck by an automobile driven by V. Bigness of San Pedro. Weaver was taken to the San Pedro Hospital. His wife, who was riding with him, was severely bruised.

Young People's "Dry" Meeting.

Nearly 800 young people of the county Epworth Leagues, Christian Endeavor societies and the Baptist Young People's Union attended an enthusiastic meeting at the First Baptist Church yesterday afternoon in the interests of the California dry movement. There were a number of speakers, and music was furnished by the quartette of the Los Angeles College of Osteopathy.

Baby Seriously Burned.

Playing with matches at 6 o'clock yesterday morning, Joseph Frascas, 3 years old, was seriously burned in his home, No. 2016 St. Elmo street. The baby was on the floor of the bedroom and struck a match it had taken from a near-by stand. His clothes aflame, little Joseph screamed. His mother smothered the fire with a blanket, but not until the baby's back, arms and right side had been painfully burned.

THE FIRST POSTAGE STAMP.

Great Britain Enjoyed the Monopoly of the Novel Method of Collecting Money for Three Years.

[The Strand:] The adhesive postage stamp had its origin in England seventy-four years ago as a direct outcome of the postal reforms introduced by Sir Rowland Hill, whose master mind created not only the inestimable boon of penny postage, but the means by which it was carried into effect—the adhesive postage stamp. At the time of the passing of the uniform penny postage act in 1839 all postal charges were paid in cash (usually on delivery,) involving an enormous amount of bookkeeping on the part of the postoffice, which would have been increased a hundredfold when the reduced rates of postage came into force but for the suggestion of the great postal reformer, for "a bit of papet, just large enough to bear the stamp and coated at the back with a glutinous wash," being subsequently embodied in the famous one-penny black postage label and its consort, the two-penny blue, which made their debut in May, 1840, and were the progenitors of all adhesive postage stamps.

For three short years Great Britain enjoyed a monopoly of this novel and handy method of collecting postage, until, in July, 1843, the enlightened empire of Brazil followed suit with a series of unprepossessing adhesive labels of native manufacture, adorned with large numerals of value in place of a design. In 1847 the United States entered the field with two beautifully engraved portraits of Franklin and Washington, while the head of Ceres, the goddess of agriculture, found place on the first stamps of the French Republic, engraved by the elder Barre, which made their debut January 1, 1849.

PERSONALS.

D. P. Sweaney, fruit commission merchant of Boston, is registered at the Lankershim. He deals extensively in California oranges. Some of the other guests at the same hotel are H. W. Robinson, merchant, and Mrs. Robinson of San Francisco; G. E. Lucas, banker of Oakland, and Dr. and Mrs. A. S. Parker of Needles.

Lancaster Adicks, mine operator, and Mrs. Adicks of Douglas are at the Alexandria, and also R. Inosoki, merchant of Tokio, and C. A. Longwell, bond broker of New York City.

The guests at the Westminster include J. William MacLennan, shoe manufacturer of St. Louis, and Edward Fisher, grain dealer, and Mrs. Fisher of Chicago.

Dr. M. A. Baker of Tucson and Nathan Klein, dry goods merchant of New York City, are among the guests at the Angelus.

E. C. Gatlin, manufacturer of aluminum ware from Kansas City, is at the Clark for a short stay.

THE RICHEST RAILROAD.

Is Located in Brazil and Earns More Money Per Mile Than Any Other Road in the World.

[World's Work:] When one encounters in the records of South American railroads such extraordinary figures as $200,000 a mile, it appears impossible that railroads can be built in that country with any kind of a chance for profit; for $200,000 is far more than the average per mile capitalization of, for instance, the Pennsylvania railroad. That it can be done on a small scale is evidenced by the Sao Paulo Railway in Brazil, which is a little road eighty-six and one-half miles long, that cost more than $200,000 a mile, and that earned last year on its main line, more than $100,000 a mile, and was able to pay 14 per cent. on its common stock. The largest part of its earnings comes from coffee. It probably earns more money per mile of road than any other railroad anywhere on either American continent, the figures being well in excess of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie, or of the Panama railroad, which stands close to the top of the list in volume of gross earnings per mile among the railroads operated by American interests.

THE COST OF WAR.

During the Civil War the Expense Approximated Two Dollars a Day for Each Soldier.

[New York Sun:] Military experts here regard the probable cost of the conflict impending in Europe so vast as to be beyond reckoning. They assert that it is quite impossible to make even a guess as to the aggregate expenses.

The American Civil War expenses on the Union side were ordinarily reckoned at $1,000,000 a day for 500,000 men in the field. Another estimate that is often made is that of $1000 a year per man in the field.

Assuming that a general conflict will call into the field a maximum of 20,000,000 soldiers this basis would bring the total military expenditures alone up to $20,000,000,000 or about $50,000,000 a day.

Army officers point out that the military expense of such a conflict is only a portion of the actual cost. The shrinkage in security values, the stoppage of agriculture, the diminution of manufacturing and other industries and the interference with trade and foreign commerce must all be included to arrive at any approximate estimate of the vast cost of a war in Europe.

A Crazy Will.

[Record, Germiston, So. Africa:] A little over two years ago an eccentric Russian, Countess Austrigildski, died and left a bequest of $1300 a year for life to any person who shuts himself up in a tomb at Pere Lachise for twelve months and a day. The first man to attempt this torture has become a raving lunatic. The one who undertakes this is offered lodgin in a stone cell built over the Countess Austrigildski's vault and he must never leave the abode day or night for a year and a day. He may not communicate with any person in the outside world save the person who brings his food morning and evening. And he may never have a light. A dismal prospect even at the thought of a yearly income of $1300.

RICCARDI COMES BACK AND GIVES HIMSELF UP.

Long-Pursued Attorney of Sensational Record Voluntarily Surrenders.

Registers Openly at Alexandria, Calls a Lawyer and Friends to Give Bond—Denies Charges of Fraud and Embezzlement and Seems Rather Bored, on the Whole. Surprised to Find Himself Divorced.

THIS is the log for the last six months of Attorney Constantino V. Riccardi, much-quoted lawyer, who arrived yesterday and surrendered himself:

February 15—Attorney Riccardi left Los Angeles.

February 24.—Mrs. May Dolce Riccardi filed suit for divorce, naming Mrs. Nellie Jones as co-respondent.

March 13—Arrested in Monte Carlo, from which he could not be extradited.

July 15—Wearied of pursuit, Riccardi went to Vancouver, Can., and telegraphed authorities that he would surrender.

August 9—His father, a banker, died in Utica from shock as the result of charges against his son, it was alleged.

August 14—Mrs. Riccardi is granted a divorce.

August 16—After wandering hunted, 13,500 miles and being away six months Riccardi arrived in Los Angeles and gave himself up.

Constantino Riccardi returned to Los Angeles yesterday wearing a $16 hat, and had seventeen more in his luggage. In his jeweled right hand he carried, jauntily and almost debonairly, a dimstick with an embossed gold top, and he had four more of them in a sheaf.

He went directly to the Alexandria Hotel, wrote his name in plain, bold hand on the register and was assigned to room 1031. Many of his former associates were about the hotel and them he greeted cheerfully and jauntily. Then the picturesque Utica baker's boy of sensational history called his lawyer, Paul Schenck, by telephone, and arranged to get bondsmen and surrender himself to the authorities.

At 10:30 o'clock last night Attorney Schenck found Justice Summerfield at Eagles' Hall and the magistrate consented to accompany him to the lawyer's office in the Laughlin building. There Riccardi formally surrendered himself, and bond for his appearance for arraignment Tuesday morning at 9:30 o'clock was furnished by A. Vitagliano and Cono Mackiaroli, wealthy compatriots of Riccardi. The amount was fixed at $5000, after Chief Detective Malcolm McLaren of the District Attorney's office had held a telephone conference with Deputy District Attorney Percy Hammon. The surrender last night was not down on the original programme, but was made in order to give Riccardi time to visit friends today, according to Mr. Schenck.

His home-coming was a matter of no heartache or penitence. It was merely an incident in the itinerary of the traveled gentleman, Constantino Riccardi, who had become so prosperous in Southern California that he made an elaborate trip to Italy, voluntarily, he said, yesterday, and thence returned, also voluntarily, as he added. That was almost his first statement to Richard Kittrell, associated with Mr. Schenck, when he called for the latter.

Attorney Riccardi, whose business affairs seem to be a matter of hysteria to accountants and frenzy to creditors, and whose love affairs have been the wonder of romancists and of susceptible women, has no excuses to offer. Several months ago, in the open press, nothing less conspicuous than a paid advertisement, he announced that he would go to Europe for a sojourn on the continent.

SAYS HE DIDN'T RUN.

His leave-taking on February 13 was nothing more, he declared yesterday, than the routine maturity of his announced plans. His presence in Monte Carlo, even though the little principality of Monaco did not recog-

Laundry Mark Clew.

GIRL'S IDENTIFICATION JAILS YOUTH AS BEAST.

"V236" PENNED in the hem of a handkerchief led to the arrest yesterday of Eugene C. Hill, aged 20 years, at the home of his father at No. 901 South Flower street on suspicion of having assaulted Miss Hazel Burleigh, 23 years old, on the night of the 12th inst. Hill was identified by the young woman within an hour after his arrest.

Miss Burleigh, whose efficiency and grace won for her an offer to go East as private nurse to Julia Marlowe, when the famous actress was stricken here some months ago, was sent from the Clara Barton Hospital to a patient in the Mariposa apartments at No. 1343 Shatto street. Confusing Shatto street with Shatto place, she took a car for Sixth and Vermont. A young man alighted at the same corner and of him she asked the direction of the apartment-house she sought.

"I live there and I will be glad to show you," he responded. "It's a short cut through this lot."

As a matter of fact the apartment was a mile away. Half way across the lot, the man struck the young nurse in the face, felling her. He continued to rain blows upon her face, while she fought him to the best of her ability. She finally lost consciousness. When she woke she found a handkerchief gagging her mouth. She staggered to Sixth and Vermont, where Roy Lang, of No. 3914 Ingraham street, and Carl Golle of No. 3565 Arlington street, found her. Her face was puffed and black and her clothes bloody. She asked to be taken to her residence in the Baker apartments, Tenth and Francisco streets.

The fiendishness of the attack startled the police, used as they are to tales of brutality. Captain of Detectives Murray detailed Detectives Cowen and Dixon to the case. The handkerchief with the laundry mark proved the most promising clew. By painstaking work the detectives learned that the Hygenic laundary at Sixteenth street and Central avenue had a customer whose laundry bore the same mark. In young Hill's room Detectives Cowen and Dixon say they found other handkerchiefs with the same marking.

Yesterday Miss Burleigh, propped up by pillows, amid a wealth of fragrant flowers sent by friends to her room in the Clara Barton Hospital, was confronted with Hill. She positively identified him as her assailant, the detectives say. Cowen and Dixon felt warranted in locking up Hill for further investigation. Hill, however, stoutly denies his guilt. He says he is a pugilist.

LOS ANGELES TEAM WINS.

The Los Angeles drill team of the Young Men's Institute won first prize in the competitive drills held yesterday at the annual State convention in session at Santa Rosa, according to a dispatch from William Ernst, a delegate from Los Angeles. James Irwin is captain of the local drill team. Thirty drill teams were in competition. The convention began yesterday morning and will continue until Thursday.

POUR GOLD ON SACRED ALTAR.

Enthusiasm Flames High at Freedom Meeting.

Every Los Angeles Patriot Ready for the Call.

In the belief that the hour is near when dreams of a reconstructed Poland will be realized, the patriotism for which the name of the dismembered nation has been a synonym for more than a hundred years, flamed high at a meeting yesterday afternoon at No. 116½ East Third street. Money was contributed freely to the sacred cause and every man present declared that if the call came he would leave America to fight for the downtrodden fatherland.

A resolution was passed calling upon Poles everywhere to give moral, financial and, if need be, physical aid to the present movement. The resolution was passed unanimously and was loudly cheered by the 500 men and women present.

W. J. Miller, commissioner of the Polish National Alliance for the States of California and Arizona, was chairman of the meeting. The principal speakers were Roman Mazurkiewicz, editor of the Chicago Polish daily newspaper "Dziennik Ludowy;" Mr. Miller, Adam Gladia, Paul Geneusz and John Pasek.

"The prospects for a restoration of the national life of Poland are better than they have been at any time during the 150 years since the partition," Mr. Miller declared. "It is the first time that the three robber nations who strangled our home land—Russia, Germany and Austria-Hungary—have been at war among themselves. Always before they have stood against Poland.

"Hope is high in Polish breasts all over the world. It seems that the hour to strike for freedom is near at hand. I believe that if the call comes to fight for Poland, practically every able-bodied Pole in America will rush home to take up arms.

"There are about 300,000 Polish men in America who are eager to take up arms. The Poles in America and elsewhere have been preparing for years for the opportunity which seems now to beckon. There are about 3000 Poles in Los Angeles ready and eager to go. The Poles everywhere have been in military training for years and are especially active at present in preparing for an emergency."

The action of the Poles at yesterday's meeting were not tempered by the announcements through dispatches from Europe that Russia and Germany have promised freedom to the Poles.

"We do not take these promises seriously," Editor Mazurkiewicz said. "Such promises have been made several times before and came to nothing but disappointment. Russia's announcement of a constitutional government for Russian Poland in 1905 was followed by the banishment of 10,000 Poles to Siberia and wholesale executions and horrible oppression.

"The promise of freedom is only a ruse to keep patriotic Poles the world over quiet during the present conflict. It is an effort to rob us of an opportunity which has been awaited since 1772, when our country was divided between three nations. We are not deceived, but will continue with our preparations.

"It appears very likely that the call from Poland will come, probably within a month. If it does there will be a gathering of fighting Poles from the uttermost parts of the world to regain the country's lost honor and prestige among the family of nations."

Mr. Miller received a message yesterday to go to Cambridge Springs, Pa., to attend a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Polish National Alliance, and departed last evening. He said that the meeting was called for the purpose of giving cohesion to the Polish movement in America and facilitate a quick movement of patriots when the expected call to arms comes.

SHOOTING RESULTS FATALLY.

Cruz Vasquez, a Mexican, who was shot in the stomach and the head Friday night at San Pedro, died yesterday noon in the Receiving Hospital. The police are searching for Lovardo Ortega, another Mexican, who is believed to have shot him.

Church Ties No Bar.

EPISCOPALIAN MINISTER RESIGNS; WEDS CATHOLIC.

RESIGNING the pastorate of St. Paul's Episcopal Church of Yuma, in order to wed a Catholic, Rev. Stephen Samson Powers, one of the well-known Episcopalian ministers of Arizona, is at the Engstrum with his bride, who was Miss Mary Elizabeth Nugent, also formerly of Yuma. The two were engaged in philanthropic work together among the Indians and Mexicans there two years ago, the beginning of the romance crowned last week by Mgr. Harnett of St. Vibiana's, in the parlors of the cathedral.

Mr. Powers, who was well and favorably known in the Episcopalian church through his years of earnest endeavor as a minister in that denomination, has merely obviated discussion of the step by resigning his pastorate before being married by a Catholic priest.

He has considerable business interests, some in Arizona and more in Mississippi, the State of his nativity. A large plantation near Natchez, one of Mark Twain's favorite Mississippi towns, is an inheritance supervised by Mr. Powers. He is a thorough southerner and was graduated from the Suwanee University.

Mrs. Powers came to Arizona seven years ago from New York State, where she was born in Troy. Having faith in the new country, she invested extensively and has mining and land interests around Yuma, Phoenix and other parts of the State. She was considered one of its principal business women and all her undertakings have been successful.

Mr. and Mrs. Powers are planning a trip to Mississippi soon, and possibly to Arizona on the return of Bishop Atwood of the Episcopal church of that State, in order to pay their compliments to him. Returning to Los Angeles, they will reside at the Engstrum through the winter season. Both have many friends in Southern California and have been guests of honor at a number of pretty social affairs before and after their wedding.

Steamer Pleiades Beats Them All to Eastbound Passage Through Canal.

The steamer Pleiades of the Luckenbach Steamship Company, laden with more than 500 tons of Southern California products, was the first Pacific Coast vessel to pass through the Panama Canal, according to cabled advice received yesterday by S. S. Sandberg, manager of the company.

The Pleiades sailed from Los Angeles harbor July 29 on her maiden trip to New York. Her cargo consisted of dried and canned fruits, honey and a very large consignment of tuna, which is rapidly becoming popular through the East, and is taking its place with salmon on the list of canned fish.

According to Manager Sandberg, the company has arranged a ten-day schedule of sailings between Los Angeles and New York, and the prospects for a heavy business between these ports he declares excellent.

Blighting Touch.

DEATH SEARS ROMANCE OF SANKEY'S PARTNER.

JUST a little more than a year of happy married life ended Saturday morning for Dr. and Mrs. Albert Merritt Cook, when the former passed away at the family home, No. 917 Orizaba avenue, Long Beach. The widow, formerly Miss Genevieve Rudesill, is known from one end of America to the other, having for twenty-seven years traveled with the famous evangelist, Ira D. Sankey, and during these travels, met Dr. Cook.

The physician had come to California from Newcastle, Pa., where for more than twenty-six years he had practiced medicine. When little more than a boy he had known Miss Rudesill and with the renewing of acquaintance in Los Angeles, romance was born. On June 11, 1913, they were joined in matrimony by their mutual friend, Dr. Charles Edward Locke, at the First Methodist Episcopal Church. The couple passed a honeymoon traveling in Southern California and settled down in Long Beach to enjoy the declining years of their lives.

The illness of Dr. Cook was of some duration and to the last he fought against it. He was born in Jamestown, N. Y., on September 17, 1854; was a graduate of the University of Buffalo Medical College, and the Bellevue Hospital Medical College of New York City. Settling down in Newcastle, Pa., he soon joined the staff and was for years at its head in the Shenango Valley Hospital. He was a director in the Home Trust Company, a member of the Presbyterian Church and of the Masonic bodies of Newcastle.

During his later years, he made several trips to Los Angeles, which determined him to retire from active practice and make his permanent home here. His son, Merritt Wilson Cook, residing at Glendora, came with him. Two sisters, Mrs. Alice Devoe and Mrs. Ella J. Gordon, still reside in Jamestown, and it is there that the remains of Dr. Cook will be shipped for interment in the family plot.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock in Holten's undertaking parlors, No. 604 Locust avenue, Long Beach. Dr. Walker, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of that community, of which Dr. Cook had become a parishioner, will preside over the services. The date of interment will depend on arrangements in Jamestown.

JEVNE'S

Between Dishes

It would be more than difficult to find a food that combines in such a marvelous manner all the nutritive and sustaining elements that are to be found, in a condensed form, in the Ripe Olive.

The popular idea is that there is only one proper moment when Olives should be served, but, it will be found that the best way and time to serve them is to have a dishful on the table from soup to dessert—so that they may be eaten freely of between dishes.

We carry the most extensive and most particular stock of California Olives that it is possible to assemble. Prices range from 15c per glass jar to the largest size can at $2.25 each. Ask for the Telephone Sales Department—they will be glad to give full information regarding brands and prices.

Politics.

LISTEN TO 'EM FOR A DOLLAR.

Candidates Charged for Use of Ladies' Ears.

Money to Go to Furthering of Woman's Suffrage.

Santa Clara County Strong for Capt. Fredericks.

A unique combination of political interest will be made next Saturday afternoon at the Hooker gardens on West Adams street, when the different candidates for political office are invited to present themselves and their arguments before a big gathering of representative women.

The peculiar part of it is that these candidates will be charged so much per head for the privilege of thus expounding—the women will get the money. The money will be devoted to political purposes, but not in California. Instead it is to go to further the interests of the national campaign for woman's suffrage, more particularly in those few—three in fact—western States which have not already granted it. It will cost any aspirant for office just exactly $1 to tell these ladies why he should be elected, but he will have the satisfaction of knowing that many more ladies may vote as the result of it.

Following are those in charge:

Chairman, Mrs. Seward A. Simons; secretary, Miss Helen M. Wisler; vice-chairmen, Miss Jessie Anthony, Mrs. Morris Albee, Mrs. H. R. Boynton, Mrs. Robert J. Burdette, Mrs. Berthold Baruch, Mrs. E. R. ALL ALONG THE LINE STRONG FOR FREDERICKS.

Capt. John D. Fredericks, who is campaigning in the north, working rapidly toward Los Angeles, communicated with his southern Campaign Committee yesterday that at San Jose he had held the greatest meeting ever known in the history of Santa Clara county, overflowing Garden Theater. It was a meeting that gave Fredericks enthusiastic indorsement and he says in his message: "I am positive of success in that county."

He also said that more than 600 had greeted him at Redwood City, in San Mateo county, filling the local theater and according him a tremendous ovation.

Reports of this kind have been received from all parts of the north and the Fredericks supporters declare that the District Attorney will poll as large a percentage of votes beyond the Tehachepi as he is counted upon to carry in the southern end of the State.

Tonight Capt. Fredericks will be at Santa Cruz and advance word is sent out that he will be accorded an extraordinarily large reception.

JUDGE BORDWELL HIS NORTHERN TRIP.

Former Judge Bordwell has returned to Los Angeles after a tour through the central and northern parts of the State, where he received cordial greetings and many assurances of support at the primary as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. Judge Bordwell was gratified with his reception at all points, especially in the San Joaquin Valley. It is apparent to the judge's friends and supporters that he will receive considerable support in all parts of the State, in addition to the tremendous vote he will get in the south, and they believe the prospects are exceedingly bright for his nomination.

Judge Bordwell made such a grand record on the Superior bench of Los Angeles county that the desirability of the State's honoring him with the Chief Justiceship is not questioned in any quarter.

Ralston Meeting.

There will be a rally for W. C. Ralston Friday evening at Blanchard Hall. The candidate for Governor will arrive in Los Angeles from the north on the morning of that day and at midnight leave for San Diego, where the Republican Central Committee is planning a reception and public meeting for the candidate.

Knowland Confident.

Congressman and Mrs. Joseph R. Knowland left for San Francisco last night to close the campaign Mr. Knowland is making for the Republican nomination for United States Senator. "Brighter every minute," is the way Mr. Knowland describes the outlook for victory in Southern California.

Campaign Wind-Up.

Ex-Senator Charles M. Belshaw, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, is here to end his campaign after visiting 256 cities and towns throughout the State. He speaks at noon today at the Fulton Engine Works, and this afternoon at Redondo Beach. He will be the guest of the Los Angeles Ad Club tomorrow noon and speaks at San Pedro in the afternoon and at night at the Soldiers' Home. Wednesday noon he speaks at Hughes's mill, No. 1430 South Alameda street; at 3:30 p.m. at the Long Beach bandstand, and at night at the Los Angeles Athletic Club jinks. Saturday afternoon he will speak at the gathering in Mrs. J. D. Hooker's gardens.

Phelan Closing Here.

James D. Phelan, Democratic candidate for United States Senator, goes today through the southeastern section of the county and on to Santa Ana, visiting Whittier, Downey, Orange, Fullerton, Anaheim and Santa Ana. He will bring his campaign in Los Angeles county to a close tomorrow night with a rally in Blanchard Hall. R. F. del Valle will preside. Wednesday morning he leaves for the north.

Meeting of Home Folks.

A meeting of ladies who formerly lived in Nebraska was held at No. 4037 Ingraham street Saturday afternoon in behalf of the candidacy of Howard R. Hinshaw for Justice of the Peace of Los Angeles township. A number of these ladies were former residents of Fairbury, Neb., Mr. Hinshaw's old home, and have known their favored candidate since youth.

KILLED THIS TIME.

Second Assault of Mexican Results Fatally—Found Dead with Seventeen Knife Wounds.

Stabbed seventeen times, John Orozco, a middle-aged Mexican, was killed in a vacant lot at Seventh and San Mateo streets early yesterday morning. The police are searching for his assailants, described as two Mexicans.

An eyewitness, Thomas Coombes of No. 722 Decatur street, says Orozco was set upon by the two men who after their victim had fallen, fled north on San Mateo street. He was dead when the officers arrived.

Police records show that Orozco was taken to the Receiving Hospital the night of July 14 with knife wounds in his neck inflicted by his brother-in-law, Vincento Mayo. Mayo was taken before Coombes, who declared that he was not one of the two involved in the fatal assault yesterday morning.

THIRD MILLER KNEELS ON HISTORIC WEDDING SPOT.

ON THE same spot and at the same hour at which his parents were married thirty-five years ago and his sister, Olive, was wedded two years since, Davis Newman, a nephew of Frank Miller, of the Glenwood Mission Inn, was united Sunday morning to Miss Mary Lang Weaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Weaver, of No. 1622 West Eleventh street, this city. The ceremony was performed in the old adobe formerly the home of Mr. Miller's parents, and which has since become a picturesque part of the Glenwood, at Riverside. Rev. Horace Porter, pastor of the Congregational Church of Riverside, officiated.

Mr. Newman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. O. Newman, of this city. Mrs. G. O. Newman, who was Miss Miller, was married in her parents' home in 1879, and in 1913 their daughter became Mrs. Payne on the same spot and at the same moment in the day. The pretty tradition which has now had its third fulfillment is one which will be perpetuated in all future weddings involving descendants of the Millers of Riverside.

An unusual feature of the last two weddings on this spot has been the music, the mission chimes replacing the conventional organ even in the rendition of the difficult wedding march of Mendelssohn. At the Weaver-Newman wedding the historic adobe was made over into a bower of green and white with the lavish use of blossoms and asparagus plumosus.

The parents of the new Mrs. Newman are among the older residents of the city, having resided here continuously for nearly thirty years.

The young couple expect to make their home here.

HIS NARROW SQUEAK.

Los Angeles Furrier in Roumania at Time of Archduke's Assassination, But He Gets Home Safely.

Roumania, Servia and other Balkan countries knew the cost of the killing of Archduke Ferdinand of Austria, and the following day preparations for war were under way, according to Harry Steinberg, furrier of Mercantile place, who managed to get out of Europe three days ahead of the declaration of war between Germany and France. Mr. Steinberg arrived home on Saturday.

"I had been visiting relatives in Jasi, Roumania, when the assassination took place, and one of the first orders issued was against the further giving of passports," he said yesterday. "Having mine, I realized what was coming, and with my son started at once through Europe towards Antwerp. The Balkan states and Austria placed impediments in the way of travelers, but in Germany we were given courteous attendance and assisted in any way possible. War talk was rife there.

"Arriving in Antwerp we found that Americans had really begun to fear for their safety and were clamoring for steamship transportation. I was fortunate in securing passage on the Vaterland of the Red Star line and we were four days at sea before the wireless operator picked up news of the outbreak of war the day before. Some precautions were taken by officers on the liner to go out of the way of any warships of France or England, and we landed safely and without trouble."

FIRST SUNDAY IN JAIL.

"June the Blonde" Associates with Other Women Prisoners as One of Them—Shares Her Good Things.

Mrs. Kota Pierce Heim, called by the police "June the Blonde," yesterday spent her first Sunday in jail. She is held in the city prison awaiting the arrival of officers from Portland, Or., where she must stand trial for passing checks, forged by George Hammond, a fugitive from Los Angeles since the 8th inst., when he shot and wounded Charles O. Murray, a Pinkerton operative.

Mrs. Heim is one of the most distinguished prisoners incarcerated in the City Jail. Her cell is one opening into the corridor in which congregate the women who have run afoul of the law. Despite the variance in the position of Mrs. Heim, a former Oberlin girl and, as wife of a submarine officer, has moved in the fashionable naval circles, and the position of the other prisoners, there is no restraint between them and there has been no suggestion of disrespect for Mrs. Heim, the matrons say. On the contrary, Mrs. Heim has endeared herself to the prisoners, the matrons add. She has divided the flowers and delicacies which have been sent to her without any suggestion of patronizing. On several occasions Mrs. Heim has been allowed to read in the matron's parlor and there has been no complaint of discrimination from the other prisoners. Yesterday Mrs. Mary Pierce of Coronado called upon Mrs. Heim, her daughter.

BAD CHECK PASSER.

Riccardi Comes Back.

nise the extradition conventions of other countries, was nothing but the halting of a traveler, a man of the world, at a place of fashion and interest.

He went away, he said, because he wished to drop over to Europe and see how things were going on the continent. Indeed, it was a mere coincidence, Attorney Riccardi reports, that his wife, Mrs. May Culver Riccardi, brought suit for divorce two days after he left. The unhusbanded man was not wrought up over the milling of the local divorce courts. It was not surprising, with the frequency of divorces, that his affairs should become involved. Somebody has to feed the grist to the mill.

Also, it was just chance that a warrant was quickly issued for his arrest charging him with embezzlement. He is accused of having converted some $5000 belonging to William E. Shaw to his personal account. Attorney Riccardi is astounded that such vilification should be unwarrantably cast toward him.

DENIES FRAUD CHARGE.

As to Miss Annie E. Crowe and Mrs. Jennie E. Hall, and the Misses Jennie and Margaret Matthews, who put their savings into a land scheme that has never developed and were rewarded by having four streets named after them on a map, Attorney Riccardi denies any intention to defraud these school teachers. The four women, who thought it was very fortunate that a splendid business man should also be as attractive, as handsome and fascinating as Attorney Riccardi, are teaching school again.

Regarding women, their destrability and their effectiveness as enemies, the unhusbanded baker boy from Utica did not have much to say. He regretted that Mrs. Riccardi, daughter herself of an Indiana Senator and worthy, as Attorney Riccardi often said, of being the wife of the son of a Roman senator, had hastened to sever the bonds, naming a co-respondent. He did not know that he was unhusbanded until he arrived in Los Angeles yesterday carrying that gold-crowned walking stick at a Monte Cario angle.

When he saw Mr. Schenck he had some doubts about Mr. Schenck's ability as an attorney, for the silk shirt which Mr. Schenck wore cost but $11, and Attorney Riccardi had paid $16 each for his—in Paris, and as he told Attorney Schenck, things are cheaper in Paris, and the colors so much brighter. Indeed, the shirt showed that.

The trial will be of no consequence, he says, as he has done nothing in violation of the law. It will be just a little detail of his return, like unpacking his twenty-eight suits of clothes, necessary, but uninteresting and not important.

Riccardi appears quite contented, as a world traveler should be, returning from a six months' trip, and particularly, when he left wearing only a $6 silk shirt and returned wearing one that cost $16.

HELD ON SUSPICION.

Two Women Found with Morphine, Revolvers and Opium Outfit—Federal Officers to Investigate.

The Federal authorities will be asked to investigate the relations between Mrs. Josie Andrews, 38 years old, and Katherine Nicholas, 20 years old, who were arrested in a raid upon the house at No. 727 New High street yesterday morning. They are being held in the City Jail on suspicion of having committed a felony.

The older woman, the police say, formerly conducted a disorderly house at Rawlins, Wyo., and brought Miss Nicholas to this city two weeks ago. In a room were found large quantities of morphine, several revolvers, and an opium-smoking outfit.

STAND BY THEIR DAY.

Women at Old-Time Costume Party Vote Present Styles More "Comfy" Than Any Others.

The fashions of today, the drop skirt, the sheath gown, the split skirt, the low V-neck and other styles, were voted far more "comfy" than the costumes in days gone by, by the ladies and their guests of Constellation Club, Hollywood Chapter, O.E.S., following a costume party given at the Echo Park Clubhouse Friday evening.

I resent were ladies floundering in gowns that dated through every decade as far back as Queen Elizabeth's time. Attics, cedar chests and trunks covered with layers of dust were ransacked for costumes, the more unusual and humorous the better. Mrs. George Chipman, looking as though she had stepped from a daguerreotype in grandmother's album, won first prize.

A minstrel show, old-time dancing and a banquet were among the pleasures enjoyed.

A RATTLING STORY.

Discovered a Zinc Mine by Plunking a Rattler Which Did Not Use His Rattle.

[Engineering and Mining Journal:] Several members of the Rocky Mountain Club were recently entertaining a mining engineer upon his return to New York from Honduras. The conversation turned to snakes. The engineer said: "One time I was in a surveying party when a rodman called out that there was a large snake in his vicinity, so I went over, and sure enough, there was. So I picked up a rock—" "Yes, yes, we've heard that story before," interrupted one of the clubmen, "you noticed that the rock was heavy, looked at it and saw it was specked with gold, so you staked the 'Rattlesnake' claim on Rattlesnake Creek, in Snakebite Gulch and got stung." "Not a bit," replied the engineer. "That rock was zinc, I knew it when I picked it up. I could tell it by the heft of it, besides, I felt zinc in the air and felt its emanations. I didn't have to look, even if I were not perfectly aware of the fact that I was standing on the apex of the 'Blue Smoke' lode. No, gentlemen, the point is this, we didn't discover that this snake had a rattle on the end of his tail until we plunked him with those zinkiferous rocks. We knew he was watching us all the time by the way he would turn his head whenever he moved. No, that yarn about a rattlesnake's always giving warning when he's going to strike is just as true, as, as—well, did you ever hear a mule bray just before he kicked?"

Easily Ganged the Contents.

[Youth's Companion:] Old Benjamin Dwyer was accustomed to treat his guests with sweet cider, and although the barrel stood in the darkest corner of a dark cellar, he never carried a lamp on his trips for a fresh supply. One evening, Mr. Brookings, the minister, was his guest.

"It must be quite an art to fill the pitcher so accurately in the dark without running it over," said Mr. Brookings.

"Wal, no. "Tain't 'xactly difficult," Benjamin replied. "You see, when the cider gets up to the first joint of my thumb, I stop."

Good Intentions—Not Enough

They send it out in a light bottle, and it's the light that starts decay and develops the skunky taste.

WAR CRIMINAL AND SENSELESS.

Appalling in Cost Without Producing Results.

Victor and Vanquished Both Beaten, Says Pastor.

Points of Interest Discussed in Many Pulpits.

At the First Christian Church yesterday morning, Rev. Russell F. Bowyer preached on "The Stupidity and Criminality of War." He said:

"The economic wastes make war impossible for the working people in the way of expensive living. Having cleared the forests, and wasted by primitive methods the coal in the mines and robbed the soil in the fields, men are awakened to the fact that the costs of war are largest of all. Each country we build costs as much as a university and would build and equip the Polytechnic High School of three times. In twelve years the Russian-Japanese war has settle national disputes. The Russian-Japanese war did not settle the original dispute. It did not put out the seeds of war to grow the harvest of hatred for the next generation to fight over more bitterly than ever. Russia's humiliation and the memory of the conflict are working day and night. The Prussian war of forty years settled no question. The Germans were victorious at Sedan, captured Paris, dethroned an Emperor, a $1,000,000,000 war indemnity from every Frenchman ground down and sent his son into the German army. Germany had to pay her indemnity, fortify Metz and Strassburg, put a million soldiers in the standing army, and it has cost billions of dollars to keep Alsace-Lorraine she had from France. Thus the children of two nations have been degraded to hatred and murder, while the war spirit is ready to destroy the soul. Now, Europe is in the saddle again and nations will be devastated and driven into bankruptcy.

"War in war vanquishes the victor as well as the defeated. The people of England going to war with the Dutch colony would be ashamed if the losses had not been great. London's capital built with gold from South Africa, built with our lives, bridges, waterworks, school houses and courthouses. From these investments, and over her interest for her support. A group of selfish interests organized a movement to control rich mines and precipitate a war. England sent out men to destroy her own property and succeeded to the fact that the destruction was gone.

"They tell us that 'to be prepared for war is the surest way to peace.' Nations are only agencies of mob and all human experience proves that men unarmed are likely to quarrel than men armed. Even in civilized lands men are deterred from arming. Patience and true friendship are cheap.

"Passion and greed are at the bottom of most wars. The people and the patriotism is the moving power, but the leaders know that underneath is generally the slimy hand of graft or human greed. The people in Germany is kept alive by the Krupp Armor Plate Press. It was stated recently that seven great powers in Germany were owned by the Krupps. Two others were owned by the Krupps in France. When the Balkan war broke out the value of Krupp stocks and bonds fell $50,000,000, but the Krupps declared a dividend of 12 per cent.

"Our problems are before us in the danger of war. The slums in our great cities rot, thousands of men struggle for bread, millions of acres of desert lands are unused, millions of acres of swamp to be drained, harbors to be improved, forests to be safeguarded. Consumption like the gipsy moths and like tuberculosis to be stamped out. Meanwhile, we spend 67 per cent of our national revenues for war or to come.

"What is the task of America? Her mission is to preserve peace. Thank God for that leads in this direction. Let us say to the world, we are in peace! We abhor war! It is contrary to our nature, opposed to our wishes, hostile to our ideals. We believe in reason. Therefore we are going to trust reason and to work together for our advantage and the progress of mankind. To be sure, this policy involves a risk. We are running far ahead with our present policy. We are taking the risk of changing the mind of our people, and embarrassing with nations which are friendly. We are placing a heavy load of debt upon our children and children's children. But every step begins the limitation of armaments is certain of an ample reward."

DR. J. M. BARNHART.
CENTRAL-AVENUE M. E. CHURCH.
SPECIAL SERVICE FOR BENEFIT OF MONEY LENDERS AND TRADERS.

The pastor of Union-avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Rev. John M. Barnhart, preached on "Thoughts Concerning the War." He said in part:

"As a young preacher of the cross was talking to the young preachers he used him: 'Suffer hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ. No soldier on service entangleth with the affairs of this life; that he may please him who hath chosen him to be a soldier.' The great apostle to the Gentiles was not asking any man to do anything he was not willing to do himself. Paul had been in prisons, imprisonments, in stripes, perils by land and sea, in watchings often, in false brethren, hunger and thirst, in weariness often, in cold and nakedness, merciless men and beasts are a few of the things he had experienced.

"Paul had a right to a word of complaint by reason of his righteousness. He knew that he was able to endure the cause of Christ. He was willing to share the sufferings of a life of self-denial is often considered unsentimental. But not to do so when European disgrace-ridden is in its origin, is equally as bad. Let us gladly offer themselves in the service of humanity.

"We are undoubtedly in the midst of a world will, unable successfully to control the power which has arisen in their brothers who have no grievance. They are in the armies against their will, not because they are less brave or less loyal to their country, but because they know that the rank and file of the people of all nations have nothing to gain by war, and should their own arms triumph, the conqueror must suffer as much as the conquered, for no nation liveth unto itself and no nation dieth unto itself.

"There are doubtless great numbers of soldiers who with a mistaken view of patriotism, a view that shouts, 'My country, right or wrong,' offer themselves freely to fight for what they call honor of country. But when the war ends and the soldiers go back to their own countries, they will find widows and orphans, cripples and invalids, high prices and low wages, kings, princes, rulers and manipulators of foodstuffs and money-loaners richer than ever. They will sweat and grunt under a weary life, and heavy taxes to pay the interest on great war debts.

"If people could only get a vision of the good that would come to the world by suffering in the cause of Jesus Christ, such large numbers would flock to the standard of the Prince of Peace and espouse the cause of the weaker members of society, whether nations or individuals, that it would soon become impossible for crowned heads or legislative bodies, by cunning device or arrogated authority to inflame the baser elements of humanity, and set back the hands of the dial of human progress by inaugurating war.

"As Christians, let us bewilling to suffer as much to save the world from sin, selfishness, and greed through Jesus Christ, as the men in Europe are now willing to suffer on the battlefield for what they believe to be the honor of their country."

DR. TILROE.
BOYLE HEIGHTS M. E. CHURCH.
LIFE NOT A JOY RIDE BUT A JOURNEY WITH DEFINITE DESTINATION.

Rev. W. E. Tilroe, D.D., discussing the urgency of life before his congregation, Boyle Heights M. E. Church, yesterday morning, said in part:

"In one of Cooper's novels there is a description of a little lake on which a certain man would turn loose his boats. They would float around quietly in perfect safety and when he wanted them, he would gather them in. One day a man on the Niagara River lost his oars overboard. He found that drifting meant death. Niagara Falls was to be reckoned with. Our question is today, whether life is a drift or a current; a pond or a torrent; a joy ride or a journey.

"There are people who think the Cooper novel makes a good Bible. God is the world and the world is God. God is good and good is God. Men and women are but parts of a great whole, drops of an ocean. Drift never spells damage. Our life is all predestined. Men may wriggle, but they cannot change. The Turk, effeminate and hopeless, is a terrible fighter. He thinks he cannot escape his fate. The urgency of life is all from the outside. Many people follow pleasure. Whatever their philosophy, they live for what pleases. They eat, drink and always are to die tomorrow. This life seek no harbor, but is an excursion coming back to the port from which it started.

"The Nazarene suggested to Nicodemus the other thing. Life is not a joy ride, but a journey. It has urgency. Without urgency man perish. The falls are ahead. That men shall not go over is the meaning of life. We Americans are great jokers, but now in our lives we have grown sober. A vision of war is in our eyes, one the like of which the old world never saw before. Horror, terror and despair, are sitting down at table. If men can make such ruin in a few short hours of life, who is there to say that the whole of life may not be brought quickly to wreck?

"Who doubts the pitiful ride of life? The greatest of our honored ones must drop affairs that girdle a planet, for an angel in black will come. One generation comes and that is hope and joy. But another generation goes and our hearts break. May not the whole of life, somewhere, also break? Who has not seen the collapse, dread and dire, that sin will carry in its train? Its wages are death. Its ways are hard. Is it more unlikely that life will go out in the dark? May men not perish in eternity, if they surely perish in time? To drift through life must certainly be folly. To awake and be sober can only be wisdom.

"The urgency of life is seen in the calling to action of man's best energies, etc. is to believe; to work out his salvation with fear and trembling; to endure unto the end. Culture comes always at the price of study. Wealth costs toil and risks. Love only begets love. So the care of the soul means the best of any man. No life can be a drift.

"The urgency of life is seen in the daily intervention of the great God. Men cannot care for their souls alone. Evolution is not sufficient in matters of destiny. Except for answers to prayer; for the mighty birth from above; for the constantly outstretched hand of the might lover of men, we perish. If it must be that God shall work in us, there must be a fearful current in life. It is ever so.

"Dust thou are, to dust returneth, was not written of the soul."

DR. COYLE.
PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.
PRACE SYMPATHY NOT WITH KITCHEN DRUDGE, BUT WITH THE IDLER.

"The Bright Light in the Clouds," is the subject discussed yesterday by Dr. R. F. Coyle at the Westlake Presbyterian Church. He chose for his text, Job 37:21. "And now men see not the bright that is in the clouds, but the wind passeth and cleanseth them." In part he said:

"Often the cloud is thicker and blacker over the mansion than over the cabin. Often there is more that is acrid, more wormwood in the golden cup of the rich than in the tin cup of the poor. If we knew all the facts, if we could get a peep behind the scenes, I am not sure but on the whole, quite as much heartache and quite as much sorrow and despair would be found among those in high places as among the lowly. At any rate trouble is no respecter of persons. The arrow is just as likely to pierce the heart of the millionaire as the heart of his chauffeur. The clouds are a fact. But not more so than the bright lights. Behind the frowning providence there is always a smiling face. And so Cowper in one of the darkest hours of his life, sang: 'The clouds we so much dread are big with mercy and will break in blessings on our head.'

"The clouds themselves are children of the sun. It is comforting to think that in the school of life, if the lessons are often hard; if sometimes they almost drive us to distraction, they are a necessary part of a curriculum, which was arranged by the infinite wisdom and love of our Heavenly Father. If you and I could have our way, if it were given to us to search out a programme for our neighbors and fellowmen, what poor blundering work we would make of it. There would be no thorns for the feet, no trials to meet, no difficult river to cross. There would be no shadows, no storms, nothing but fair weather and sunny skies and singing birds. Life would be one long day of health and joy and gladness from the cradle to the grave. But that kind of a programme, so well meant, conceived in generosity and planned in a spirit of utmost benevolence, would mean bane and not blessing. Under such a regime men would become soft and worthless. There could be no heroism; no granite strength; no divine unselfishness; nothing but a race of cowards and effeminates.

"But God is not such a blunderer. His love is too wise to waste itself in easy sentiment. He is too good to destroy men by over much coddling. To do the world's work he wants men of oak and oaks are not developed in sheltered hothouses. The more effort the more man. The more we overcome the more we ascend.

"'We build the ladder by which we rise
From the lowly earth to the vaulted skies,
And climb to the summit round by round.'

"But building and climbing is tremendously serious business. It is to me profoundly suggestive and inspiring to remember that, entirely apart from the redemptive sense, God Himself could not crowd into the world, and crowd into it victoriously, except by the way of the cross. What He asks us to do he does Himself. If it is true evangelically that the way of the cross leads home, it is true in every other direction that the way of the cross is the way to the crown. Calvary is a parable of life. No man who refuses to climb that rugged hill and go on to crucifixion will ever rise to power and glory in the world. The crown of redemption and the crown of creation and every other crown of any permanent value is made of thorns.

"Trials are not pleasant. They chafe, they cut, and sometimes they crush. But some day we shall thank God for them. We do not see their meaning or their beneficence at the time, perhaps. If the light is there, it is hidden. The clouds are too heavy for it to break through, but after awhile the wind passeth and cleanseth them. The darker the setting the brighter the diamond. The more tempest the tougher the fiber in the oak. The hotter the furnace, the more it burns out of us the clinker and the slag. No songstress can sing with so much power as she of the broken heart. The unfortunate people are really those who are always wrapped up in prosperity. It is not the men who are down; not the men who are bruised, buffeted and baffled; not the men whose feet are blistered and sore on the tread-mill of life who need our prayers half as much as those who are always victorious and always on the crest of the wave. Never waste your sympathy on the maid in the kitchen who has to drudge, as we sometimes say, or on the young man who is having the hardest kind of a fight with adversity. Better that a thousand-fold, than ease, idleness and indulgence."

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL.
ONE IN HIS GROWTH SHOULD ACQUIRE BETTER APPRECIATION OF EVERYTHING.

Henry Churchill King, D.D., LL.D., president of Oberlin College, occupied the pulpit at the morning services. Taking as his text the parable of "The Sower," Mark iv:26-29, and as his subject, "Growth," Dr. King spoke in part as follows:

"First of all, growth, in the thought of Jesus, is a priceless opportunity, and he believes it to be an opportunity for all men. It is priceless, for it is the very first condition of eternal hope for men, that they may grow. Jesus brings, therefore, to men the assurance of growth. His liberating word is, you may grow; you may endlessly grow. Jesus thinks of growth, too, as involved in life itself. Growth, indeed, is the mark of life, and belongs to the human endowment. There is no fixed limit beyond which man may not progress. The duty of growth lies upon every one of us. All normal growth, plainly, is in the direction of self-realization, in the line of the nature of the seed, of its intended purpose.

"There comes a time for the human being when physical growth in size ceases, but life still practices 'the strategem of perpetual retreat' by promptly surrendering old tissues and rebuilding it with new. This constant renewal there must be if the man is to continue at his best. Even physical growth, thus, should continue long beyond the time of matured development in stature, else death has already begun to creep in. Age we are learning to measure, even in the physical realm, not by years, but by the cessation of creative renewal of tissue. The physical goal for man is not the biggest body or the strongest muscle, but physical fitness for the longest, largest and best service of higher ends—the best physical adjustment to the environment in which our task must be wrought out, after all possible has been done to make that environment what it ought to be.

"One's intellectual growth, too, should not stop with his formal education. That would be to begin to go backward at once. There is no value in disciplined powers, if they are not used. A man ought to require of himself a growing, intellectual mastery of the problems of life, individual and social, and a more and more adequate, thoughtful and unified expression of them in both word and deed.

"One should plan, too, for growth in esthetic appreciation and in all finer feeling, and let his home reflect this growth. Our generation is peculiarly favored in having both good and cheap reproductions of much that is best in all the arts, but even a few good things are better than many that are inferior. Life stretches before the young. And, for one thing, it should certainly mean that they are to plan for increasing understanding, and honest appreciation and love of the best in music, in painting, in sculpture, in poetry, in all the literature of power.

"And because we are men and not brutes, we shall plan also for moral progress—for the disciplining of the affections and will into obedience to those laws of life that we have intellectually discerned.

"But progress along any of these lines is certain to be opposed at every point. And the man who means to grow must take due account of the enemies of growth. The enemies of growth are both inner and outer, and the power of the outer obstacles is largely determined by the inner attitude.

"The parable of the sower suggests, first of all, that the trodden path of convention, custom, unquestioned presupposition and prejudice, offers no opportunity for the seed of life to get foothold. Growth is not possible to the mere follower of the convention or prejudice, for he lies passive under the pressure from without. He who would grow and would contribute to his age the largest service, must be absolutely true to his own individuality and to his full present light, and while recognizing most fully his great debt to his fellows and to society, he must recognize that he can pay that debt, not by passive submission to the conventional, but only by earnestly and honestly sharing with his fellows his own best vision. The seed cannot grow on the trodden path.

"So is the Kingdom of God, as if a man should cast seed upon earth; and should sleep and rise night and day, and the seed should spring up and grow, he knoweth not how. The earth beareth fruit of herself; first the blade, then the ear, then the full grain in the ear. But when the fruit is ripe, straightway he putteth forth the sickle, because the harvest is come.' Above all, that means that in all your plans for growth you are to count upon the never failing cooperation of God; be sure you cannot be craluped by the limitation of God's plans for you, but only by the smallness of your own expectation. Attempt great things for God. Expect great things from God. And the God of all grace, who called you into His eternal glory in Christ, after that ye have suffered a little while, shall Himself perfect, establish, strengthen you."

MAGNOLIA CHRISTIAN CHURCH.
TOO MANY CHRISTIANS WEAR LIVERY OF HEAVEN WHILE SERVING THE DEVIL.

Rev. R. W. Abberley, at the Magnolia-avenue Christian Church, preached last evening on "Heartfelt Religion," taking as his text, II Timothy, iii-5: "Havinb a form of Godliness, but denying the power thereof." He said in part:

"The needs of the hour is a religion that takes hold upon the affections and manifests its presence in the life. Too many are wearing the livery of heaven to serve the devil in. A tree is known by its fruit, and wherever the love of God is in the heart, there will be righteous dealing with our fellow men.

"You cannot be a devout Christian and a tricky trader; a true worshipper and a bad neighbor; an exemplary church-member and a tyrannical employer. There is as much difference between the form of Godliness and the power of it, as there is between a counterfeit coin and genuine money. A mere form is no more true religion than a stuffed animal is a real animal.

"An empty profession with no heart religion is like a hollow tree which is the home of bats, owls and reptiles. A false heart is the habitation of devils. True religion, on the other hand, is the source of every virtue, it transforms the character; beautifies the life, and blesses the world."

DR. DAVENPORT.
WEST ADAMS M. E. CHURCH.
STUDENTS ALWAYS FIND NEW DEPTH OF THOUGHT IN THE STUDY OF PAUL.

Rev. Dr. C. M. Davenport of Missouri, who is now living in Los Angeles, occupied the pulpit of the West Adams Methodist Episcopal Church yesterday morning. His subject was "Paul's Estimate of Real Values," taken from the text Phil. 3:7. He spoke in part as follows:

"The study of Paul's character and life is fascinating and full of intense interest. The student always finds new depth of thought in it. The most vivid imagination could scarcely create a character with a so romantic career.

"History reveals the truth that Paul labored with a zeal that assumed the world might end before nightfall, and with a wisdom that appears as if it would last forever.

"Ever after the eventful trip to Damascus he was a changed man. The ambitions that once fired and moved him had been forever silenced. A newer and higher motive now actuated his life.

"The vision of Jesus commissioning him to the apostleship had wrought so great a change in his mind, that ever after there burned upon the altar of his heart a flame of holy devotion.

"Paul was never given to boasting except to vindicate the gospel which he preached. The occasion for referring to himself in this epistle was that certain teachers were insisting upon the necessity of conforming to Jewish rites and ceremonies. This estimate of values had undergone a radical change.

"Though he had been educated to believe that by observing the law he could lead a blameless life, he was ever conscious that all his efforts ended in wretched despair. The best that Judaism could do was to make men glittering icebergs of resplendent self-righteousness.

"True, the law had a great purpose. It was to teach men their need of a savior."

REV. LEON TUCKER.
CALVARY BAPTIST CHURCH.
IN SALVATION GOD DOES THE WORK THROUGH JESUS AND THE HOLY SPIRIT.

At Calvary Baptist Church, the pastor, Rev. W. Leon Tucker, spoke yesterday on: "Isaiah's Message Concerning Messiah." He said in part:

"The only person in the universe who can wear the crown of prophecy on his brow is the Lord, Jesus Christ. The source of prophecy is the holy spirit. II Peter, 1:21. The subject of prophecy is the suffering of Christ and the glory to follow. The scope of prophecy is until the day dawns. The programme of all prophecy centers around the person of Christ.

"In the heart of Isaiah is a portion known as the fifty-third chapter. It has been called the Golden Passional of the Old Testament Evangelist. Indeed, when one reads it, it seems more like the history of the New Testament rather than a prophecy of the old. Other prophecies are explained by the history of the New Testament, but this prophecy explains the history of the New Testament.

"It is here we behold the suffering of Christ, and the victorious Christ in one prophecy.

"There are seven statements concerning his suffering and seven statements concerning his glory. It sets forth the salvation divinely accomplished by Christ. Salvation begins with God, continues in God, and is finished in God. Jonah went to a strange college to obtain knowledge, but in this subterranean institution he learned a lesson many preachers have never learned, and that is that salvation is of the Lord.

"It was God who 'so loved the world.'

"It was God who 'commended his love to us.'

"It was God who was 'rich in mercy.'

"It was the Lord who 'laid on him the iniquity of us all.'

"Salvation is a matter in which God takes the initiative, Christ Jesus becomes the instrument, and the holy spirit the imparter."

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

IMPERIAL, Aug. 16.—The Imperial Valley Cotton Growers' Exchange has been moved from El Centro to Imperial, where its headquarters will be maintained in the future. This move was brought about largely on account of the cotton compress which is nearing completion in Imperial. There was also considerable dissatisfaction among the members of the exchange over a proposition to absorb the exchange into the Long Staple Cotton Growers' Association, which was recently formed. The leading members of the exchange held the position that the majority of the valley cotton growers are raising the short staple cotton, and, inasmuch as the exchange is a co-operative institution, it could serve the valley growers best by remaining intact, rather than by becoming absorbed by the long staple association.

WOMAN TAKES POISON.

Despondent because of the absence of her husband, Mrs. Bertha Taylor of No. 356 South Glass street, swallowed a quantity of poison apparently with suicidal intent last night, but was subsequently resuscitated at the Receiving Hospital. Mrs. Taylor took the poison in the presence of her three small children, who informed the neighbors and the police were called. The woman will recover.

AN INSANE FREAK.

A Young Man Takes a Day Off from the Asylum, Gets Married and Leaves Bride in the Lurch.

[Chicago Herald:] Harold Fabyan Hoops is still rocking the boat. He took a day off from the State Asylum for the Insane at Elgin, where he has been since last December, and ran over to Chicago and took unto himself a wife. Of course, he has another wife, who has been striving desperately for a divorce but, then Harold never did stop for conventions.

He came to Chicago with Dr. O. Hogan, from the asylum, and went out to see his millionaire father, William H. Hoops. He borrowed $25 from his father and hurried downtown to buy a suit of clothes.

On Jackson boulevard he stopped before a scene of beauty. It was Hortense Carson, a tall brunette.

"I'm a young doctor from Elgin," said Hoops to the girl. "I've got a dandy practice out there and am making loads of coin. What I want, though, is a wife just about your size. What do you say?"

"What do I say?" cried the girl, joyously. "Let's have it over with right away."

The pair were married by Judge Burke. In getting a license Hoops denied his identity or that insanity existed in his family.

Then Harold took his new-found bride to a hotel and gave a dinner. It was a jolly party. Harold left in the midst of it.

"I've got to cut over to the Annex and get a check cashed," he explained.

He went out to his father's home at No. 4105 Drexel boulevard.

SOUTH AMERICAN COUNTRIES.

Comparatively Few People in the United States Know Much About The Countries to the South of Us.

[Boston Transcript:] Unfortunately for both political and trade relations, there are millions of people in the United States who have no more knowledge of South America than they have of South Africa. The picture of South America that rises to the mind's eye of these people is that of a collection of crude countries much given to "revolutions" and lacking the great promoting agencies of civic progress. How false is the picture is evidenced by one fact alone which the telegraph has just brought us. A census of Buenos Aires gives its population as 1,560,163. Buenos Aires is booming and it is not booming without plan. It is a handsome city, in sections even luxurious, but modern improvements have kept pace with growth and the Argentine metropolis testifies to intelligent administration and high civic spirit. Rio de Janeiro, the second city in South America, does not lag so very far behind Buenos Aires. It must have at least 1,200,000 inhabitants, and in its development the opportunities for embellishment have not been neglected. There are many considerable cities scattered throughout South America, some of which are worthy the attention of North American "planners."

WHO OWNS THE AIR?

The Landowner Has Something to Say About the Passage Over His Territory by Air Craft.

[Law Bulletin:] Just as in public law the English view supports the sovereignty of the state over the whole air space and treats the right of passage of airships as a favor, so in private law it is likely to maintain the dominion of the land owner over the superjacent air and to regard the passage of air craft as a privilege. The courts, indeed, have not yet been called upon to express a considered judgment on the question, nor is it likely that the owners of land will press strictly their rights of exclusive enjoyment against pioneers of air travel who happen to fly over their property. But in England it is to be expected that a private aerial law will be developed, not by the laying down of new and somewhat dangerous principles, but by the application of the rules of the common law to the new conditions. The law of nuisance and the law of trespass are at present sufficient to protect owners of property; the public interest is adequate to secure fair play for aviators.

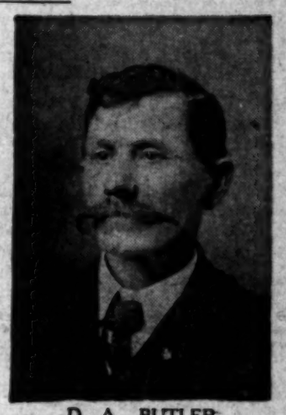
Sunny California Climate Fails To Restore Health to Easterner

D. A. Butler Gets Relief From 20 Years' Stomach Trouble by Using Akoz.



D. A. BUTLER

"Three years of California climate failed to do for me what four months of Akoz did," said D. A. Butler, for forty years an optician of Murphysboro, Ill., now living at 807½ Clanton street, Los Angeles. Continuing he tells of his long siege of stomach trouble and what Akoz, the wonderful medicinal mineral, did to end his suffering:

"About 20 years ago my stomach began to go back on me. At first I did not pay much attention to the gas that formed nor the occasional pains. However, the trouble got worse and I began to doctor, but my suffering increased. Eight years ago I had to give up my work. My stomach refused to receive any solid food, and during that time I existed on toast and milk. Even this diet soured my stomach. Three years ago I came to Los Angeles hoping the change of climate would benefit me, but it did not. Last January I saw what Akoz had done for a man suffering with stomach trouble, and I determined to try the mineral. I was fortunate in seeing Mr. Mackenzie, discoverer of Akoz, and he explained it thoroughly to me. I began to take the mineral water. In less than a month the gas disappeared. In another month the sourness and pains were gone, and I was eating three hearty meals a day. After four months I had increased my weight from 119 to 132 pounds. I give all credit for my recovery to Akoz."

Akoz has proven effective in treating thousands of cases of stomach trouble, rheumatism, diabetes, Bright's disease, catarrh, ulcers, eczema, piles, poison oak and other ailments. For sale at all leading drug stores where further information may be had regarding this advertisement.

THE EXPECTED GUEST.

Carranza may enter Mexico City at any hour. What the inhabitants would like to know is when Villa is to be expected.

THE FAIR HOMESTEADER.

A charming Colorado girl has quit Denver and gone into a wilderness to take up a homestead. If women must invade the domain of man it is entirely comfortable to have them begin by establishing homes.

THE JOY OF WORK.

Some men pity others for working hard. They wonder that the busy ones would not stop oftener to enjoy life. The surprise comes the other way. The true wonder is that more men do not discover what play work can be and the mad joy of creating through intelligent effort.

DODGING THE ISSUE.

President Wilson objects to having American bankers loan money to countries at war, but he has no objection to making loans to those that are neutral. Of course, he cannot prevent the neutral governments from making reloans, which would be like subletting American eagles.

WHAT MEN LIVE BY.

Dr. Richard C. Cabot of Harvard thought he knew and he wrote a book about it. His work had and is yet having a big sale, but if food prices continue to advance heaven only knows what men will live by or how they will manage to live at all. Dr. Cabot may then add to his popularity and his fortune by bringing on a revised version.

THE UHLANS' RECORD.

If the dispatches are to be trusted how, by the ordinary process of war, can the allies ever expect to defeat such fighters as the Uhlans? Since the war started we have learned that the entire body of Uhlans has been annihilated on five different occasions, and recent reports declare it still to be at the front actively awaiting another annihilation.

TEMPERING THE WIND.

California's climate is equal to anything. This being a rather tight year financially, a great many people feel that they ought to stick to business instead of taking a vacation. California weather seems to have understood and has been so delightful that nobody has really needed a vacation. Nobody could leave Los Angeles for the summer with any possible hope of finding more acceptable weather.

PREPARE FOR PROSPERITY.

The Panama Canal is just beginning to be of actual value. Ships are now arranging their courses to take advantage of its benefits. That means that the hour of growth and development Los Angeles has been watching and preparing for draws near. Prosperity—greater prosperity than we have ever had is close at hand. It will be welcome; it is always welcome; but we will not be satisfied. Prosperity must continue to grow, getting bigger and better every year.

MAGAZINE ENGLISH.

Now and then a magazine editor rises up and smites the "newspaper English." It is not always perfect, but it is seldom deliberately so bad as that which appeared in the ex-muckraking publication called "Everybody's." On the cover "Everybody's" recently invited all of us to look at what so-and-so "done." Inside the cover the editor had a foreword in which he said: "We hate to write this." Perhaps the editor of "Everybody's" was merely being humorous, for certainly he knows better.

INDORSEMENT AND GRAFT.

The "federation" that has been organized to indorse candidates for 10 per cent. of their first year's salary in office has an analogy in the race-track tout who "indorses" a certain horse to win—and if the horse accidentally wins the tout then comes around and tries to collect a percentage for the tip. Any candidate who is so in need of support as to agree to buy the indorsement of a grafting "federation" may be wiped off the slate at once as a negligible factor in the approaching campaign.

NOT THE ANSWER.

The advice to housewives and general consumers to curtail the consumption of staples on which prices have increased is hardly logical, and to obey it would have scant results. Those who have these articles to sell would merely send them where they could get the best market price while the goods substituted in their stead would only sell for more money as the demand increased. There can be no local cure for the hardship of high prices. Indeed, it looks worse than national. It assumes the aspect of a world sickness.

EMOTIONAL ENGLISHMEN.

And all of these many years we have given the Frenchman credit for being extremely emotional, and have pronounced the Englishman as calmly sad, even to the extent of taking his pleasure sorrowfully. Sir Thomas Barclay has recently published a book—"Thirty Years' Anglo-French Reminiscences"—in which he says: "Talkative Frenchmen are really less emotional than the relatively silent Englishmen whose silence they admire." So must it be that if a person really wants to appear emotional he must be silent and quiet.

OVERSEAS—THE SITUATION TO DATE.

Dispatches from both London and Paris last night indicated that the advance guards of the German army are engaged in fierce conflict with the forces of the allies along the Meuse, and that the general battle which it is thought may be the decisive one of the war is in progress. The reports also state that so far the Germans have been repulsed and the allies are said to be acting on the offensive.

There is intense interest awakened by the announcement of Japan's ultimatum to Germany ordering the Kaiser to withdraw his vessels from the orient and evacuate Kiao Chau. This is regarded at Washington as inevitably bringing the Far East into the conflict. The Japanese Ambassador has communicated the action to Bryan with the assurance that Japan is in no way interested in the acquisition of territory, but merely desires to preserve the integrity of China, and she has been forced to take this action through her alliance with England.

Fierce fighting is reported to be in progress on the Austro-Russian and the Austro-Servian frontier. Up to date little has been said about the movements of the fleets, the censorship apparently keeping them clothed in mystery.

THE ANGLO-JAPANESE ALLIANCE.

Japan's formal entry in the war means more to the United States than we care to admit. It will also mean a good deal more to Great Britain than she will admit in her calmer moments, for her unprecedented alliance with Japan (which was renewed as recently as 1911) set the whole occidental world a-gasp.

That alliance was at once a brilliant stroke of international political diplomacy and a most dangerous. It may easily prove to be a two-edged weapon for England—brilliant as a temporary expedient, but full of deadly portent for the future.

To the Australians, that section of the British empire which it most closely affected at the time, it seemed that England was playing the amateur snake charmer and must surely rue the day. For Australia, a vast, but thinly populated continent, has always feared the growing power of Japan. There has never been any doubt in their minds but that Japan coveted those vast, fertile acres for her crowded population and her ever expanding interests.

But instead of adding to and strengthening the British fleet in Australian waters England consummated this staggering alliance with the ambitious oriental—raised her to the dignity of a world power, entered into a close, far-reaching contract with the enemy.

It has proved all that was hoped for it, that alliance. It has permitted the British fleet to concentrate greater strength in home waters against this very day. As time went on the Australians began to perceive the brilliance of the diplomacy, but they have never slackened in their fears.

Seven years ago, when the "German peril" held the headlines in the British newspapers and all British dominions were moved to patriotic emotion, Australia contributed her dreadnought to the mother fleet, but at the same time laid the foundation for one of her own for self-defense. She never took kindly to the idea of being protected by her aggressive oriental neighbor—it wounded her self-respect to the quick.

For this Anglo-Japanese alliance was no blood or sentimental friendship; it had no foundations in lofty motives and noble purposes. It was purely international diplomacy for self-interest, quid pro quo, and the prejudice of the whole occidental world was against it.

Japan's entry into the war at this stage is little short of alarming. Her contract with England, such of it as has been published, called for no such intervention. Originally designed against Russian and German aggression in the Far East, England's Foreign Secretaries have again and again insisted that Japanese aid would never be invoked unless British interests in that section of the world were seriously menaced. Knowing the apparently limited scope of the alliance, it is to be presumed that Germany has so far made no such aggressions. In not one, but in many speeches the Kaiser has made it plain that he appreciated to the full the yellow peril, and it is but logical to suppose that Germany would strain every effort to avoid any action that would invoke the intervention of Japan.

It is not stretching imagination too far to assume that England has hastily made new and wider treaties with Japan—and that Japan does not expect to come out of the fray empty-handed. For the joy of dealing a deadly stroke to the German eagle and mulcting him of his Far Eastern possessions England has given a hostage to fortune and mortgaged the future.

And in that future the interests and welfare of these United States have a large stake.

Japan's first action has been to declare war upon the German fleet in the Pacific, and her next goal will be Kiao Chau, Germany's port in China—which she has long coveted and will doubtless retain as a prize of war.

This will necessitate the violation of the neutrality of China in the same way that Germany has violated the neutrality of Belgium; but the Chinese will probably follow the policy of masterly inactivity as distinct from Belgian belligerency, unless, indeed, the newly awakened China under her Yuan Shi Kai dictator should elect this moment as the psychological one in which to unite all her internal warring factions in a common cause against the aggressor. Then, indeed, will the world be in a turmoil.

And with the violation of neutrality as a recognized factor in this war the greater and more intimate question arises as to how long we shall succeed in keeping the Panama Canal neutral. The greatest engineering feat of the age and our national triumph may conceivably prove our greatest embarrassment in the near future.

That we can defend the canal against all aggressions is indubitable; but that we should be called upon to defend it, called upon to defend our neutrality even as Belgium, is disquieting enough—and more improbable things are toward in this day of surprise and uncertainty.

For the nonce Japan is warring side by side with her erstwhile enemy, Russia—a decade ago such a condition was unthinkable. Under the circumstances Germany cannot hope to hold her Far Eastern possessions and Japan finds an easy and rich opportunity thrust under her nose. It is but human to suppose that she will take every advantage of it; and there is no limit to the ambitions of Japan. Another great naval and military success will very naturally be regarded by the Japanese as a certificate of their power and importance.

A MERCANTILE MOSQUITO FLEET.

Our American people are naturally all agog over the chance war and fate have provided for the building of a mercantile marine worthy of so progressive a nation. The ocean carrying traffic is demoralized; freight rates are soaring. The two nations that have controlled the intercontinental traffic are out of commission. American goods that heretofore have been shipped in British and German bottoms must now be shipped under the American flag—or not at all. Our exporters are clamoring for boats.

The first lesson of the war for Americans is the lack of foresight shown in trusting our overseas traffic to foreign freighters and merchantmen.

Big business may buy big ships. With equal profit little business may buy little ships; nor is the value of little ships of 2000 tons up to be despised. The amount of international trade carried on by small tramp steamers—and the toll foreigners have thus taken from American producers—runs into figures that would astonish the landsman. Here is a chance for small American investors to get into a big game, too long overlooked because its advantages have not been adequately presented.

By the time affairs in Europe are peaceably adjusted again America may be running big Atlantic liners under the Stars and Stripes. With proper encouragement from our government we may also have an American mercantile mosquito fleet of tramp steamers to enrich our own citizens instead of supplying more shipbuilding funds for foreign owners.

In mining and oil prospecting schemes, often wild cat—in tropical rubber plantations, generally failures—in exploiting new inventions of doubtful expediency American investors by thousands have always been ready to take long chances. These are speculations pure and simple. To buy up small freighters and ocean tramps and use the same immediately for moving the paralyzed ocean commerce is not a speculation, but an investment.

To meet the present crisis the restriction against placing foreign-built vessels on an American register will probably be removed by our government. Many foreign ship owners whose boats are a useless expense on their hands while the general European war is in progress will be glad to sell these to American buyers at figures far below their intrinsic value. Also, since the government has promised to step in and insure American boats at reasonable rates until normal conditions are restored, the American owners of these purchased vessels will be able to get to work at once in moving ocean freight. The benefit to all nations will be immediate; the profit to the new American owners will be enormous.

On a limited scale our new mercantile marine could be started at once here in Los Angeles and near-by cities. Groups of ten, twenty or thirty citizens, all known to one another, could get together and, by subscribing a small sum each, raise enough money to buy a tramp steamer and, under the American flag, safely engage cargoes for any port in the world. With the increased rates for cargo made possible by war conditions such a steamer would soon pay for itself. A dozen or so of small companies of California citizens could thus soon have a small mosquito fleet of merchantmen sailing from California ports. By the time peace again prevailed the nucleus would have been formed for a world-wide American mercantile marine.

As the movement grew the various small companies owning one or two boats apiece could reach a general working agreement for routing their vessels, just as the orange growers of Southern California appointed a general business management to attend to the shipping of their fruit. Each citrus grower in the Citrus Union is independent; each company in the California Ship Owners' Union would also be independent. Practical men with a business knowledge of ocean shipping would simply take general charge for the best interests of all concerned.

Look at the South American trade alone and see what wonderful opportunities it presents to the people of California if they act quickly and step in now and capture it. Our Pacific States are maritime States. In all history no maritime people has been so backward as ours in handling its own ocean commerce. Once let us supply an efficient fleet of merchantmen for the Pacific—be the boats never so small—and no power on earth can ever dislodge us from the Pacific Ocean trade lanes.

Small combinations of neighbors—by such means as these irrigation districts have been formed to add millions of dollars to the wealth of our State. By such means the citrus industry was rescued from the clutches of the commission men and placed upon a paying basis. Why should not the same process be employed to give us a Californian mosquito fleet of merchantmen as a supplement to the coming new gigantic American mercantile marine.

American boats for the Pacific Ocean is a cry that should appeal equally to the patriotic, the commercial and the adventurous spirit of our California people.

A HERESY.

It is perhaps high treason to speak lightly of the new woman, especially since she is a glowing success wherever she is permitted to demonstrate, but we are tempted to voice a skepticism, daring and deep. Frankly, we doubt if there is such a thing as a feminist movement, or if there ever can be anything of that nature. It is a dangerous thing for one man to neglect one woman. It is a fatal error in so far as he is concerned. It is more dangerous for many men to neglect many women, whether they are aware of their neglect or not. Such weakness and stupidity could only end in women hardening to the point of strength and definiteness of bearing sons too primitive in their strength to neglect their mates. The first demand of such sons would be an exceedingly old-fashioned girl. That would be a logical and charming end of what is termed the feminist movement.

WALT MASON IN THE TIMES.

"Oh, William Henry," said the boss, "I find you are a total loss, you fill me with disgust; your mind is never on your job, and when you work you fairly sob with sorrow, that you must. You're thinking of the baseball game when you should hump your lazy frame at cleaning up the floor; your thoughts are all of having fun, you do not try to earn your mon—I'll need you here no more." I would not give much for the boy who does not find a mighty joy in corking games of ball; but in this weary world of prunes we must improve some afternoons—amusement isn't all. Go to the game, O youthful fan, go there whene'er you rightly can not neglect your task; and when you're there be unafraid, yell loud and long, drink lemonade, eat peanuts by the cask. But when the jamboree is o'er, and you are back at work once more, forget the fun you had; with other willing workers join and try to earn the boss's coin, the kopeck and the scad. It's bad to mix your work and play; be joyful on your holiday and earnest when you toil, and in the long, glad years to come your luck will not be out of plumb, the pot will always boil.

OBLIGATIONS AND PICKINGS.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

And now Japan has formally given notice of her belligerency on behalf of great Britain.

To the ordinary observer Japanese obligations would seem to be a little remote, even in this universal war. When her alliance with Great Britain was renewed in 1911 the contingency in which her aid would be necessary appeared very different. Russian and German acquisitiveness in regard to China were understood to be the chief objective, and in any case Japan was only to intervene should British interests and shipping in the Far East be in danger.

It has not so far been evident that Germany, the only sea enemy which England has to fear, has made an aggressive move in the Far Eastern waters. Knowing the exact scope of the alliance it is to be presumed that Germany would be particularly watchful not to bring occasion for Japanese interference within the range of necessity.

But Japan, who has so repeatedly reiterated her desire for a long peace in which to recuperate, has thus early announced her activity on behalf of her distant ally in the European war.

What, exactly, does it mean? In these practical days we may be excused for being a little inquisitive, a little cynical. What is Japan going to get out of it?

There are two things Japan as a nation wants very much. A free hand in China, and unconditional emigration to foreign countries by which no discrimination is made against an oriental as an oriental. Besides those definite requirements Japan has yearnings toward empire, and those two concessions from the occidental powers would go far to make her dreams possible.

What tacit promise does Japan hold from Great Britain? What, exactly, are Japan's great expectations? These are questions which affect these United States more closely than we care to admit.

And they affect the future of the British empire more than England would care to admit in her calm moments.

When she entered into the Japanese alliance the whole occidental world was agasp. The continent of Australia, a vast, but thinly populated British possession, had always feared Japanese aggression. That Japan wanted Australia, with its great, fertile, unpeopled lands, has become a creed in the Antipodes. When England formed that cunning—and perhaps too cunning—alliance, Australia wrung her hands. To her it seemed that England was playing the amateur snake charmer and would surely rue the day.

That day may not be far distant, but we may rest assured that this is no natural friendship. Japan and England have no special tie of blood or sentiment—nothing but expedient self-interest. Les affaires sont les affaires.

Sir Edward Grey's declaration that England had entered this war for the deeper object of maintaining the integrity of treaties was eminently correct. International treaties were becoming very much like capital and labor settlements—to be observed just so long as they suited and no longer.

In which connection one is interested to know how England reconciles her declaration with Italy's attitude of aggressive neutrality to the Triple Alliance. It is even rumored today that Italy would join the Triple Entente rather than fight by the side of Austria and Germany, her former allies.

Treaties, like all contracts, can become very irksome. Born of expediency, designed on the assumption that unity is strength, they are so often a fertile source of weakness. They are rarely the outcome of friendship, sentiment, or noble motives. For profit or protection, for aggression or from fear, they can scarcely be expected to weather a great crisis—and they seldom do. A crisis means altered conditions and the craven of yesterday can so easily be the arrogant swaggerer of tomorrow.

It is hard, indeed, for a nation to be drawn into all the misery and brutalities of a quarrel that is none of her making.

Because two families across the way choose to have a serious falling out seems no good reason why they should overrun the domicile of a third neighbor and wreck the home, as they will.

These poor neutral neighbors! When war is over their goods and chattels will be divided up among the victors, if there are any left to divide. If they merely fight to maintain their neutrality, or if they take sides in the row, they will still be the worst losers, and never a gain in sight.

If Germany and Austria win this war Belgium and Luxemburg will inevitably become part of Germany. As also will Holland and Denmark in course of time, for Germany has made no secret of such aspirations in the past. If they lose, Belgium and Luxemburg, and probably Holland and Denmark, too, will have but chaotic wreckage to clear away, and must bury their dead and set their houses in order as best they may. There is nothing for them in this war, either way.

If the Anglo-Franco-Russian allies win they will all get their pickings—France her lost provinces, Russia her Constantinople and Turkish dominions, England her added prestige and her enhanced command of the seas. And Japan her quota.

SERAPHS SWAMP TIGERS TWICE AND WIN SERIES.

Not Bad.

ANGELS TAKE THE SERIES.

Hogan's Men Slaughtered in the Afternoon.

Ryan Allows Only Two Hits in the Morning.

Twenty Bingles, Fifteen Runs Off Three Heavers.

BY CLYDE A. BRUCKMAN.

After years of humiliation and subjugation at the hands of the Tigers, the Angels rose up yesterday on all fours and smote the Venice horde twice in the vital spot. They rose so violently that they terrified the inhabitants for miles around. The Angels incidentally captured the series four games to three with one tie game.

Jack Ryan sneaked out a 2-to-1 victory in the eye opener and then came the afternoon victory of retribution. The Angels won that victory with fifteen runs against the Tigers' three. Those three were presented in the ninth when Musser and his friends let down and toyed with the miserable Hoganites.

REVENGE.

In that afternoon affair the Angels made up for these years of lickings, lost series, jeers and hoots from the Hogan crowd and a dozen other things that have made life miserable for them in these interfamily clashes.

SLUGGING.

Twenty hits and fifteen runs represents the sum total of the effectiveness of the Venice heavers. One of those hits was a home run off the bat of Harry Wolter. It came in the fifth inning and landed in the right field bleachers on the fly. It won a suit of clothes for Harry. Dillon had bet him that he would not perform the feat during the entire season.

Cack Henley opposed Musser at the start of the afternoon game. Musser was steadier than a Swiss family clock throughout the entire afternoon. He fanned seven men and allowed four hits. The three runs will not be held against him. He could easily have scored a shut-out. Cack lasted until the end of the fifth inning. In that period of time he was assaulted for twelve hits and six runs.

TO THE RESCUE.

Hap then shoved U. S. Smith onto the mound with instructions to stop the Angels. Smith tried hard and we will have to give him credit for gamenes under excruciating fire. He lasted two-thirds of an inning. He allowed five hits, walked two and was charged with some five or six runs. Upon Smith's disappearance from the game, Spec Harkness was picked as the Venice martyr.

Wolter singled, Metzger walked, Harper sacrificed and Abstein singled in the first run during the opening inning of the afternoon game. Mere trifle.

SOME SLAM.

Moore started the second with a single and Johnson doubled to left, putting Charley on third. Brooks singled them both in. He went to second on Musser's out and waited there while Wolter fanned. Metzger then hit a terrific drive over Bayless's head and it rolled to the center field fence. Brooks scored easily and Metzger was executed at home trying to make a home run out of the blow.

Abstein pulled one of the funniest plays of the season during the fifth inning. Wolter started that inning with his home run. Metzger singled and was nipped trying to steal second. Harper fanned and Abstein singled. Bill started for second on the first pitched ball. McLean's peg was in Leard's hands while Abstein was still twenty feet from second base. He stopped, turned around and walked slowly back towards first base with disgust written all over his face.

WILY BILL.

Leard watched him for a few seconds and then started slowly after him. He didn't know what to do about it. Finally Bill neared first base and started to dash for the bag. Leard shot the ball to Borton and Babe dropped the throw, making Bill

Jack Ryan, who let down Hogan's scrappy crew with two measly hits at Venice yesterday morning.

EHMKE WILL BE SENATOR.

Kid Ehmke is going up to the big hedge next year. The Washington American League club notified Hen Berry yesterday that they would exercise their option on Ehmke. He will report next spring.

The Washington and Los Angeles clubs are working together. Hughes, Love, Calvo and Buck Barton came to the Angels last spring from the Washington club. Some money was involved and the Senators were allowed the choice of the local club. Ehmke is the man picked by Clark Griffin.

Ehmke broke into the Coast League from Glendale High School and proceeded to win eight straight games. He then contracted a sore arm and went bad until last week, when he finished the eighteen-inning game between the Tigers and Angels in fine fashion.

Theory Exploded.

NO ATHLETIC HEART SAYS GREAT GERMAN PHYSICIAN.

Heart Affected No More Than Kidneys, Says Savant. Greatest Effect on the Brain—Long Walks Are More Dangerous Than Sudden Exertion — Nervous People Are Best Athletes.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—Prof. Albert Albu, German's greatest authority on nutrition and on the hygiene of sport, has published a pamphlet which upsets many current notions as to the physiological effect of games, training and over-exertion. He laughs at most accepted ideas and sets up a new sport theory of his own, the main point of which is that a man is either fit, or not fit, for sport, and that in the first case it is immaterial what sport he chooses.

ALL AFFECT BODY.

All sports which require strained bodily exertion affect the body, says Prof. Albu, in the same way. The supposed physiological difference between quick, brief, and violent games and slow games with sustained bodily strain, does not exist.

The effect upon heart and kidneys is identical; and it is a mistake to think that the heart is affected by the first and not by the second.

The organ which is affected is the brain.

Violent sports which involve overheating have dangers for the brain, but for the heart they have no more dangers than has slow, heavy exertion. The hearts of a long-distance walker and of a football player undergo the same strains and risks.

ANY OLD GAME.

Albu says that from the hygienic standpoint the choice of games and sports is immaterial. A game affects Shooting Breakers Some Sport.

GIRLS ARE TAKING UP NERVY PASTIME.

FAIR MERMAIDS RIDING BREAKERS NO LONGER UNCOMMON SIGHT HERE.

Surf board riding, practically unknown to the California Coast until Duke Kahanamoku and George Freeth introduced it, is fast becoming a fad with both men and women.

Although rather dangerous, its thrills attract most bathers. Even the girls are becoming experts at riding the breakers, probably the result of some beauty experts declaring in favor of it.

Whatever the motive, it shows that the girl athletes are game to take a chance. Parental disapproval on account of the danger involved or fear of an audience while learning may explain the many recent occasions of early morning practice.

Miss Jeannette Kinney,

After Deer.

SHORT SEASON BRINGS HUNTERS OUT IN BUNCH.

MANY deer hunters are out this season; more than have been out for several seasons, probably on account of the cut in the time limit. Because of this cut, exceptionally fine hunting is expected. A wave of carefulness seems to have swept over the hunters and the concensus of opinion among them is that there will be fewer accidents and fewer does killed this season.

All of the camps from Switzer's, in the Arroyo, to Strain's, on Mt. Wilson, report large numbers of red hats in the mountains, and many more are expected shortly. At Mt. Wilson the deer have been coming close to camp and feeding, but with the coming of the hunters they have been staying farther away.

The first deer of the season was killed Saturday morning shortly after 5 o'clock by Ralph Marhoefer, driver of the Mt. Wilson auto stage on the trail between Mt. Wilson and Mt. Lowe, who went hunting in the machine early and brought his first buck down with a crack revolver shot. It is predicted that no attempt to hold up the Mt. Wilson stage will be made in the immediate future.

James Miller, B. F. Morehouse and Scotty Miller of Paso Robles started into the Calabasas Mountains at about 2 o'clock Saturday morning and at 7 bagged their first buck. He weighed 125 pounds dressed. It was a 25-75 Winchester that brought him down.

One of the first hunters to bag a deer in the San Bernardino Mountains was Donald Swarthart, the 14-year-old "deer-hunting kid" of the Big Meadows country. This makes the eighth deer that the boy has slain, and for the past few years the youngster has bagged a deer on the morning that the season opened. John Williams of Los Angeles, Fred Peck, Allen Paddock, Will Swing and Ralph Swing also killed fine bucks.

Victory for Outlaws.

FIELDER JONES SIGNS TO MANAGE ST. LOUIS FEDS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Fielder Jones, who gained baseball fame by his successful management of the "hitless wonders" of the Chicago Americans, has been signed as manager of the St. Louis Federal League team and will take charge there next Friday.

Announcement of this latest coup of the new organization was made here tonight by James A. Gilmore, president of the "Outlaws."

He said that Jones resigned as president of the Northwestern League at Portland, Or., this afternoon, and that the former major leaguer would start for St. Louis tomorrow.

Gilmore announced further that "Miner" Brown, the "three-fingered pitching marvel" whose duels with Christy Mathewson used to enliven the Cubs-Giants series, would remain with the St. Louis Federals as a player. Brown organized and took charge of the team at the opening of the campaign, but after a spurt in which his men led the new league and roused enthusiasm for it in St. Louis, there came a slump which the manager could not overcome. The resultant loss of patronage led the owners of the club to seek new managing powers.

Gilmore and Jones met at St. Louis last Tuesday and the former said they had little difficulty in reaching terms. He would not state what these were, but because Jones has refused several offers from several major league clubs and quit active playing because Charles Comiskey would not sell him stock in the White Sox, it is thought that at least some of the shares in the St. Louis Federals are to be transferred to the new manager.

"I think the deal is one of the biggest witnessed in baseball circles in years," said Gilmore, "by a coincidence I was enabled to announce it on the day picked as our finish by one of the leading opponents. I certainly am mighty tickled to have landed Jones for he will strengthen us in every department."

EASTERNER LOOKS LIKE A SLUGGER.

SINCE RED WATSON IS ALSO A KNOCK-'EM-DEAD FIGHTER IT SHOULD BE GOOD.

BY DE WITT VAN COURT.

Willie Beecher, the little New York lightweight who is to meet Red Watson next Friday night at the Vernon Arena, worked out in great style before a small attendance at Jack Doyle's training quarters yesterday afternoon.

If we can judge by the earnestness Willie and Watson are putting into their training there will surely be a great fight.

Each is an aggressive boxer and likes the rough mixing. Beecher boxes more like Kid (George) Lavigne than any lightweight I have ever seen.

While he may not be as good a hitter as the Kid, he is working all the time, and the best feature of his boxing is that he never holds or clinches. He is fighting all the time, any time he has one of his arms free he puts it to work hitting.

A REVELATION.

Beecher's style will be a revelation to the sticklers for the Marquis of Queensbury rules, and I am sure he will make a hit with the fans, win or lose.

He has become somewhat homesick, as this is the first time he has been so long away from his wife and 11-month-old baby boy, whom he dreams of night and day.

Willie is never prouder than when he can exhibit his baby boy's picture to his friends, and believe me, he is some boy.

He boxed several rounds each with both Dummy Jordan and Charlie Dalton, and finished in good condition. He will continue to workout every afternoon until next Friday.

M'AULIFFE GOOD.

Eddy McAuliffe who is to meet Earl Puryear in the ten round semi-windup to the Beecher-Watson contest worked out with Frankie Doolan, the Movie bantamweight champion. Both of these boys are rounding into good condition and expect to win.

McAuliffe is improving fast under the coaching of Earl Mohan, who is training and managing him, and should be in better condition and give a better account of himself than at any time since his arrival here.

Mohan is using some of Jimmie Dime's methods of training, and there is a decided improvement in his work.

LEVY MEETS CROSS.

Joe Levy, manager of Joe Rivers and Leach Cross who won the decision from Rivers, met for the first time since last Tuesday night and the following conversation took place.

After shaking hands, Levy said, "You were surely lucky to get that decision from Rivers, you did not win it" Pulling a Denver paper out of his pocket, he handed it to Leach and said, "Read that, and you will see that Rivers was given the majority of rounds."

"But," said Cross, "I was given the decision by the referee and that goes!

"Yes," said Levy, "Charlie Eyton gave you the decision, but you had him buffaloed from start to finish, and I will hand it to you. Any man that can buffalo Eyton is a clever fellow."

Levy got peeved first and then Leach got peeved. But after a half hour's argument, they shook hands and said that if the chance ever offered again they would fight it out for good.

Sam Wallach denies this and says it is not so. Manager John is hot after Leach for another go, and says he will bet $2500 that Willie can beat Cross in a twenty-round contest.

For some reason or other, this match does not appeal to the Cross family. Riesler also says that he has offered to match his boy Beecher with Johnny Dundee. "Johnny has run out on us twice," says John, "but he has accepted a match with Johnny Kilbane with a $2000 guarantee, and turned down an offer for a $2500 side bet to meet Beecher."

If he or Scotty Mcntieth are so confident of beating Willie, why don't he accept the $2500 offer?

There is surely something back of this boy Beecher. He must be a tough boy, or there would not be so much side-stepping of him.

Now Leach and Dundee, come through and show your true colors.

VENUS BEATS THE COLUMBINE.

Changed Handicaps Cause a Wrangle.

Fellows II Makes Fast Time Around Course.

LONG BEACH, Aug. 16.—Variable winds and a close handicap made the races for the Examiner cup interesting this afternoon, Venus by clever handling winning over the Columbine by more than two minutes. Vite was a good third, and the Olita, the fourth entry, somewhat outclassed because of her weight, came in fourth.

Dissatisfied with the handicaps in the last two races, and claiming today's race because the original handicap was changed, Charles Fulton withdrew the Columbine from the Sunset moorings tonight after expressing his dissatisfaction. Fulton, supported by Joe Sepulveda, owner of the Columbine, claimed that the original handicaps would have given them the race by ten minutes, and that, because the cup was a perpetual trophy, the handicaps set at the beginning of the regatta should have been adhered to.

BIG HANDICAP.

The Venus was given 24 minutes over the Columbine, and the Vite 17 minutes over the fast boat by Commodore Mitchell yesterday, gauging the handicaps by the time the yachts made yesterday.

When Vice-Commodore J. E. Munsey in the timer's boat LaSirena gave the sloops the gun at 2.15 o'clock, a stiff westerly wind was blowing and a fog hung over the ocean. Skipper Farnham brought the Venus across the line first, Olita following in a half minute, Columbine third and Vite last.

PRETTY PICTURE.

The sail to the bellbuoy in the stiff breeze made a pretty picture for the watchers alongshore and in the many yachts which had gathered to witness the race. The boats heeled nearly to their keels, and the first leg was made in fast time, the Columbine drawing away from all of the boats in the two-mile leg.

The fog had cleared after the yachts got well under way, and the run before the wind to the flag was made in fast time. On the beat home, however, the wind died down, and the racers had a heavy time of it rounding the timer's boat.

VENUS SECOND.

By dint of making the most of the light wind on the second lap, the Venus managed to keep ahead of her rival the Vite, and the race between these boats was a pretty one on the second leg. The Venus shook out her spinnaker just as she rounded the bellbuoy, and kept her three minutes lead over the Vite, when she crossed the line 20 minutes behind the Columbine. In the original handicap the Columbine was made the scratch boat and the Venus was given 12 minutes, and the Vite 7 minutes. The handicap of the Olita was 18 minutes originally, and 26 minutes today.

This is the first time that the Venus has won the trophy. The Columbine won the race for the cup in 1911, in 1913 there was no race, and the Clipper won it last year. The cup never becomes the possession of any one yacht. Under the conditions by which it was offered, it is to be contested for until Gabriel blows his trumpet in the ordinary course of events.

EDRIS AGAIN.

Capt. Barneson's Edris won the race to Bird Rock, Santa Catalina Island, today, beating the Yankee Girl, Commodore A. J. Mitchell's yacht, by 14 minutes. The Sweetheart became lost in the fog off the breakwater early in the race and, although she touched at Bird Rock, she did not finish.

A low fog was spread over the channel and a stiff breeze was blowing when the trim sloops lined up for the start opposite the Hotel Virginia. The Sweetheart got away in the lead, the Yankee Girl and the Edris coming across almost together at 10:20, two minutes after the Sweetheart.

As she went across the line the Sweetheart had all her sails spread except her ballooner. The Yankee Girl had her mizzen up, but the Edris bowled along under bare sticks. This race was a go-as-you-please affair, and the fellow with the most powerful engine had the greatest advantage. As soon as she had gotten well away from the starter's boat, Commodore Mitchell gave orders for the lowering of the mizzenmast of the Yankee Girl.

SWEETHEART LOST.

Owing to the heavy fog, the Sweetheart became somewhat confused in the fog, being unable to pick up the breakwater light, and she lost considerable time in getting away from the breakwater.

The race between the Yankee Girl and the Edris across the channel was a beautiful one. The Edris led. The boats strained under mainsail, staysail, jib and jigger, to say nothing of the horsepower in the boats. The wind was a stiff westerly. At no time were the boats over 200 yards apart all the way over. The skippers and crews exchanged pleasantries by megaphone many times.

At Bird Rock, which was made shortly after 1 o'clock, the Edris was 30 seconds ahead of the Yankee Girl, and the Sweetheart was nowhere to be seen. As the two sloops were three or four miles off the island, here came the Sweetheart, bowling along under every stitch of sail she could crowd on.

BIG SAILS.

Sailing before the wind coming home, the Edris and Yankee Girl put out ballooners and made excellent time in the variable wind. The Edris, drawing twice as much breeze as the commodore's yacht because of her 4000 feet of canvas to the Yankee Girl's 1800, pulled away from her southern rival and crossed the finish line 14 minutes ahead. Capt. Barneson heartily congratulated Commodore Mitchell on the sailing qualities of the smaller Yankee Girl when the boats made port.

Moffett, the builder of the Imperial engine used by the Yankee Girl, was among the many guests entertained by Commodore Mitchell on the voyage, others being Peter H. Updike, William Woodley, Francis Hay, S. G. Long and Jack Jorgenson, skipper of the Sweetheart.

FELLOWS II WINS.

Joe Fellows drove his motorboat Fellows II to a record in a choppy sea for the Nordlinger trophy in the course off the pier this morning. A speed of approximately twenty-five miles per hour was made by Fellows in the second and sixth laps, and this notwithstanding a fog which partially obscured the marks. Fellows was uncontested in this event, the Bull Pup dropping out because of a cracked cylinder. Fellows has now won the trophy twice and gets the cup for all time the next time he wins.

Heavily handicapped, Norman Barber's Gray Fox was beaten in the handicap cruiser race by the Edna, Featherstone driving. The time in this race was also excellent, and the boats as they tore through the water, sending spray ten and twelve feet high, gave a great exhibition to the hundreds on the end of the pier.

This race was contested by the Junipero, an allegation being made that the Edna exceeded her speed at the trials by more than 5 per cent. The Gray Fox made twelve miles in 77 minutes, a remarkable exhibition for a cruiser.

In the handicap race for open cruisers, the Katherine showed her heels to a field of three boats, the Titanic coming in second and the Matilija third, while the Undine was a good fourth. A good number of yachts and cruisers who did not enter watched the race.

BIG LEAGUE NEXT HOWDY.

Many Sportsmen Desire First Reservation on List.

BY AL G. WADDELL.

The Howdy Special which annually makes the run across the desert to Phoenix at the time of the Phoenix road race, promises to be a record-breaking Jasbo party this year.

As soon as the official announcement came from Leon T. Shettler, stating that the great road grind was to be put over, O. B. Henderson, vice-president of the Pacific KisselKar branch, came to the front and wanted to know about that Howdy Special.

There was no one on the job to take his money, but Mr. Henderson says he's ready to make his reservations and hand the kale to the first gink to show up.

RETIRED WINNER.

R. C. Hamlin, the Franklin distributor, winner of the 1912 desert classic and a veteran contender from the first Phoenix race, says he will surely go over on the cushions, although he will not drive a Franklin.

John Weise is the prima donna traffic agent for the Howdy Special. He says he is going himself and intends to be accompanied by his gang.

Last year the United States rubber man mistreated a band of musical Indians on the streets of Phoenix and he is not sure of the nature of his reception this fall, so he is preparing for war and enlisting a band of brother heavyweights, including A. S. Robinson of the KisselKar, O. R. Fuller, the man who sells White cars painted red, and George R. Bentel of the Simplex and Mercer emporium.

WANTS THE RIDE.

Eddie Lingenfelder has announced his intention of attending the Phoenix doings for the purpose of riding on the Howdy Special. The Goodyear tire branch manager is very much alive when out with the boys and the liveliest bunch in the world is that crew of the Howdy Special.

Murry Page of the Locomobile stand has also announced his intentions of starring as a passenger on the Howdy Special. Frank Howard of the Buick element has not decided, but he is counted upon to come through, nevertheless.

MUCHO AQUA.

Firestone Smith is a sure contender. John Weise has a great record for the Jasbo stuff, but A. T. Smith is out to break all records on the trip to Phoenix. On the motor truck run last week, Smith and his trained monkey named "Jocko" were pests. They kept the guests at the Glenwood Mission Inn awake after 10 o'clock and Smith personally perpetrated an outrage with a bottle of fire-extinguisher stuff when he attacked O. R. Fuller and started the war which resulted in the calling out of the Ontario fire department and baths for Eddie Lingenfelder, Cecil Smith, Bill Smith, "Baldy" Stoner and Firestone himself.

It has been announced that Leon T. Shettler will open the lists for the Howdy Special reservations tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. If such is the case, a guy with a hump on his back should make good money hanging around the Grant agency, renting that piece of his anatomy to those signing checks for their reservations.

A riot is predicted, as O. B. Henderson, Freddie Papst, Don Carlton, Jim Howard and several others are determined to head the register of Howdy Special passengers.

MONTEITH HERE WITH SCRAPPER.

Scotty Monteith is in town with Harlem Eddie Kelly, the youngster who won two twenty-round fights in eleven days, and they were his first marathon bouts at that.

Scotty informs a waiting public that he will not think of taking on any bush leaguers like Red Watson, but that he wants to match Kelly with Cross, Rivers or somebody else of equal caliber. Hurray for Scotty and his nerve.

BATE'S HOME RUN DEFEATS CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—A home run by Bates, and Bailey's pitching gave Baltimore a 1-to-0 victory over the Chicago Federal League team today. Bailey struck out twelve men.

Chicago finished the game under protest. In the eighth inning, with one man on base, Umpire VanSyckle called time, but Bailey was then in the act of delivering the ball and Zwilling hit it over the fence. Manager Tinker claimed two runs should be credited Chicago, but VanSyckle ordered Zwilling to bat again and after nearly forfeiting the game, Tinker concluded to play it out.

T. Wad Says It All Depends On Who the Girl Is How You Teach Her to Swim!——————By Gale.

...ookes, Tennis Hero.

...KES IS A ...AVORED SON.

Norman Brookes,

The dashing Australian tennis player considered the greatest racquet wielder in the world until his defeat by the greater "Maury" McLoughlin. This photograph shows his tremendous reach.

American cheering that turned the scale for Australia. He is a bit temperamental, is Norman Brookes, and the idea that they wanted him to lose would certainly incite him to win if anything could.

MANY FRIENDS.

And he is certainly one of the fortunate ones of the earth. He has friends in every country, as popular in France, in England, in Germany as he is at home. It would be excusable if his head was a bit turned—but it isn't. Australian friends of his in this city declare that no one can bear success with more graceful distinction than Norman Brookes—which is the severest test of a gentleman.

And that he bears defeat equally well the American team who first lifted the cup from Australia, will testify. On that occasion he shook hands so heartily that Beals Wright flinched with pain.

Some Rise.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Major-league baseball interest centered this week in the sensational spurt of the Boston Braves toward the top of the National League standing.

George Stallings's men, whose steady upward trend has been watched with more or less apprehension by clubs ahead for more than a month past, outdid the expectations of their warmest admirers in the closing days of the week by running the champion New Yorks off their feet, routing them in every game of a three-game series. The Braves are now but three and a half games behind the Mc-Grawites and playing at a clip which bids fair to land them at the top in short order, as the Giants appear to be wobbling badly in all departments.

Boston, however, must keep up its pace, not only to gain on the Giants, but to keep its second-place standing intact. St. Louis and Chicago are tied, only two games behind.

The American League race at this date is very much an affair of the Philadelphia Athletics with the rest comparatively nowhere. There seems little prospect of any club preventing the Mackmen, with their eleven-game lead at this comparatively late stage of the season, from participating in the next world's series.

In the Federal League, Chicago managed to stay ahead of Baltimore and held the leadership, though neither of the leaders had a very pleasant time.

DOUBLE VICTORY FOR THE SEALS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—San Francisco took a double-header from Oakland today, the first game, at Oakland, going 5 to 2, and the second, on Ewing Field, 7 to 3. The afternoon contest was replete with errors. The Oaks tied the score in the seventh inning through errors by the Seals, but the San Franciscans came back in a batting rally, aided by an Oak infield error, and regained the lead.

BEAVERS CONTINUE TO WALLOP WOLVES

TWO MORE PASTIMES GO TO THE LEAGUE LEADERS AFTER HARD STRUGGLE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Ore.) Aug. 16.—In two red hot pitchers' battles today, Portland continued its triumphant march over the bedraggled Wolves, winning 3 to 1 in the morning and 2 to 0 in the afternoon.

The first game was a struggle between Sailor Stroud and Lush, the latter winning through keeping his hits well scattered. In the afternoon Martinoni and Malarkey hooked up in a hot scrap and while the former allowed nine bingles as against five for the veteran, three hits bunched in the fifth inning were sufficient to score two runs and take the game.

Angels Take Series.

again safe on first base. He immediately stole second and scored on Ellis's single to right. Then came the sixth inning melee, in which the Angels scored no less than seven runs.

Smith started the inning. Not pitching, just throwing the ball and side-stepping the return smashes. Brooks singled and Musser struck out. Wolter was walked. Dutch Metzger whacked a safe poke into center, scoring Brooks. Harper ambled, jamming the bases. Abstein fouled out to Litschi. Ellis singled to right, scoring Wolter and Metzger. Moore tore a one-base knock into right, counting Harper. Johnson smashed a double, scoring both Ellis and Moore.

EXIT CLARENCE.

This was enough for Hap and he yanked Smith back to the bench, where he spent the rest of the day telling Clarence just how rotten he really is. Harkness assumed the responsibility and Brooks banged out his second single of the inning, scoring Johnson. Musser mercifully popped out to McArdle.

Ellis's triple, Moore's single and Litschi's muff of Brook's high fly gave the Angels their final two in the eighth. Wasn't that awful!

Jack Ryan allowed the Tigers two measly singles in the morning game and it was only some timely work on the part of Harry Wolter that saved him from losing his well-pitched game. Decanniere opposed him and Deck was only nicked for six hits, but the last four came when they did an awful lot of damage.

BLISS OUT.

The only excitement in the early part of the game was a bit of tough luck for Jack Bliss. Jack stopped a ball with his meat hand and the first finger was broken, putting him out of the game for some time.

Shut-out ball prevailed until the eighth inning when Wolter singled. He went to second on Metzger's single to left, and both runners advanced a base when Gedeon sacrificed. Abstein was purposely walked and Ellis poled a long fly into center. Wolter scored after the catch.

The Tigers tied it up in the first half of the ninth. Carlisle walked, went to second on Leard's single and took third on Meloan's out at first. Bayless hit to Moore and Charley threw home nailing Carlisle. Bayless started for second and Brooks heaved to Johnson. Ernie made a nice stop of a wild peg and then ran Bayless down between first and second, while Leard had crossed the plate.

Johnson singled to open the ninth and was sacrificed to second by Brooks. He went to third on Ryan's out and scored when Wolter hit the ball far over Carlisle's head. Wolter only ran to first.

Champs Again?

STANFORD HAS PROSPECTS FOR WINNING FIFTEEN.

PROSPECTS for a Stanford victory over California on the gridiron this fall have never been brighter. At the close of the college year last spring, only two of the eighteen veterans, Capt. "Jimmy" Thoburn and "Stogie" Peek, had expressed their intention of leaving. Sixteen veterans, with several substitutes and incoming freshmen to contest their places, presage a crackerjack squad.

In addition to this wealth of material, Wylie, the All-Black, will be with the Cards this year. The New Zealander will undoubtedly do for the forwards, what Danny Carroll did for the backs last fall. Danny was the natural leader of Stanford's backfield and it was largely due to his Rugby intuition that the Stanfordites produced the fastest and headiest backs that the Coast has yet seen.

Stanford's weakness was her lightweight forward division. She effectually overcame this handicap, in the big game, by a surprise exhibition of open play. Her dribbling rushes took the Blue and Gold players entirely off their feet. This is the All-Black style of forward play and under Wylie's leadership the Cards should be drilled in it to perfection.

With both the backfield and forward divisions under this expert leadership, California will have to produce a big surprise if she holds the Cardinal down this year.

Coach Brown, who tutored the football aspirants "down on the farm" last year, will again be the football czar.

"Deke" Gard of Glendora, breakaway on last year's All-American team, will lead the aggregation this year. His partner at breakaway will undoubtedly be "Bill" Dargie again. Other men who won their "S" in the forward division expected back are Watkins, Wines, Hall, Clever and Blase. Those who came close to landing positions and who will make competition in this division interesting are Soper, Dubendorf, Braden, Ogden and Knight.

Of the backs, Tilton, Reeve, Lachmund, Carroll, Andrews and Erb are expected back, and it is hoped that Austin and Urban will decide to return. Phil Patterson, a wonder at the old game before coming to Stanford, will undoubtedly make the fans sit up and take notice this year, as he came near to ousting some of the "vets" last year in spite of the fact that he had never played the English game before. King, a transfer from Santa Clara, who was ineligible last season, and Burns, should make strong bids for places in the backfield.

"Your Neighbor's Wife" Coming to Burbank.

Gossip from All of the Play-Houses.

The joyous comedienne flirted with the undertaker for the Auto Club last week, posing for movie thrillers in the traffic drama to be reeled off at the Orpheum this week.

"Hurrah for muh! I'm a real hand-painted leading lady in this show, ain't I? Say, ever since Mr. Dill owned only one pickle, I've hankered to see myself in the movies. Looks that locomotive! Ain't I the original little undertaker's despair? For the love of Pete, who left the gate open? Honest, do I look like that? Looks me mussing the nice scenery all up! Say, whoa there! I don't come in crowds! I never made that many revolutions a minute in my life. Don't you know I'm a fat lady?"

Trixie was looking at herself in the movies for the first time, down at the moving picture studio of the Exhibitors' Producing and Exchange Syndicate.

And Cecil Woessmer, in his classy little National, is the high-voltage "willian," who has been wheeling Trixie into all the made-to-order dangers during the past week. He says Trixie has nerves like a pile driver's.

Nobody will ever laugh harder at Miss Friganza's jokes than the joyous Trixie laughed at herself as she viewed her movie adventures, and spieled off one of her extempore $1500 monologues.

"And that movie man called me a cannibal!" Dunno why. He just hollered: 'Hey there! You've eaten up twenty feet!' I dunno whose feet he meant. Anyhow I hadn't. And this is what I've been getting up at 8 a.m. for. Say, I didn't know there were such hours! What are you going to name this riot? What? No, you don't! I never used that many big words in a row in my life! Just call it, 'Trixie in Reel Life;' 'Her Set-Piece Smile,' or 'Gates Ajar!' Say, le's play something else now!"

Never mind what Miss Friganza said about herself. She just naturally made all the other women look like the Monday morning wash ladies' parade.

Some Inspiration.

La Jolie Deodima, who is to appear at Pantages this week, received the inspiration for her living pictures from the use of the stereopticon in her work as a model in Paris, so Manager Fish of the Empress states. One might judge she received it from Eve herself, judging from some of the pictures. Be that as it may, Mademoiselle is most beautiful in face and form, and it is said that sketches of her adorn more mural decorations in Paris than do the face and figure of any other model.

Made Speeches.

The popular long-distance actors, Charlie Chaplin and Jess Dandy, who act for the Keystone Moving Picture Company, and who are appearing in the movies in the Empress this week, were present in person last night, and Manager Fish, spotting them, told the audience they were there. They shrank up in their seats and tried to get behind themselves, but nothing doing, they had to mount the platform and talk to the film-fighters. Afterwards they gave an impromptu reception, and had to shake hands with both the incoming and outgoing audiences. They will ask for thinking parts out at the studio, today.

New Empress.

Mr. Marcus Loew will shortly visit the city to select a site for the new Empress Theater. Those closest to the big manager say it will probably be located on Broadway, near Sixth, though three other sites are under consideration. The theater will be one of the most beautiful, though by no means the largest, house in the city.

Much Excitement.

The most thrilling feature of the new Rainey hunt moving pictures, to be shown at the Majestic during the week beginning August 24, is the cornering of a ferocious African lion. The hounds surround the brush where the creature is at bay. Suddenly and without warning the great jungle monarch bursts from cover and charges directly at the camera, which is being operated by Mr. Rainey himself. A bullet from the rifle of an assistant stops the huge creature within five feet of the camera.

Real Thriller.

A vivid movie thriller in the shape of a forty-foot fall over a cliff is one of the principal features in "Her Awakening," a two-reel Majestic drama, by Frank E. Woods, written especially for W. C. Cabanne of the Majestic, at the H. & M. Mutual Studios. Blanche Sweet is featured and Wallace Reid plays the lead. Ralph Lewis plays the heavy.

Billy Jacobs,

Some Kid.

BILLY JACOBS, ACTOR; TWENTY-NINE MONTHS OLD

IMAGINE if you can a youngster only 29 months old who has appeared as leading man in over 100 photoplays.

Little Billy Jacobs of the Sterling company has this remarkable record. He has a director whom he loves—Mr. Robert Thornby—a man who has had unparalleled success in producing "kid" comedies, and under Mr. Thornby's able leadership the little phenom has accomplished wonders.

He has great hopes of some day being as great a director as "Mr. Fornby," as he calls him in his child-like language, and now he spends most of his spare time around the studio in getting a bunch of extra men and women together and putting them through a scene from some play.

The kiddies in the company are very fortunate in having a management which looks out for their welfare, and they do not lose any of their education through having to work in the pictures. They have a school provided for them right on the grounds under a competent teacher, and there they spend a certain time each day in study.

Billy is working hard and improving every day in his acting, and by this time has become well known to many of the movie fans of Southern California, and some day he hopes to make a name for himself as a producer as well as an actor.

PRESERVE THE EYESIGHT.

No Organs of the Body Are Worked Harder or More Continuously Than the "Windows of the Soul."

[Journal of the American Medical Association:] The eyes are the hardest worked of all organs, and the safety and existence of human lives frequently depend directly on their accurate working. The harmful results of eye strain, never wholly absent throughout life, may begin very early in childhood, even in the second year. Many little children, for instance, are constantly tearing their clothes, hurting their feet and legs, stumbling and falling, because their eyes are so faulty that their estimates of the size, location and nature of objects are not correctly made. Adults who have been blind and are suddenly given good vision require years to learn to see with accuracy or safety in action. Probably 6 per cent. of children are left-handed, left-eyedness, causing left-handedness. From 6 to 10 years of age many children show an incomprehensible "nervousness," the twitching of hands and face, fickle appetite and various disorders, all usually due to eye-strain. Yet almost all of these cases of eye-strain can be relieved, and should be relieved in early childhood. The importance of correcting this condition early in the child's school years, and the influence of such a condition in the education and development of the child, must be apparent to every parent and teacher.

DONABELLE AGAIN WINS SAN DIEGO YACHT TROPHY.

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 16.—The pretty little yacht Donabelle, Capt. W. P. Cary, won the second race for the San Diego Yacht Club Cup and one leg of the Williams Cup Race today.

The Junior, with Capt. Ed. Seller, made second place in the twelve-mile race around the bay which was witnessed by a large number from various craft.

Last Sunday the Donabelle won the first race for the cup, and today's victory gives Capt. Cary the cup permanently.

The Junior won the first leg of the Williams Cup Race last Sunday and the third race for the cup will be made August 30.

The Donabelle's correct time today was 3h. 39m. 26s., and that of the Junior, was 3h. 51m. 30s. The time was slow owing to the very light wind which caused the Butcher Boy, the Hackey and the Wanderer to drop out of the race shortly after the start.

Great interest attaches to the Ladies' sailing race to be held next Sunday following a picnic given by the San Diego Yacht Club. A number of girls in the Yacht Club are expert sailors and a good race is predicted. The girls will act as skippers and the yachts will be manned by men to do heavy work.

Among the entrants, are Misses Lucille Holcomb, who will sail Jeff, Edwina Kaufman, who will be the skipper of Junior, Mrs. E. S. Shields, who will handle the Lark, Miss Helen Hambley, skipper of the Elf, Mrs. E. W. Dort, who will have charge of the Circe.

GOLF GOSSIP.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

THE open national golf championship events open tomorrow in Chicago and there are several entries from California. Robert E. Hunter, Michael McLaughlin, Craney Gartz among the amateurs; Hutton Martin, and two of the Smith brothers among the professionals.

Hutton Martin is expected to do well, for he was playing an all-round first-class game before he left the Coast and had won first money in every open event here this year. The Los Angeles Country Club is backing him with enthusiasm—he is the youngest of the three Martin brothers, prominent among the best professionals in the West.

Coming Soon.

And the Del Monte meeting is but three weeks away. The Committee of Management is the same as last year, three from the north and three from the south. Percy Selby (a recent bridegroom by the way,) Vincent Whitney and H. Spens-Black for the north, and Edward Tufts, Sumner P. Hunt and H. N. H. Woodcock for the south.

The detailed programme follows in the lines of previous events—thirty-six-hole qualifying rounds for the men. The first thirty-two will qualify for the State championship, and the next thirty-two for the Del Monte cup. That is set for Saturday, September 5.

Sunday, the 6th, will be devoted to special events and match play for the tournament does not commence until Monday, so that conscientious scruples need not prevent the various golfing parsons entering the tournament.

For the Women.

The women's Del Monte championship qualifying round is scheduled for Tuesday afternoon, September 8. The first sixteen will qualify for the championship, the second for the Del Monte cup. Play will be over eighteen holes.

The afternoon of Wednesday is also reserved for special events for both men and women.

The men's semi-finals hold the programme for Thursday morning, the 10th, when the finals for the lesser flights will take place. A men's consolation event is set for that afternoon.

The championship finals are reserved for Friday, the 11th, when the semi-finals for the women will also hold the course.

Mixed foursomes will be the piece de resistance for Friday afternoon.

Saturday will be devoted to the women's finals and special events for men, with a tombstone tournament in the afternoon.

Open to Amateurs.

Any amateur golfer is eligible for this Del Monte meeting and the railroads are conspiring to make it alluring with cheap round-trip fares.

The prizes are many and magnificent, every defeated eight will likewise annex trophies, and the first and second net scores in the mixed foursomes.

Saturday night, the 12th, will be the scene of gaiety, congratulations and heart aches, for it is then that the lobby is crowded and animated, speeches made and prizes presented with much ceremony, merriment, cheering and witticism. Every one wears their most becoming clothes and their best smiles, and polishes up their repartee.

The graceful acceptance of one's prize is often a more exciting performance than winning it. Shy, modest violets suffer exquisite torture—and these are the kind that so often win them.

Quite a number of our own modest violets are, however, prepared to brave the ordeal and the list of entries from the south grows apace, albeit every one declares he is too hard up to go. But then there are so many things one can economize upon more successfully than golf. "Give me the luxuries of life and I will dispense with the necessities," wailed the satirist. And we entirely agree with him.

Nothing Doing Here.

In the meantime our local clubs are holding no tournaments, but are practicing assiduously in private matches. The apparent lull in the golf world is a little deceptive—over sixty players invaded Annandale alone on Saturday and the Los Angeles Country Club was well populated.

The baseball match between San Gabbriel and Los Angeles was postponed because two very important members of the teams were away. So that is an excitement still in store for next week.

No Athletic Heart.

a man's health not because of its nature, but because of his nature. The vital questions are the player's age; his bodily constitution and power of resistance; finally the question of his training. If a man is all right in these respects, he can choose what sport he likes.

Over-exertion, says Albu, does exist as a hygienic fact, though it has no permanent effect on the heart. The best test of it is the time taken after playing an active game for the heart to revert to its normal pulsation.

A healthy heart after strong, but not excessive exertions ought to return to its normal number of beats within fifteen minutes after the exertion ends. If it takes much longer, then over-exertion may be assumed.

LONG WALKS BAD.

Long walks carrying burdens are one of the chief causes of such over-exertion. The German military "baggage marches"—Gepackmarschen—constantly produce over-exertion. In these marches the men cover from twenty to thirty-five miles, carrying knapsacks, rifles, bayonets and cartridges. Sometimes the knapsacks are filled with sand. Prof. Albu's examination of men after such achievements shows that over-exertion is general. Of eight men examined not one regained his normal heart-beat within half an hour of the end of the march.

Vegetables, says Albu, are a wholly unsuitable diet for any man who wants to cover a long distance, or otherwise to keep up extra exertion during a long period. That is a scientific fact, because vegetables are poor in albumen, which is needed to replenish the muscles.

VEGETABLES BAD.

The fact may also be proved empirically. German tests in the "baggage marches" show that the flesh-eating soldier has the greatest endurance. Many feats of endurance have been accomplished on vegetable food; but that only proves the marvelous adaptability of the body to unsuitable nourishment.

Dr. Horst Maltzahn supplements these theories with the doctrine that at some ages women are quite as well fitted as men are for violent exertion, and that at some ages they are even superior. There is no game, however violent, which girls under 14 may not play on equality with boys. Between 14 and 20, girls should play games moderately and avoid violent exercise. After 20 if they are in good health they are as fit to play games as men.

BETTER THAN MEN.

When past middle life women are rather better equipped than men to play games. "The spectacle of elderly women of past 50 engaging in games which require quick movements often causes laughter, but nine out of ten women of 50 are better fitted to play lawn tennis and golf than men are."

It is a mistake, says Maltzahn, to associate nervous strength with dexterity in sports and games. On the contrary people with weak nerves, that is, so-called "nervous" people, are commonly the best game players.

Dr. Maltzahn came to this conclusion after testing the nervous conditions of lawn tennis players, good and bad.

He tested the players for nervous reactions, and found that of seven particularly adept and skillful players six had abnormally great reactions, thus indicating excessive nervousness. After that he tried numerous bad and indifferent players, including nearly the whole of his local club, and he found that most of the indifferent players had slight, that is healthy, reactions.

"It is not true," says Maltzahn, "that 'strong' nerves go with skill in games and sports. The best players have unusually delicate or hypersensitive nervous systems. That is true, at least, of lawn tennis and billiard players, but it is not necessarily true of footballers or boxers.

SPORT-FIT.

"There is a state of the body which may be called 'sportgemass' or 'sport-fit.' It is a nervous state. Men and women of dull, lymphatic temperament seldom make good game players, and as a rule they have no liking for games. Liking for games is the individual's desire to bring out a dexterity and adeptness which are part of a nervous temperament."

Maltzahn says that a good rough classification of humanity would be into "sport-individuals" and "non-sport individuals." The sport individuals include the finer half. "Hence Anglo-Saxon countries abound in delicate, nervous yet virile types. It is the custom in Germany to ascribe this type to sport. It is probable, however, that Anglo-Saxon sport is the result of this type, and not the cause of it."

NO ATHLETE'S HEART.

Laymen, says Albu, exaggerate the permanent influence of sport on the heart. There is no such thing as an athlete's heart. By "athlete's heart" is meant a heart hypertrophied or otherwise typically affected by over-exertion.

All exertion affects the heart's functioning in a peculiar way. Whether a man plays a game violently for five minutes or exerts himself heavily for five hours, his heart functions in the same way. As long as the exertion lasts the heart has to pump into the arteries from three to five times the normal quantity of blood. This means an increase of pressure in the blood vessels until the heart's muscles through over-exertion suffer a kind of temporary paralysis.

NO ABNORMALITY.

But frequent repetitions of this overexertion do not produce any chronic heart abnormality which a doctor can recognize as an athlete's heart. Dr. Albu has proved this by examination. In some cases he found that the heart had decreased in size; in some, it had increased; and in others there was no change in its size.

Hence games and athletics if they affect the heart at all affect it in different ways, but there can be no question of a particular diagnosable kind of "athlete's heart."

This conclusion is backed by the South German doctor, Maltzahn, who says he has examined the hearts of seventy footballers, hockey players and long-distance walkers and runners, and "found nothing that can be traced distinctively to sport exertion."

QUARTER-MILE RECORD CRACKED NEXT SEASON

THE inclusion of a quarter-mile straightaway on the programme of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition sports at San Francisco next year, will only not be a novel affair, but it will conclusively demonstrate the extent to which the long-sprint men have improved within the past generation.

The world's record for this event is 47s., held by Maxey Long of the New York A.C., and made on October 4, 1900. With all vaunted improvement, the new science of training, and other discoveries in that line, it will be interesting to see if any of the runners possess the speed to wipe away those figures.

How Long came to make this record was more of a chance than any preconceived idea about a star performance. The week previous he had made a world's record by covering the two furlongs in 47 4-5s. The wonderful feat was accomplished on a fifth of a mile circuit, and Long was scratchman, the race being a handicap.

Those who knew said the Mercury-foot phenom should do something great on a straightaway, so on the spot, James E. Sullivan suggested that Long make a public trial on the old Guttenburg race track.

PRECAUTION AGAINST MISTAKE.

Without an hour's delay preparations were made for the trial, which was duly sanctioned and advertised as a competition, and the New York A.C. rolling and sprinkling staff was immediately transferred to the "Gut," to get the path in shape. Every precaution was taken to prevent a mistake. The course was surveyed by a civil engineer. Competent timers were engaged, and not alone were they placed on the finish line, but some were stationed at intermediate distances.

The weather was all that might be desired for such an attempt. A balmy October day without any perceptible breeze, and the temperature was at a degree, which would tempt an athlete to do something big when he shed his street clothes. Long was equal to the occasion. He not only shattered all previous marks for the full distance, but he flew by the 350-yard post in 36 2-5s., and the 400-yard flag in 42 1-5s. These two marks have also withstood the assaults of time.

BAKER MADE TRY.

Back in 1886, on July 1, Wendell Baker, the Harvard sprinter, who even to this day holds some of the records on the books, made a special try for the "quarter" straightaway on the old Beacon Park trotting track near Boston, and it was successful, for he traveled the distance in 47 3-4s.

Beacon Park was an exceptionally fast track. During the visit of the Gaelic team to Boston in 1888, T. J. O'Mahoney, the "Bonnebery Steam Engine," showed on the [illegible] and yet at his best on a cinder he was a couple of yards now 50s.

LAURA JEAN LIBBEY TALKS HEART TOPICS.

Poor Girls and Wealthy Flirts.

"Be not too rigidly censorious.
A string may jar in the best master's hand,
And the most skilful archer miss his aim;
I would not quarrel with a slight mistake."

If there is one girl more than another who is ambitious to rise in the world it is the daughter of poverty. She cannot pick out the flowery path that pleases her. She must join the great army of workers who tread the beaten path.

She knows from earning it the value of a dollar and how dark the future looks when she is unable to save even the smallest sum. Aye, and what a struggle is hers to live from hand to mouth, but, withal, trying to keep the lamp of hope burning in her heart.

Such a girl believes there are but two prospects to look forward to, either to keep on toiling or to wed some nice young man who will shoulder burdens and dower with his love.

It cannot be denied that these girls look eagerly forward for their Prince Charming to cross their path. Thus such maidens are easy prey for the audacious male flirt. Such men would resent bitterly having their own innocent sisters make the acquaintance of men through a flirtation instead of an honorable introduction. They have one code of morals for their own home folks, but quite a different one for other girls who have no such home or protection.

There are some wealthy young men who imagine they can do as they like in striking up an acquaintance with a girl whose pretty innocent face takes their fancy. They are actuated only by the spirit of mischief—a pastime for the moment. There are some poor girls who have sense enough to give the handsome, wealthy young man a decided snub when he attempts to pick her up as a "speak easy."

There are other foolish maidens who walk blindly into the trap. Although the flirt, the masher, as he is commonly called, makes all seasons his own, he is more apt to try to scrape acquaintance with the poor working girl in the summer time, when his folks are out of town and he can room where he pleases and with whom without any one in his set knowing it. He may take the girl whose acquaintance he has made without an introduction to the movies, or the dance halls, perhaps in his automobile, for a joy ride. The girl builds her hopes that he is in love with her. She believes herself on the royal road to love and happiness ever after. A few weeks or months after she has acquired the taste to know what it is to have a sumptuous dinner without paying for it and life such as the rich lead, and, lo she is dropped as quickly as she was picked up. A newer fancy has crossed the flirt's path. She is left to grieve over "what might have been." It is not to be supposed that rich young men do not fall in love and wed poor girls who work for a living; they often do. A girl can rest assured, however, it is seldom or never, that they take to their hearts and homes as their wives for their mothers and sisters to love, the thoughtless maidens who met their insincere attentions half way and flirted with them.

MISS LIBBEY'S ANSWERS TO YOUR QUESTIONS.

He Is Trying To Break Off.

Dear Miss Libbey: I am a young lady twenty-eight years of age; I have been keeping company with a gentleman seven years, but he has never spoken of marriage. He often goes out of town to see another girl, remaining over Sunday. My friends tell me I am foolish to waste time with him, but I love him. He never calls lately of his own free will. I always have to write him or see him on the street. In all the seven years I have known him I have been to the theater but three times with him. Kindly advise me what to do—but I cannot give him up.

M. M.

How can one advise in a case like this? It's like sending for a doctor and saying to him: "You may prescribe for me, but I won't take your medicine." The truth is usually a bitter pill to swallow but why try to sugar coat it? Be brave, little girl, and look the truth straight in the face. It would seem to me from my viewpoint of the case, that your one-time wooer has ceased to care to wed you—now—or ever. His affections have gone out to the girl whom he spends Sunday with. When one has almost to make use of a derrick to pull a man to one's home or apply whip or gad, as it were, it is time to give him the wish of his heart, which is—to be let alone.

As A Girl Makes Her Bed.

Dear Miss Libbey: I am a young girl of eighteen keeping steady company with a young man of twenty. He has the habit of drinking and flirting with other girls in my company. Do you think he cares for me? Should I give him up? M.

Drinking and flirting men do not make good husbands. The girl who weds one of that kind takes risks on future happiness. The world is full of good young men who respect the company they are in too much to flirt. He who has the temerity to appear before a young girl in an intoxicated condition merits dismissal at once.

Jealous Wives.

Dear Miss Libbey: I am a married lady thirty years old. I am very jealous of my husband, who believes in laughing and having a good time. Please tell me how to prevent being jealous—when there's no cause.

L. H.

Isn't it a case of putting up an umbrella when the sun is shining and not so much as a tiny cloud in sight? You have imagined yourself jealous; it's a poor rule that won't work both ways—just imagine you're not and stick bravely to that belief.

A Bashful Maiden.

Dear Miss Libbey I have been going with a fellow a year. When we go driving he puts his arms around the top of the seat. Is that proper? Is it the girl's or the fellow's place to carry the kodak when going to the park? ROSIE.

The young man is exceedingly nice and proper not to put his arm about your waist until the time arrives to pop the question. He should carry the kodak.

WORKS WHILE HE WORKS.

While Dr. George W. Driskell, a chiropractic, living at No. 1332 South Figueroa street, was visiting patients last night a burglar entered his home and stole jewelry valued at more than $800, according to a report filed with the police. The intruder gained an entrance to the house by prying off a rear window with a garden spade.

SPLENDID BEAN HARVEST READY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WHITTIER, Aug. 16.—Bean harvest in the section known as North Whittier will begin tomorrow. The hot weather of the past week has caused the blackeye beans to ripen rapidly, and the bean cutters will be in the fields from now on till the completion of the work.

About 500 acres of blackeye beans are growing in North Whittier this season, and old timers in bean culture say the crop is excellent in yield and quality. The recent advance in price has been a source of satisfaction to the growers, $9.00 per 100 pounds being quoted on the market last week, whereas only $2.75 was offered earlier in the season on contract.

The growing demand for the bean straw for a mulch under young citrus trees and for a fertilizer and producer of humus, gives additional value to the crop. Heretofore most bean straw grown in North Whittier has been baled and shipped out for these purposes, but this year local demand will use all the straw produced.

WILL SPRAY.

To start clean and keep free from citrus pests is the object of citrus growers in North Whittier Heights tract, and to that end all young groves set out either this year or last year will soon receive a spraying with the regulation resin dip, according to a decision of the growers in conference last week. William Wood, county horticultural commissioner, has appointed A. M. Chidester of this city as special deputy for the North Whittier district, and the new official is now making a thorough and detailed inspection of the large acreage recently planted.

CAUSES OF WAR.

Rev. Cass Arthur Reed, dean of the International College, Smyrna, Turkey, who is spending a few days at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Reed of East Whittier, addressed the union meeting of Whittier churches in the Whittier When Mr. Reed left Turkey a few weeks ago there was no immediate sign of the great European war which broke so suddenly. "The present war comes because little Servia is in the way of stronger nations in their desire to seize the advantages afforded by the rapidly waning power of the Turk," said Rev. Reed. "The power of Moslemism is now confined to a small portion of Europe, and Constantinople is the goal so earnestly coveted by many European nations."

Long Beach.

WORDY LOAFERS DEFY OFFICERS.

Occupy Municipal Pier and Create Nuisance.

Police Powerless, Residents Enter Protest.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, Aug. 16.—Defying law and order and challenging the City Council and the police force to remove them, a band of I.W.W.'s and Socialists have captured the municipal pier off Pine avenue. They block the entrance to the structure, offend tourists and residents alike with their mouthings, and make the decks unsanitary with their expectorations. Tomorrow a group of guests of the oceanfront hotels, who have vainly protested to the city authorities about the loud-mouthed speakers, will take their grievance to Mayor Whealton.

These idlers, calling themselves members of the Industrial Workers of the World, although they have not worked since they came to this city and never expect to, were ordered off the pier last Wednesday. The Council directed the Chief of Police to put them under the pier. The I Won't Workers became enraged and refused to move. Not having as many policemen at his command as he had the month before, and finding no penalty fixed for violation of the Council's order, Chief of Police Cole was powerless to cope with the mob.

Two or three hundred of the loafers congregate at the entrance to the pier in the early morning, and defame and curse almost everyone in authority until late at night. In loud, raucous voices they disturb the Sabbath quiet, and the peace of mind of the business men and the tourists alike.

PROBATION FOR "PEEPER."

For the first time in the history of the city, police court was held on Sunday today, when Judge Hart disposed of the case of H. S. Simpson, charged with being a "peeper." Simpson was arrested August 14, and charged by a prominent society woman of Magnolia avenue. He was haled before the court and sentenced to spend thirty days in the County Jail. On the plea of friends, Judge Hart had Simpson before him again today and placed him on probation for six months.

A fox terrier belonging to H. A. Hill which had a penchant for snapping at children, and which was given up to the police to be shot by the owner, and which gnawed through the rope by which it was tied in the police garage, came back today to give himself up. He came up to Officer Yancy, who had had him in charge, with his tail between his legs, looking as sheepish as any dog ever looked. Yancy was obliged to let the law take its course and he shot the dog that gave himself up.

A group of rowdies on a Magnolia-avenue car terrorized passengers and residents thereabout late last night by setting beer bottles on the seats and then shooting at them. They threatened the car crew with the weapons until the car men telephoned to the police, when the rowdies fled in the darkness.

TOWN TO CELEBRATE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GARDEN GROVE, Aug. 15.—Garden Grove will hold a big barbecue and celebration on August 22. This is the first town in the county to pave its streets full width without a tax levy or assessment of any sort. The property owners all agreed to the plan and each paid part of the cost. The business part of town is paved. The Pacific Electric Railway has completed its double-track line to Los Angeles and Santa Ana from this point. A new walnut packinghouse is going up. These strides forward will be celebrated. There will be a big feed and a unique programme. Candidates for office at the primary election will be present and engage in original stunts. Good music is assured. There is to be a baseball game between Orange and Garden Grove and other games and amusements. Japanese fireworks will be exhibited.

GREAT RATTLER LIVES IN TOWN.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN BERNARDINO, Aug. 16.—For four years a rattle snake of large size has lived under local stores, is the belief following the rather disturbing discovery of James Kennedy in a local hardware store. Mr. Kennedy almost stepped upon the reptile as it lay coiled back of a counter. The snake had crawled into the store through a pipe.

Four years ago, a traveling snake show lost two snakes in a block adjoining the store. One of the snakes was captured at the time.

CREOSOTE NEED OF RAILROADS.

WAR CUTS OFF ENTIRE SUPPLY, DECLARES OFFICIAL.

Vice-President Storey of Santa Fe, Head of Operating Department, Postpones Inspection Trip South of Tehachepi Because of Accident to General Manager—Other News.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN BERNARDINO, Aug. 16.—The European war, according to Vice-President Storey of the Santa Fe, will have at least one direct effect that will hinder the railroads. The United States companies have been purchasing all of their creosote from Germany. The creosote is an important factor in the putting in of ties, as all ties have to be soaked with it before use. The supply has been cut off and the local product is of such inferior quality, according to the official, that the railroads will feel the need of it.

Mr. Storey, head of the operating department of the system, has postponed an inspection trip in Los Angeles, San Diego and San Bernardino on account of an accident to General Manager Wells of Los Angeles, who was to have accompanied the high official. It is understood that Mr. Wells sprained an ankle while alighting from a train. Vice-President Storey headed north from Barstow, bound for valley points and San Francisco, and will visit Southern California when the general manager recovers from the accident.

Frank Keir, an employee of the water service department of the Santa Fe, was seriously injured when a motor car on which he was riding jumped the track at a curve in Cajon Pass and pinned him beneath it. Mr. Keir suffered a broken arm and leg. He was brought to the city, but the doctors have as yet been unable to ascertain the exact extent of his injuries, owing to the unusual swelling of the injured members. Mr. Keir was traveling alone. The car left the track near Cajon. Mr. Keir righted it, although suffering with an injured leg, but a few minutes later was thrown for a second time, the machine turning over upon him.

NEWS NOTES.

The officers here have discovered a new champion. Admitting the theft of more than 200 bicycles, according to the police, Claude Roberts is held here upon the request of Pomona officers, to be charged with robberies alleged to have extended over the entire State. He was arrested at Cucamonga. He is wanted, it is stated, in Berkeley and Oakland. Roberts marketed the stolen wheels largely to Japanese and Mexicans.

Residents of Chino, through the Chamber of Commerce, have asked the Board of Supervisors to appoint a farm adviser for San Bernardino county and to include an item for his salary and the expenses of such a department in the budget. An expert to assist new residents in scientific farming and to advise unprogressive ranchers how to get the greatest returns from their lands is desired by the Chinoltes.

To be of the same name, same age, to be residents of the same city and natives of the same State, those were the coincidental circumstances surrounding the wedding here today of Frank Edward Sanches and Matilda M. Sanches of Redlands. They were born in California twenty-four years ago. They are not related even distantly, according to the statements of the pair to the marriage license clerk.

The Third Battalion, Seventh Infantry, N.G.C., comprising Co. K of this city, D of Pomona, M of Riverside, and G of Redlands, left this morning for Glenn Ranch in the Lytle Creek Canyon for a three-days' outing. The regular army routine will be observed in camp daily, but the soldiers will vary camp life with dances every evening, the Seventh Regiment Band of Pomona to furnish the music. The band gave a sacred concert this afternoon for the amusement of the infiltiamen and their families and for the hundreds of summer visitors at the ranch. About 150 officers and men are in camp.

WIRELESS OPERATORS UNDER STRICT WATCH.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LOS ANGELES HARBOR, Aug. 16.—Customs officials have not interfered with commercial wireless stations on the Pacific Coast nor the installations on board various ships by sealing up instruments. None of the foreign steamers that have visited this port since the war in Europe developed has been equipped with wireless.

The Marconi station at East San Pedro and those aboard coastwise American steamers will not be molested, but should any vessel flying the flag of a belligerent nation put into port the wireless instruments aboard will be sealed by customs officers.

Commercial stations, however, will not be permitted to transmit messages regarding movements of merchant vessels belonging to any of the nations at war. Neither will code messages be accepted unless the code and interpretation are included with the filing of the message. War bulletins, however, may be transmitted to ships at sea and many of the wireless operators will continue to publish newspapers aboard ship that have been a source of additional revenue in gathering in money from passengers ever since the war broke out. Many operators have been making more than salary on the side by the use of carbon paper or mimeographs to publish bulletins sold to passengers as high as 50 cents a copy.

All amateur wireless operators have been instructed not to use their plants until further notice. Danger of confiscation and criminal prosecution is involved in violation of this rule laid down by the Navy Department. Naval authorities will watch amateur plants closely and the names of operators found sending out messages will be forwarded to the United States District Attorney's office.

ON PACK HORSE TO FINAL REST.

WELL KNOWN WOMAN OF HILLS PASSES—WILL BE BORNE TO LONELY RANCH.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, Aug. 16.—At the setting of the sun this afternoon Nellie Colby will be buried at the Colby homestead, twenty miles from civilization, in the mountains back of Pasadena, where she has lived with her parents for a quarter of a century. Her casket will be carried to the distant mountain ranch this morning on a pack horse by L. B. Austin and Frank Cunningham of Switzer's Camp.

Nellie Colby was known to practically all the mountain climbers of this section of the State through her long residence on the famous homestead of her father, D. W. Colby. The ranch is located in the upper portion of the Big Tejunga Canyon and is only reached by a difficult trail from the Arroyo Seco. She is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Colby and has done much to make life agreeable at the inaccessible ranch for her parents. She was 42 years of age.

The daughter was the victim of the same dread disease which drove her father to seek health far from civilization, and from which he has recovered. She has suffered for two years. Recently she became much worse and Saturday a hurry call was sent to the Arroyo Seco for Dr. Everett C. Beach of Los Angeles, who has a camp there. The woman died yesterday morning.

The funeral services tomorrow will be attended by many camp owners in the Arroyo Seco and will be conducted by Rev. F. G. H. Stevens, pastor of the Lake-avenue M. E. Church of Pasadena, who was one of the nearest neighbors of the Colbys in the mountains, having a camp only ten miles from their ranch.

"STUNTS" AT CAMP.

Saturday night was "stunt" night at Switzer's camp, and every guest furnished some part of the programme. The most interesting numbers were songs burlesquing those of the Fiji Islanders, which were sung by Misses Elizabeth Davis and Florence Matson of Los Angeles, in costume. Rev. F. J. Seaman of Highland Park, however, captured the crowd when, dressed as an Indian, he danced some Indian dances and displayed some clever gymnastic stunts.

"SEPTEMBER MORN" IN UNION SUIT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA, Aug. 16.—"September Morn" was never better portrayed in real life than here late this afternoon when Josephine Hewlett of Los Angeles was arrested by Police Sergeant Randall and taken to the police station, where she was later released to appear tomorrow afternoon.

The woman had come to the beach for the day and had disrobed to an only suit of underwear of the union variety at the foot of Hill street. She plunged into the surf, and created quite an exciting half-hour before the police officer appeared on the scene and took her to the station. She was sorry to have broken the rules of law, and said that she thought in Santa Monica it would not matter, but she never would have done it in Atlantic City or any eastern coast resort.

CHURCH SOCIALS PUT UNDER BAN.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ALHAMBRA, Aug. 16.—"There are oyster suppers, necktie festivals and postoffice socials which are used in many churches to splice out the funds necessary to carry out the work of the church, but Seventh Day Adventists have no sympathy with any such methods of raising money for God's cause," said Elder J. W. Farnsworth at the meeting at the tent auditorium today.

"If God has ordained the Christian church to preach His word, then the Bible must instruct us of the proper method of securing means to carry on the work. Nothing cultivates honesty so much as paying tithes, and the paying of a tithe or a tenth part of one's income is the duty of every Christian."

"Religious Liberty" was the subject of a symposium this afternoon, the speakers being Elder J. O. Corliss, Elder E. E. Andross, Elder E. J. Hibbard, Elder W. M. Healy and Elder J. O. Blunt. The meeting was highly patriotic. Just before adjournment the following resolution was unanimously adopted by the vast congregation:

"Whereas, the Sunday Rest Bill, now pending in California on the initiative, is subversive of the natural rights of mankind; opposed to the civil guaranties of State and nation; unreasonable in its restrictions and prohibitions, and absurdly discriminative in its multiplied exemptions,

"Resolved, that we protest most vigorously against this bold-faced attack upon the inalienable prerogatives of citizens, and pledge our word and sacred honor to oppose its enactment into law, which would be alike oppressive and a constant incentive to espionage and blackmail. We deny the right of any faction, secular or religious, whether constituting a minority or a majority, to impose civil demands that would curtail the freedom of labor, or restrict the legitimate operations of business, particularly in ways that involve differences of religious belief and practice. We therefore call upon all fair-minded voters to unite with us in the maintenance of constitutional pledges that we and all our fellow-citizens may continue to enjoy the inestimable blessings of civil and religious liberty in California."

Today marks the end of the encampment, and already there is a general exodus. Tomorrow the remainder of the Adventists will leave, and one of the most successful meetings of the Southern California Seventh Day Adventists will have become a matter of history.

LAND SEEKERS IN BIG RUSH.

Queer Patent Case Up in Court Today.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA BARBARA, Aug. 16.—The "rush" to the Cuyama, as a result of the opening to entry of 50,000 acres taken from the national reserve, proved a strenuous affair, according to reports received here from the interior valley.

Hundreds of families from all sections of this State, Nevada and Arizona joined in the rush, automobiles, wagons, motorcycles and horseback riders racing for the sections considered the cream of the belt.

For several weeks government inspectors have been in the valley, aiding prospective settlers to find boundary lines, and to prevent frauds. On the final day they had a busy time, having to stand as guardians of the peace where interests clashed and trouble seemed brewing.

Some of the land is highly fertile and well watered, though the larger portion is arid and probably unproductive. After September 6 the unlocated lands will be open to entry under the desert land act.

FIGHT FOR PATENTS.

The petition of Margaret E. Putnam against Alfred E. Putnam for the appointment of a receiver for the latter's patents, is to be heard in the Superior Court tomorrow. Attorney and Mrs. Putnam are well-known residents of Santa Barbara, Mr. Putnam having served years ago as District-Attorney. During late years he has lived in Los Angeles.

The wife charges that for many years she and her family have been in destitute circumstances, while Mr. Putnam has labored with inventions, neglecting his legal practice. She avers that he has two patents, one of which is worth at least $25,000, and that he refuses to realize on either. Mr. Putnam explains that the patent referred to will revolutionize transportation facilities, as it is a frictionless machine by which engines can be driven forever without wearing out. His other patent, which is alleged to be worth as much, is a companion piece, which maintains a machine in perfect balance, and which he says will revolutionize flying apparatus. He says he refuses to realize on his inventions because capitalists want to swamp the country with stock and clean up their profits, not on the manufacture of the machines, but on stock selling.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Father Michael Miguel Selga, astronomer from Spain, preached the morning sermon at the Church of Our Lady of Sorrows. He is on his way to Manila to take charge of the government observatory. He has visited all the great observatories in Europe and America. Before sailing for the Orient he will visit Lick observatory, and devote several weeks to studying the stars from that point. His special field is star photography.

At a meeting of the City Council tomorrow night the Chamber of Commerce will present a request that the Council reconsider its action on the seawall project, and award the contract for the more massive structure. This request will be presented in form of a resolution which the chamber presented for adoption to a mass meeting last night. The meeting adopted the resolution with little opposition.

The Episcopal convocation for this county and Ventura will be held Tuesday in Trinity Church, this city. Among the speakers will be Bishop Johnson of Los Angeles, and Dean Brode of Long Beach. A feature of the gathering will be a luncheon served the delegates at the Arlington Hotel.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HERMOSA BEACH, Aug. 16.—The members of the Hermosa Rod and Reel Club are planning a monster celebration for some time in September, when the club will be located in its handsome new quarters in the pier pavilion. A barbecue will be one of the principal features of the contemplated programme, and other clubs from throughout Southern California will participate. The new home of the local organization will be among the most attractive of its kind in the State. The rooms will be artistically decorated and comfort will be in evidence everywhere. The view from the windows of this part of the pier is beautiful and will provide a great attraction for beauty lovers.

OFFICIAL HURT.

E. B. Smith, city treasurer of Hermosa Beach was last evening knocked down and run over by an automobile. Mr. Smith, who is 75 years of age, attempted to cross the street near Pier and Hermosa avenues, when an automobile, driven by Mrs. Grace Hansen, who is summering at the beach, hove into sight. It is thought that the lady lost control of the machine as she sighted Mr. Smith, and run into him. He was picked up and given medical attention. Two of his ribs were broken and his body severely bruised.

VALUABLE RING FOUND IN SAND.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENICE, Aug. 16.—A real treasure hunt was made on the sands yesterday afternoon in front of the bathhouse when two husky bathers screened sand from a space twenty feet in diameter to recover a diamond cluster ring valued at $700. A large crowd of bathers and visitors were attracted to the scene by the men who toiled and labored with the big screen and a shovel.

The ring belongs to pretty Miss Lucille Cliff, a society girl of No. 2619 Kenwood avenue. She and the party, which included Miss Rena Eshelman of No. 1402 Algoma avenue, Victoria Park, and C. J. and Frank Reynolds of No. 1617 West Twenty-first street, were spending the day at the beach and had been surf bathing and were lying on the sand when Miss Cliff discovered the loss of the handsome ring.

Immediately the young men marked a circle around the girl and left her to guard it. They procured a screen and shovel and started to recover the lost gems. They worked for nearly an hour, and were getting tired, when, after dumping out many screenfuls of peanut shells, bits of paper, cigar and cigarette stumps, various petit debris and other driftwood, they were awarded by a flash as a new shovelful of sand from the center of the big circle was thrown on the screen.

The Reynolds brother who held the screen dropped it and picked up the flashing ring and handed it to Miss Cliff with a cry of glee. They all sank down on the sands and congratulated one another on their good luck. The people assembled around, when witnessing the digging, had expressed some doubt as to the genuineness of the supposed loss, but when the beautiful ring was tossed up on the screen and the nervous girl grabbed it from the man, their thoughts changed and a lusty cheer went up from the throats of perhaps 100 bathers and beach loungers.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RIVERSIDE, Aug. 16.—The far-reaching effects of the European war are exemplified locally in the decision of the International Fruit Products Company to turn its attention to the production of an orange resinoil, along with its other citrus by-products. Lemon resinoil, which is one of the company's staples, will not be manufactured until the price of lemons, now soaring as a result of the war, gets back to normal. This product is made from the rind of the lemon, and sells for $6 for the pound bottle.

CYCLIST HURT.

B. E. Dean, No. 905 Fremont avenue, was painfully bruised about the face this afternoon in an accident of a peculiar nature. He was riding a bicycle near Stratford avenue and Mission street, when an automobile crowded him to the curb and threw him off of his wheel. He fell on his face, suffering painful bruises.

The automobile was driven by a woman, whose name was not obtained. She was driving on the wrong side of the street, it is alleged, and Mr. Dean, who was riding in the gutter, fully expected she would turn out. When she failed to do so, it was too late to avoid an accident.
